GERMANY HAILS HITLER AND HIS FIVE YEAR REIGN

Proud of Army, but Has Some Worries.

Mixed Feelings

PRIDE—Its leaders declare it has the strongest military power in Europe. Because of this strength other powers are expected to continue to make concessions to Germany.

SKEPTICISM—Workers complain that their pay envelopes (containing $8 to $10 for a week's work) continue to get thinner. Industrialists expressed concern over the shortages of housing and raw materials.

WORRY—While consumers are paying more for food, farmers find themselves being engulfed in debt, due to increased costs of intensive agriculture, forced upon them by the government's drive for self-sufficiency.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 29.—Year six of the Nazi reich, with Adolf Hitler as supreme master, starts tomorrow. It finds Germany the strongest military power in Europe, with its men being trained systematically to be crack soldiers and its industry being reorganized into plants that can be used for military purposes on short notice.

The German people are convinced that their Austrian born leader, who was an obscure soldier in the world war, is building up his strong army only to display Germany's potential strength to the world and thereby induce other powers to make concessions. They believe he is sincere when he says he does not want war.

People to Pledge Loyalty.

Tomorrow and Monday meetings will be held throughout Germany under Nazi auspices to assure the Fuehrer of the loyalty of his people on the fifth anniversary of his assumption of power.

The celebration also will extend outside of Germany. Seventy official Nazi speakers have been sent to address groups of German citizens in foreign countries.

Great stress will be laid on the military achievements of the Fuehrer. German military experts admit they believe that the trained reserves and supplies of the French army are greater than those of Germany. But, they point out, Germany's equipment is new and the German soldiers more recently trained.

Slight Skepticism Displayed.

Despite the blind loyalty shown Hitler, there are some signs of apprehension. The pages of praise for the Nazi economic achievements, which the Nazi controled press is printing, are greeted with slight skepticism by worker and employer alike. Men working on the Berlin subway were sullen and dissatisfied when they received their pay last night. They complained to each other that their pay envelopes were so thin, after social security and other deductions had been made, that they feared to face their wives.

Their envelopes contained the equivalent of $8 to $10 after a week of hard work, and the men looked forward to a week of small rations for themselves and their families.

Industrialists also are worried, because they do not see how, in view of the increasing shortage of raw material, it will be possible to carry out the huge building programs announced by the Nazis.

Fear Seizure of Property.

The average citizen of Berlin is worried because the Nazis have announced that in order to carry out their building program it will be necessary "to enforce certain restrictions of property rights without payment of damages." The citizens fear this will lead to confiscation, or compulsory sale for nominal sums, of great numbers of apartment houses. This would increase the already acute shortage of living quarters and offices for private concerns.

The Nazis declare that the housing and raw materials shortages are only temporary and that as soon as the industrialists "coöperate wholehearted-

FRESH FORCES JOIN REVOLT ON PRICE BOOSTS

Ask Courts to Curb Federal Bureau.

Blow at Illinois

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Rep. Frank W. Fries (D., Ill.), charges the Illinois coal industry and consumers are being penalized by the national bituminous coal commission while producers in neighboring states reap the benefits. Page 6.

Resentment against coal price increases brought about by the Guffey-Vinson coal act flared yesterday from the eastern seaboard to the Mississippi river, accompanied by a barrage of criticism and the filing of several court actions. At the same time the national bituminous coal commission, which administers the act, sought to backtrack on one of its bitterly contested orders—that setting minimum prices for locomotive fuel. The day's major developments were:

1. Six coal companies started court action in Chicago seeking to restrain the commission from enforcing its fixed minimum price schedule.

2. The cities of Rochester, N. Y.; Cleveland, O., and St. Louis, Mo., complained of high and unfair coal rates and appealed to the courts to suspend the commission's orders.

3. Representatives of the coal commission in Washington hurried to New York, where they obtained modification of a court order issued Friday which it was said threatened disruption of the national coal market.

4. In Chicago, J. R. Henderson, secretary of the bituminous coal board No. 10, which serves Illinois, admitted that "mistakes" had been made in fixing prices for Illinois mines. Illinois, ranking third among the soft coal producing states, is the only one not represented on the commission.

5. Mayor Kelly instructed Corporation Counsel Hodes to ascertain whether the city can take legal action against the commission's orders and asked him to recommend a course of procedure.

6. Commissioner of Public Works Oscar Hewitt said the city would have to conserve in its use of coal because budgets are insufficient to meet the higher prices.

7. The commission announced it would start public hearings Feb. 8 on the question of whether it had conducted adequate public hearings before issuing the original price fixing order—an issue raised in every court suit filed. Protests charge that price scales were set in secret hearings.

Six Companies Appeal.

The six companies which filed petitions in the Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago are Southwestern Illinois Coal corporation, Central States Collieries, Inc., Pyramid Coal corporation, Patoka Coal company, Truax-Traer Coal company, and the Illinois-Pocahontas Coal company. Each operates in Illinois and several extend into other states. They charged that the minimum price schedule is unfair; that it discriminates and takes property from them without due process of law in violation of the constitution. Similar action was filed in Chicago Friday by the United Electric Coal companies.

Cleveland petitioned in the District of Columbia court for a suspension of rates and Rochester initiated a similar action in New York courts. St. Louis' action was filed in the Circuit Court of Appeals in that city. Each cited increased costs which they must bear and asserted the minimum price schedules were instituted without adequate hearings by the commission.

Commission Swamped with Calls.

On Friday Judge Martin Manton of the Circuit Court of Appeals in New York exempted the Carter Coal company of West Virginia from the minimum price scale, pending a hearing of the company's complaint that the schedule was so high as to exclude it from the New York market. The wording of the court's order was so inclusive as to give the company a potential competitive advantage in the entire coal market.

When word of the ruling spread yesterday, the commission's Washington office was swamped with telephone calls from the 6,000 code mem-

Beauty Drops Rich Count for a Richer One

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Jan. 29.—Countess Marie Ann von Wurmbrand Stuppach, aristocratic Viennese beauty who was labeled "international gold digger No. 1" by the New York judge who annulled her marriage to wealthy Clendenin J. Ryan Jr. in 1934, has been divorced by her second husband and she is about to annex a third, a possessor of one of Europe's greatest fortunes.

Countess von Wurmbrand Stuppach.

It was learned here today that Count Paul Palffy von Erdod, who married the countess in 1935, obtained a secret divorce in Bratislava, Czechoslovakia, charging infidelity, and naming Count Thomas Esterhazy as co-respondent.

New Count Wealthy.

At the same time, the countess let it be known unofficially that she is to marry Count Esterhazy, who has a $600,000 a year income and a reputation as the most handsome Hungarian nobleman. To capture Count Esterhazy the dark eyed Marie Ann nosed out Mitzi Hoffman, sparkling blonde danseuse, who has long been the toast of Budapest.

The countess' first husband, young Ryan, who himself is potential heir to a $9,000,000 fortune, obtained an annulment after three months of marriage. He charged that his wife had spurned him on their honeymoon, and that furthermore she had not been virtuous before their marriage.

Gets Big Settlement.

In December, 1935, Marie Ann married Count Palffy, who was almost twice her age. Outside a few reports that she would divorce the count to marry a maharajah while the couple were honeymooning in India, nothing happened until the countess met Count Esterhazy in Prague.

It was reported that for some time Czechoslovakian friends of Count Palffy attempted to hush up a rumored scandal, and they were successful to the extent that the count obtained a secret divorce. It is said that Count Palffy paid a large settlement.

JUDGE'S $100 WATCH GAINS A LITTLE, TOO; CALL THE NEXT CASE!

Butler, Pa., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Fred Huselton was arraigned today before Judge John H. Wilson on a charge of shooting deer before the season opened. Game Protector Troy C. Burns said Huselton shot deer several minutes before 9 o'clock. Huselton said the shooting occurred at three minutes after 9. Judge Wilson commented: "I have a watch I paid $100 for, and it can't keep time with the courthouse clock. Case dismissed!"

MULE STUBBORN? JUST CAUTIOUS, SAYS PROFESSOR

Columbia, Mo., Jan. 29.—[U. P.]—Horse sense is a fiction, but you really have something when you have mule sense!

That's what Prof. E. A. Trowbridge, mule expert at the University of Missouri, told a short course for horse and mule breeders today.

Mules are not stubborn, he said; it's merely that their instinct for self-preservation is stronger than that of a horse.

"A horse will overstrain himself," he said. "A mule is more careful. He will refuse to work when he knows his health is in danger."

WAR SHAFT FALLS AS 75 MILE GALE RIPS OVER BRITAIN

LONDON, Jan. 29.—(AP)—A freak 75 mile an hour gale with rain, sleet, and hail lashed Great Britain today. A 60 foot granite South African war memorial on the lofty Chiltern hills in Oxfordshire was toppled. A shock like an earth tremor shook the houses of Great Missenden, northwest of London. A woman was killed in bed by a falling chimney in Wales. Fishing fleets were held in port and coastal shipping was hampered.

Mrs. Harkness Sails for U.S. with New Baby Panda

SHANGHAI, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Mrs. W. H. Harkness Jr., with a baby panda caught near the Tibetan border, sailed for Seattle today on the Empress of Russia. The rare, bear-like animal is destined for the Brookfield zoo in Chicago. Mrs. Harkness, noted American explorer, took along a supply of powdered milk, honey, and cod liver oil to feed it en route. A first panda she captured, called Su-Lin, is now in Brookfield.

Plane Crashes; Fear Designer and Wife Dead

Flagstaff, Ariz., Jan. 29.—(AP)—An airplane believed to be carrying Gerard Vultee, noted airplane designer, and his wife, was reported to have crashed in flames in the rugged Oak Creek canyon country south of here today.

So forbidding was the area, described by Sherif Arthur Vandevier as the roughest in Arizona, that two deputies were unable to penetrate it tonight.

Unreported Since Takeoff.

Airport officials at Winslow said the Oak Creek district was directly on the course Vultee would follow. The couple had not been heard from since taking off at 8:35 a. m.

Deputy Sherif Ernest Yost said Earl Van Deren, rancher near Sedona, Ariz., told him of seeing a flaming plane nose to the ground. Other ranchers told him they heard a plane motor sputter and die near Oak Creek canyon.

Yost and Harold Pilmer, forest ranger at Oak Creek, prepared to lead a posse of fifty men in search of the wreckage.

Snow Covers Part of Area.

Deputy Forrest Willis, who accompanied Yost on the search tonight, said some parts of the rugged mountainous district were buried under one and one-half feet of snow.

The searchers will mobilize at Sedona, eight miles south of the spot where Yost and Willis believe the wreckage lies. Youths from a nearby CCC camp will assist the officers.

EXPECTED IN CHICAGO.

Officials of the International Air show at the stockyards ampitheater here said Vultee was expected to come here to display one of the new planes he had built for the army. Vultee was about 34 years old and was chief designer of the Lockheed planes before starting his own company.

Soviets Clear Border Zone of All Habitation

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Jan. 29.—Evacuation of all inhabitants along the western frontier of Russia has been completed by the GPU [soviet secret police]. The evacuation covers an area extending six miles inland from the border. The number of families who have lost their homes through the decision of the soviet government to strengthen the isolation of Russia from neighboring countries is not mentioned by the soviet press.

Reports by border guards of Finland, Estonia, Latvia, Poland, and Rumania, recently published in the press of those countries, said tens of thousands of families were removed by force. The evacuation, it was said, was accompanied in some instances by executions and the destruction of villages containing several hundred houses and barns.

Fortify Some Areas.

Refugees who fled across the border relate the same story—that Moscow is forming a six mile uninhabited border zone, which in many places is being fortified, and the government wishes to prevent even occasional visits across the border by villagers having relatives in border states.

The refugees report that the first evacuations were of villages inhabited by minorities—Finns, Karelians, Estonians, Letts, Poles, and others. In some cases Russians settled there continued to cultivate their farms. During the present winter, however, these colonists were also removed and the remaining settlements were destroyed. During the coming summer the deserted zone will be utilized for grazing purposes.

Charged Wire Protects Border.

In addition to a triple line of guards patroling the frontier day and night, assisted by trained police dogs, long stretches of the border are protected by hidden charged wire, which, when touched, betrays the presence of trespassers. Fraternization with guards of other countries is strictly forbidden by the GPU.

The Moscow Pravda, praising the efficiency of the soviet guards, reported that during the last week two more important spies had been captured on the Latvian and Polish borders, as they were attempting to enter Russia. In both cases the men were brought to the GPU headquarters at Vitebsk, where they signed confessions that they were agents of an enemy power. They were executed.

Inside the protective zone, children are organized as a special Young Watchers' society. They are taught to coöperate with the GPU and to report the presence of strangers in villages or on the roads. The GPU is paying a reward of $150 for each alleged spy captured.

U.S. TURNS DOWN PLAN TO SUPPLY ARMS FOR CHINA

Request of 3 Powers Rejected by Hull.

British Warships Move

DEFENSE—Leaders in congress make plans to speed President Roosevelt's new defense plans; predict house passage by Feb. 15 and senate passage by March 15. Page 3.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 29.—[Special.]—The United States tonight turned down suggested coöperation with Great Britain, France, and Soviet Russia to supply China with munitions of war.

The plan was informally communicated to the state department from Geneva by the three countries. It was developed as representatives of the powers sat in the hundredth session of the league of nations' council and considered China's demand for sanctions [penalties] against Japan.

The rejection of the proposal was sent back as informally as it came. It was understood the rejection was dictated by President Roosevelt last night at a conference with Secretary of State Hull, Undersecretary Welles, and Norman Davis, the President's ambassador at large.

Repudiates Chicago Plan.

By the action Mr. Roosevelt was regarded as repudiating the militant peace plan advanced in his speech at Chicago last October. It was presumed that the three powers expected the coöperation proposal would be given serious consideration in view of the stand Mr. Roosevelt took in the address.

In that speech he said in effect that the covenant of the league of nations had been violated and suggested a quarantine of nations guilty of the violations. The proposal of Britain, France, and Russia would quarantine Japan through bolstering China's defense against invasion of her borders.

Had the United States accepted the proposal, the country might have found itself in a new stew of international inconsistency. Under the neutrality act this country cannot ship arms to nations at war.

Invocation Is Withheld.

Invocation of the act in the Sino-Japanese conflict has been withheld on the diplomatic nicety that a state of war does not exist. Despite the fighting, a formal declaration of war has not been made, although Japan has been debating such a step. Thus, in the event of such a declaration, the United States would have found itself, had it elected to coöperate with the three powers, bound by its word to aid China and by law to keep arms from China's ports.

Secretary Hull at his press conference revealed that the United States would not join in the plan, saying this government had not changed its policy with respect to the far eastern situation.

On capitol hill Chairman Key Pittman of the senate foreign relations committee scoffed at the suggestion this country join in the plan. He asserted the proposal was so contrary to the historic policy of the country that it did not deserve consideration.

200 JAPS SLAIN

SHANGHAI, Jan. 30 [Sunday].—(AP)—Chinese forces today were reported to have gained new footholds on the Lunghai railway front in lower Shantung province by driving the Japanese from the town of Mengyin and surrounding another force at Tsining.

"The Japanese retreated to the northwest, leaving 200 dead within the Mengyin walls," a Chinese source announced.

The Chinese surrounding Japanese-held Tsining were said to have beaten off reënforcements that tried to relieve the isolated forces.

Japs Admit Chinese Advance.

Japanese spokesmen were silent regarding reports on the turning tide of warfare in these two sectors except to admit that "the Chinese are slowly advancing toward Tsining."

On the southern half of the Lunghai front, in northeastern Anhwei province, Japanese attempted to storm Chinese positions across the Mingkwan river, but, Chinese sources asserted, they were cut down by machine gun fire with heavy casualties.

On the other principal front Chinese forces reported they had cut Japanese communications between Hangchow and Nanking by capturing a position on the west shore of Lake Tai, almost due west of Shanghai.

Relentless but indecisive fighting also continued near Hangchow, now in Japanese hands, but threatened by a Chinese counter drive.

Chinese "Dig In."

Fighting on the two-sided Lunghai front consisted mostly of the armies jabbing at each other in feeler engagements. Chinese sources said Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, China's dictator, had eight divisions of his best troops deployed in fortified positions at Suchow, Kweiteh, another vital transportation center to the west, and Lanfeng, to the north of Suchow.

Japanese sources said aerial observation showed heavy Chinese concentrations also at Fengyang and Pengpu, neighboring cities of Anhwei province, about ninety miles south of Suchow, to meet Japanese columns pressing from that direction. Strong anti-aircraft defenses had been raised there.

In Japanese dominated Shanghai new restrictions for foreigners were set up. A Japanese embassy spokesman announced establishment of a "prohibited area" in the countryside north of the city, including Kiangwan, Tazang, and Liuhong.

The restrictions left as the only open areas outside the French concession and the international settlement the Hungjao territory and a small area between Hongkew and Kiangwan race track. Even there special passes were required and cameras were taboo.

JOHN ROOSEVELT AND MISS CLARK TO WED JUNE 18

Boston, Mass., Jan. 30 [Sunday].—(AP)—The Herald said today Mrs. F. Haven Clark, mother of Anne Lindsay Clark, fiancée of John Roosevelt, said her daughter and the President's youngest son would be married in nearby Nahant on June 18. The wedding will be at 12 noon in the Nahant Episcopal church. They announced their engagement last September.

The Rev. Endicott Peabody, headmaster of Groton school, who has officiated at the weddings of all the President's sons as well as that of the bride's parents, and the Rt. Rev. Henry Knox Sherrill, Episcopal bishop of Massachusetts, will officiate.

Following a six weeks' honeymoon the couple will live in a Brookline apartment, as young Roosevelt expects to work in a Boston advertising agency.

Miss Clark, a blonde, was presented to society during the 1935-'36 season and is a member of the Junior league and the Vincent club.

As the wedding will precede the Harvard commencement, John will not be present to receive his diploma, but it will be mailed to him.

MENINGITIS HITS ALASKAN TOWN 4TH TIME IN YEAR

BETHEL, Alaska, Jan. 29.—(AP)—The fourth meningitis outbreak within a year in Nunochuk, one of Alaska's most primitive villages, put Bethel under quarantine today. Mrs. Lulu Heron, government nurse, ordered the quarantine and posted guards to bar natives from this city.

Dr. E. Werbel prepared to fly serum to Nunochuk, which is 40 miles away. W. D. McVeigh, Bethel trader, received a radio message saying there are three "and possibly more" cases of meningitis at the village. Nuoochuk has had 20 cases, mostly fatal, within a year.

McVeigh said natives in the Nunochuk region live in sod huts and subsist largely on raw, partly decayed fish.

Feared Dead in Crash

ROCK RIVER ICE JAMS THREATEN LOWLAND AREA

Rock Island, Ill., Jan. 29.—[Special.]—Ice jams along the Rock river were watched closely today as milder weather threatened to loose a wall of water on towns and villages in the lower basin. The river rose three feet last night when a 90 foot power dam broke at Dixon.

Packed ice in the Rock river near the confluence of the Hennepin canal is holding back six feet of water that might cause further damage near Moline, where twenty river camps have been abandoned to the high water.

Army officers from the Rock Island arsenal and government engineers are in charge of dynamiting an ice gorge in the river near Sterling.

Highways along the river were closed in several places today because ice or water covered the roadway. Water covered Route 92 near Geneseo and at Anson. Route 78 from Lyndon to Prophetstown and Route 2 from Denrock to Erie were ice bound. Efforts to rescue Mrs. Ellen Crandall, 82 years old, from her flood bound home were abandoned when the family reported she was being made comfortable in the second floor and that she was too ill to move without special equipment.

ARMS FUNDS CUT FARM AID, SAYS WALLACE PAPER

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 29.—[U. P.]—Wallace's Farmer, of which Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace is editor, said in a front page editorial today that an increase in army and navy appropriations will diminish federal agricultural payments. The editorial was entitled "More Battleships or More AAA Money?"

"Farmers are locking horns with the admirals and generals in congress just now," the editorial said. "Farmers are not satisfied with their $400,000,000 budget for soil conservation expenses. They want at least $200,000,000 more to provide parity payments to help bring production under control on a voluntary basis and to assist in pushing farm income up.

"The admirals and generals are not satisfied with the $600,000,000 they got annually for national defense in the period from 1923 to 1935. They want a 1939 budget of $991,000,000. Much of this increase goes to the navy for new battleships."

French Air Minister Orders Speed Up in Plane Delivery

PARIS, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Guy Lachambre, minister of aviation, today ordered "complete reorganization" of France's aviation production schedule in order to speed up delivery of fighting planes.

Build Up Huge Forces of Fighting Planes.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

Directly paralleling the current world naval armament race is another bitter international contest—the mad scramble of every major power for possession of aerial forces equal to or greater than those of their neighbors.

Russia led the way by quietly producing an air fleet now conservatively estimated at 4,700 first line fighting planes, and training perhaps twice that many military aviators. Italy followed by creating an air force strong enough to bluff Great Britain in the Mediterranean during the Ethiopian campaign.

British Aim at Domination.

Then Germany, throwing off the shackles of the Versailles treaty, entered the plane building race. England, exposed to aerial attack by any one of several European nations, immediately began the greatest expansion of her air forces since the world war. By 1940 the British expect their air fleets to rule European skies as clearly as her navy rules the seas.

Japan today is seeking to expand her air forces as well as plug the holes left by the losses of airplanes and trained pilots in combats over China. And Japan's efforts have spurred Russia to a more intensified training and manufacturing program.

Somehow the French have fallen far behind. Strikes in her aircraft engine and plane factories have prevented the building of the latest types of machines. According to dispatches from Paris the airplane building plants are being taken over by the government. In this period of transition there will be no production. France, for the moment at least, has fallen to the position of a second rate air power.

United States Enters Race.

The United States could not stay out of the race. While airplanes of our army and navy air services have been consistently in advance of contemporary ships of other nations in design and performance, the number of American machines considered first class fighting planes fell to new lows during the years 1924 to 1932.

Now, with army and navy chiefs aroused by the fear that we may not be able to stay abreast of other nations, new appropriations are being demanded by President Roosevelt to augment the forces we already possess. It was reported in Washington that the President would ask for increases which virtually will double the air forces, bringing the total army and navy fighting planes to 5,500.

Relative Air Strengths Shown.

| Nation— | Bombardment Planes. | Pursuit Planes. | Observation Planes. |
| Germany | 400 | 600 | 500 |
| Great Britain | 600 | 900 | 300 |
| Italy | 600 | 500 | 300 |
| France | 300 | 600 | 600 |
| United States | 500 | 700 | 1,100 |
| Japan | 100 | 600 | 600 |

An analysis of this table discloses interesting facts. For instance, Germany, with one of the most modern and efficient air corps, built almost entirely within the last two years and consequently embodying the latest improvements, approaches a balance among the three major divisions of its air corps.

England, with a mixture of modern and obsolescent machines, has a preponderance of pursuit or single seat combat planes. This is natural, inasmuch as England's first need is for a strong defensive force to protect her great trade and industrial centers, all of which are within easy bombing range of Italy, France, Germany, and within range of Russia's long distance bombers.

Italy has built up primarily a striking force. Her bombers are dominant. It was because of this great strength in extremely fast, long range, load carrying bombardment planes that England abandoned Malta as an important Mediterranean sea base. Malta is too close to Italian territory where, quite by chance, several large military aerodromes have been established.

The weakness of France is disclosed in the analysis of her total of 1,500 first class machines. Her bombers are all obsolescent, and although there are a number of new designs available for planes equal to the best light bombers o fany European power, these have not been put into production due to troubles in the aircraft industry.

U. S. Has Fourth Division.

In addition to bombing, pursuit, and observation planes the United States army air corps has a fourth division—attack, which specializes in strafing ground troops with machine guns and striking at ammunition dumps, concentrations of transport and similar targets with light bombs and gas. In the tabluation the attack planes of the army were lumped with pursuit planes. Army and navy planes were listed together.

It is admitted the world over that the air forces of the United States lead the world. The 1937 edition of Jane's "All the World's Aircraft," says the United States possesses "one of the biggest and possibly the most efficiently armed air forces in the world."

ROCKEFELLER'S OLD HOME WILL BE PARKING LOT

T. J. Bartok, parking lot operator, who leased the grounds today at a rental of $20,000 for five years, announced the old Rockefeller homestead would be razed for a parking lot and filling station.

Rockefeller and his wife, the former Laura Spelman, bought the large brick mansion in 1868 for $40,000, and it was here they reared their four children.

CUMMINGS' AID IS SHOT; POLICE SIFT MYSTERY

Seek Woman Reported with Man Wounded.

Alexandria, Va., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Russell Hardy, special assistant to Attorney General Homer Cummings, was shot in the hip tonight by a man who, he said, had asked him for money and was refused. He was taken to the Alexandria hospital, where attendants said his condition was good.

Alexandria police said later they were holding Hardy under $500 bond as a "material witness." An officer was assigned to his hospital room.

They also said they had arrested an Alexandria man who said he was an undertaker, but had released him under $500 bond after booking him for "investigation of a holdup."

Police Say He Changed Story.

Detective Sergeant Edgar Sims said Hardy first told the police he was alone when accosted by a "panhandler," but later asserted he was with a woman attorney from New York. The police are seeking the woman.

Police said Hardy told them at first he had been for a drive and had returned to his car after stopping momentarily at the hotel. Later, they said, he told them he was taking the woman to a train.

Other persons said they heard that the woman ran after the shooting, but returned soon and asked a man if Hardy had been badly wounded. The man said he told her he did not know, and that she then asked directions to the hospital, but she did not go there.

Trapped by Motorist.

Police said the man they arrested had been brought to their attention by Cain Jackson, a Negro motorist. Jackson said that when he stopped for a trafic light a man jumped into his automobile and exclaimed:

"Drive me out to the country as fast as you can. I've just killed two people and I'll kill another if I have to."

Jackson said he drove four blocks and then wrenched the pistol from him. The man jumped from the car, and Jackson said he trailed him to a restaurant and summoned police.

Police said Hardy told them his assailant shot him as soon as he got out of the car, but that they were told by others that the two men had scuffled before the shot was fired.

Hardy was one of the justice department's attorneys in the government's litigation against automobile financing companies in a Milwaukee court. He is 42 years old, lives in Hyattsville, Md., and has been connected with the department of justice since 1929.

BRITAIN STATIONS 40 WARSHIPS IN MEDITERRANEAN

Duce Reported Planning New Spanish Invasion.

BY SAM BREWER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 29.—Forty British warships slipped out of port today with a minimum of publicity and headed for Gibraltar.

Nominally they are going to hold formal spring maneuvers in the Mediterranean area. But whether or not that is the sole cause of the cruise, the British will have a stronger fleet in and about the Mediterranean by Feb. 1 than they had even during the crisis of 1935 over the Italian invasion of Ethiopia.

And on various pretexts most of the ships will be kept there for some time. The report is that most of the bigger warships will remain in the Mediterranean or near Portugal until the end of April.

Hint More Aid to Franco.

London has been full of hints that Premier Mussolini of tIaly or Reichsfuehrer Hitler of Germany might send further aid to Gen. Francisco Franco, Spanish rebel leader. Since the defeat of the Franco forces in the battle of Teruel his stock has been low here and the story is that the Italians plan to send a big expeditionary force to help him in early spring.

The British government has given no sign it would take any active move to prevent that and it is believed in many quarters that it would not mind seeing Franco win.

But Great Britain does not want Italy to get too strong a hold in Spain. With a powerful fleet near at hand, the British would have a good trump card for use in any bargaining and they could be confident there would be no interference with British shipping.

Meantime the British are doing everything possible to strengthen their alliance with Portugal, which gives them naval and air bases on the Portuguese coast. A British service mission is due in Portugal early in February to try to arrange for the use of Portuguese bases by British ships in case of need.

Forces Move to Singapore.

SINGAPORE, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Great Britain moved land, sea, and air forces today across its vast empire "shuffleboard" toward a rendezvous at this vital new far eastern naval base.

Ten thousand soldiers, 24 warships, and eight squadrons of planes were selected for a part in the mass movement. For six days, beginning Feb. 2, they will carry out mock battles and combined training in large scale, closely guarded maneuvers.

The Chinese-Japanese conflict has given added importance to Britain's giant sea fortress, which will represent an investment of $150,000,000 when completed two years hence.

The warships are to remain here for the formal opening on Feb. 14 of the $45,000,000 drydock which forms a major part of Britain's great naval base on the north side of the island. Three United States warships will be present for the opening of the drydock.

Duce's Niece Weds

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

ROSA MUSSOLINI.

ROME, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini strode again into the parish church of San Giuseppe today to attend the marriage of a member of his family. The bride was his niece, Rosa Mussolini, daughter of Il Duce's brother, Arnaldo, who died several years ago. The bridegroom was Giovanni Teodorani, one of the Rome correspondents of Mussolini's Milan newspaper, Il Popolo d'Italia.

In this same modest church were solemnized the marriages of Mussolini's daughter, Edda, to Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister; his son, Vittorio, and his nephew, Vito, brother of today's bride. Knowledge that Mussolini and his wife would be among the wedding guests attracted a vast crowd to the church.

Teodorani, who is 21 years old, as is his bride, went into newspaper work when he finished his army service. His father is Count Pio Teodorani, federal secretary and party inspector for Forli province.

CONGRESS CHIEFS RUSH ROOSEVELT DEFENSE PLANS

Expect Program to Pass by March 15.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 29.—[Special.]—Congressional leaders today made plans to speed President Roosevelt's national defense program—which virtually would place the United States on a war-time footing—through the house by Feb. 15 and through the senate by March 15.

Chairman Carl Vinson of the house naval affairs committee summoned members to begin hearings Monday morning on the bill which he introduced to embody into law the eight point program the President presented to congress in his special message yesterday. Senator David I. Walsh, chairman of the senate naval affairs committee, said senate committee hearings will start as soon as the house passes the measure. He predicted that the program will pass quickly.

Calls for 800 Million Program.

The bill authorizes a long range 800 million dollar building program. It would permit the navy to build 47 additional men of war by going 20 per cent beyond construction limitations of the expired naval treaties. The bill also authorizes the navy to build 22 additional auxiliary vessels and 1,000 airplanes.

The program would give the navy 15 million dollars for experimental vessels. At the navy department it was learned that part of the money, if voted, will go for development of a mosquito fleet, which would consist of small, fast vessels each carrying two torpedoes and a crew of eight.

Chairman Andrew J. May of the house military affairs committee said he will confer Monday with war department officials to push the President's recommendations for strengthening the army. The message urged appropriation of $17,330,000 for increasing army material and personnel.

Opposition Takes Form.

As leaders drew their plans it was indicated that the program will not sail through congress without encountering squalls in the form of opposition oratory.

Representative George H. Tinkham [R., Mass.] charged that President Roosevelt's program is one of offense, not defense. He asserted the President is preparing to wage a war to get the United States into the league of nations.

Representative Hamilton Fish [R., N. Y.] also saw an implication in the message that Mr. Roosevelt is seeking to police the world. In the senate Senators Arthur H. Vandenburg [R., Mich.] and Lynn Frazier [Rad., N. D.] demanded that the President make public the foreign policy he expects to pursue behind the increased armaments.

Since President Roosevelt has been in office the navy has put down the keels of 119 fighting ships. Of these 49 are in service. The new program would bring to 188 the total number of vessels begun during his occupancy of the White House.

BRITAIN'S NAVAL CHIEF HAILS U. S. BUILDING PLANS

BIRMINGHAM, England, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Alfred Duff Cooper, first lord of the admiralty, tonight praised President Roosevelt's recommendations for increasing the naval strength of the United States.

Speaking at the annual banquet of the Birmingham Jewelers and Silversmiths association, he said:

"That decision is welcomed by democracies throughout the world. The day when we could enter into rivalry with the United States in naval matters is long past. I have no hesitation in saying that the stronger the United States navy is the better for the peace of the world."

MICE, $40,000 WORTH, ARE GIVEN TO HELP IN FIGHT ON CANCER

Bar Harbor, Me., Jan. 29.—(AP)—A dollar a mouse—40,000 of them—was the Rockefeller Foundation's latest contribution today toward man's fight against cancer.

The $40,000 gift to the Roscoe B. Jackson Memorial Laboratory here, said Dr. Clarence C. Little, director, would allow the cancer research institution to stabilize production of its aristocratic colony of 40,000 mice.

The domesticated animal settlement, largest and most blue blooded in the world, provides scientists with uniform strains necessary for cancer research.

ADMIRAL BLOCH TAKES COMMAND OF U. S. FLEET

'Hard Work Ahead,' He Tells Officers and Men.

San Pedro, Cal., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Hard work ahead, unselfish devotion to duty, and a navy second to none were the first words given to the United States fleet today by its new commander-in-chief, Admiral Claude Charles Bloch.

Admiral C. C. Bloch.

The brief address of the distinguished sea fighter from Kentucky put an unusual thrill into the colorful ceremony of the change today in the high command of the fighting ships.

"I wish to emphasize to the officers and men of the fleet that our only justification for being is to be ready to fight," said Admiral Bloch.

"We have fine ships and, knowing you men as I do, I know that you will continue your hard work and unselfish devotion to duty so that our navy always will be ready and second to none."

Admiral Bloch succeeds Admiral Arthur J. Hepburn.

WRIT PROTECTS ROCKFORD BUSES IN DRIVER STRIKE

Rockford, Ill., Jan. 29.—[Special.]—A temporary injunction was granted this afternoon to the Central Illinois Electric and Gas company, restraining the General Chauffeurs and Sales Drivers' union from molesting or intimidating operators of utility trucks and buses. The injunction was granted by Circuit Judge Arthur E. Fisher as a coal and transfer drivers' strike started its third day. Only meat, fresh fruits and vegetables were allowed to be moved by striking drivers. Ten coal firms which reached agreements with the union were delivering fuel. Moving vans were tied up.

POLICE TO 'CALL ALL CARS' FROM FIELD BUILDING

The Chicago park district's new two-way police radio system will operate from a broadcast station on top of the Field building, La Salle and Adams streets, W. I. Bell, assistant general superintendent of the park district, announced yesterday. The antenna will rise 50 feet above the building, which is 45 stories high.

The station is expected to be completed in about two months. It will operate on an ultrahigh frequency of between 30 and 40 megacycles using 100 watts of power. An initial expenditure of $12,438 has been authorized for the system.

REBELS REPULSE LOYAL ATTACKS ON TERUEL FRONT

SALAMANCA, Spain, Jan. 29.—(AP)—An insurgent communique said government forces launched new attacks in the Teruel sector of eastern Spain today but were repulsed with great losses. Insurgent commanders said they captured 315 government soldiers during today's engagement and picked up the bodies of 415 loyalists on the battlefield. They said forty-six deserters crossed into their lines, bringing arms and equipment.

Insurgent troops reported they had burned six government tanks and seized twelve machine guns, sixteen submachine guns, and several hundred repeating rifles.

May Move U. S. Vice Consulate.

VALENCIA, Spain, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Abandonment of the United States vice consulate here, because of repeated shelling and bombardment of the city, was under consideration today. Britain already has transferred its vice consul, W. J. Sullivan, to El Perello, a small town eighteen miles south of Valencia. He limits his work in Valencia now to an hour or two each morning.

The American vice consulate, which also was embassy headquarters until a few weeks ago, was "bracketed" Wednesday by six bombs which fell around the building.

Wounded Lige Debowski Undergoes Fifth Operation

Lige Debowski, chef who was wounded last July in a battle with two robbers whom he killed, underwent a fifth operation yesterday in the County hospital. Dr. Karl Meyer, medical superintendent of the hospital, said the operation was necessary to prevent the spread of an infection and to remove shattered bone from the base of Debowski's spine. He added that the patient's condition was good and that there was little to fear of an unfavorable reaction.

FEAR NO POGROM, KING CAROL TELLS RUMANIAN JEWS

But 2 New Anti-Semitic Decrees Are Issued.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Conflicting indications of what is in store for Rumania's anxious Jewish population were given by the highest sources of the nation today. One official pronouncement—from no less authority than the king himself—was reassuring.

King Carol I., in a frank and friendly interview, declared that Jews need have no fear of violence in Rumania. There will be no Jewish pogrom, he said. Speaking softly, in perfect English from his seat at a great, richly inlaid desk in his study, the monarch said with finality: "It may be stated on the highest authority that Rumania contemplates no inhumanities."

Meanwhile, however, in other high offices of the Rumanian government, two new anti-Semitic moves were added to the list undertaken since Premier Octavian Goga's cabinet took office. They were:

FIRST—The labor minister decreed that restaurants, coffee houses, bars, and pastry shops were to discharge Jewish help.

SECOND—Minister of Culture Ion Lupas announced that civil marriages of Rumanians and Jews soon might be declared illegal unless the Jews became Orthodox Christians and remarried in church ceremonies.

30 Days for Decision.

Lupas said he was preparing a decree under which thirty days would be allowed for Jews in mixed marriages to decide what they would do. The measure will prevent intermarriages of Jews and Christians in the future, said Lupas, who is an Orthodox priest.

Jewish circles estimated more than 10,000 Rumanian Jews would be obliged to be baptized or else dissolve their marriage unions if the proposal became effective. Jewish organizations suggested the minister might demand the conversion of children of intermarriages who have been reared in the Jewish faith.

Carol, who is monarch of 19,000,000 people, said nothing of these measures in his interview, during which he smiled often and listened cheerfully as questions were put to him.

Admits Jewish Problem.

"A Jewish problem?" he countered. "Yes, we have one and we are wrestling with it. How, ultimately, the problem is to be met is not altogether clear, but the first and important point of our policy will be that there shall be no violence to Jews. Of that we are certain.

"It is understandable that the United States should be interested in developments here, because you yourself have many Jews, certainly more than we. How in all its phases the problem is to be met cannot be stated definitly now."

[The American Jewish committee estimated the Jewish population of the United States at 4,228,039 in 1933. It estimated that 984,213 Jews lived in Rumania in 1936.]

Asked whether there was prospect of mass deportations or of colonization of Jews in some other regions of the world, Carol said that matter had not received the detailed study of the government.

Glad to See Some Leave.

"We should be relieved, of course, to see some of our Jews leave voluntarily," he acknowledged. "There has been no study of the possibility of sending them in numbers and no thought of where they might go. Such an approach hardly is to be taken by Rumania alone. It would be a matter for international action, and no one yet has taken the initiative in it."

The king gave assurance that Rumania is "clinging to her old friends" — France, Great Britain, Czechoslovakia, Jugo-Slavia, Greece, and Turkey. It is trying, however, to make new friends, he said—presumably Italy and Germany.

Directors Approve the New Locks; So Do the Yeggs

Directors of the Coöperative Trading company rejoiced when they met Friday night in their offices at 665 McAllister avenue, Waukegan. Their new locks had worked. It had been a month since the last of three safe crackings, in which $10,000 was taken. Yesterday morning, two hours after the meeting closed, yeggs climbed a telephone pole to the roof, smashed a skylight, and dropped down to the safe, from which they took $200.

FIRE AT FLORA, IND.

35,000 Attend

Some 35,000 aviation enthusiasts braved rain and cold to visit the International Air show in the stockyards amphitheater, 42d and Halsted streets, yesterday. Most of the visitors carried cameras and snapped photographs of the airplanes, the exhibits, and the famous flyers who were present.

Among those present were Capt. Frank Hawks and Nancy Love with the Guinn Air Car; Thor Solberg, trans-Atlantic flyer; Doc Ator, American Air Lines; Louise Thaden and Blanche Noyes, winners of the 1936 Bendix trophy race; Jimmy Doolittle, Al Williams, and Roscoe Turner. Each was surrounded by photograph and autograph seekers.

Beginning at 11 a. m. yesterday there was a constant line of men, women, and children waiting to file through the air lines' big Douglas sleeper plane. For seven hours the record was 800 persons per hour. An almost equal number filed across catwalks built around the army air corps' Northrop attack plane.

CAIRO RIOT MAY FORCE FAROUK TO END HONEYMOON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAIRO, Jan. 29.—King Farouk is expected to break off his honeymooning at Inchass estate and return to the capital to survey a seething political situation. Trouble started today when Cairo's students went on a rampage according to tactics learned in 1935 when they were protesting against the British.

The law, commerce, and agricultural schools had all their furniture smashed and interiors wrecked when students barricaded themselves in the buildings and mocked the police standing outside, who were not empowered to enter the university premises.

At the arts crafts school, the commerce school, and the main university buildings the police charged repeatedly with batons as students piled into them. Special forces were called out.

The uproar started after anti-Wafd students, opposed to the Wafdist political party of former Premier Mustapha Nahas Pasha, recently ousted by Farouk, insulted the premier at a mosque on Friday. Since most of the students are Wafdists, they seized the opportunity to show their loyalty to Pasha.

AUSTRIA, SERBIA CLOSE BORDERS IN REPRISAL WAR

VIENNA, Austria, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Jugo-Slavia closed its border against Austrians today in retaliation for recent similar action by Austria. Four Austrian residents of Jugo-Slavia at the same time were deported on charges they were involved in secret political activity. Austria gave fear of hoof and mouth disease as its reason for stopping trafic across the border. Jugo-Slav officials said there were no cases in the area affected by the ban.

BATTLE FLAMES AFTER MUNITIONS BLAST IN ITALY

15 Killed, Hundreds Hurt in Plant Near Rome.

SEGNI, Italy, Jan. 29.—(AP)—The worst munitions factory explosion in Italy's recent history today killed at least fifteen workers and injured hundreds of others, leaving Segni's business section devastated as by an earthquake. Nine persons died in the explosion and six died in hospitals later.

Firemen toiling to extinguish fierce flames in the ruins of the powder plant of the Bomberino Pariodi Delfino factory were certain they would find additional bodies when the heat and acrid fumes were quelled.

Soldiers, police, and firefighters were the only occupants of the shattered area in this town of 10,000 inhabitants, 38 miles southeast of Rome. Residents were forced to evacuate their homes, many of which were damaged beyond repair.

Flames Spread to Wool.

The first of three blasts came at 7:35 a. m. A second detonation 15 minutes later was followed by a terrifice blast at 8:03 which destroyed the munitions plant. Residence roofs crashed, injuring householders indoors. Outside stairways collapsed and doors splintered from their hinges.

After the blasts, flames spread underground where tons of wool used in making high explosives were stored.

Duce Surveys Wreckage.

Premier Mussolini, who had been attending the wedding of his niece in Rome, arrived to survey the wreckage, but accepted the advice of guards not to go beyond a point of safety.

Hospitals in surrounding towns and Rome soon were jammed with first-aid cases.

An official communique blamed the disaster on the carelessness of a worker who broke a compressed air tube.

MAYOR SAYS LAW REVISION NEEDED IN RELIEF CRISIS

Praises Business Group's Reorganization Plan.

Gov. Horner must obtain corrective legislation if the recommendations of the governor's business man investigators for improving Chicago relief administration are to be fulfilled.

This statement was made yesterday by Mayor Kelly after reading the preliminary report made on Friday to Gov. Horner by the Illinois council on public assistance and employment. After a six weeks' survey of Chicago relief practices, the council, which was appointed last October by the governor, declared that the CRA needs to be reorganized to obtain maximum economy and efficiency.

Charge Inefficiency and Waste.

Its report, prepared by 60 efficiency experts loaned by 35 firms, said that inefficiency, confusion, and waste exist under the present system. This was attributed to overburdening of the administration staf and to the employment of social service workers as business administrators, posts for which the survey said they are not qualified.

The report came at a time when Relief Commissioner Leo M. Lyons faces a $1,468,059 shortage in February relief funds with the case load expected to reach 95,012, the highest since the CRA replaced state administration in July, 1936. The estimated need is $3,576,716. Available funds, coming chiefly from the state, total $2,108,657.

Calls Report a Good One.

"I am glad the relief problem has been brought into the open by the so-called non-partisan board appointed by the governor," said Mayor Kelly. "I think it is a very good report, and in all probability Gov. Horner will take remedial steps. We want to cooperate in every way with the governor's council and with Commissioner Lyons. Corrective legislation will be needed and that is in the hands of the governor.

"There is practically nothing in the report which has not been brought out in city council chambers, in council meetings or by myself. The city tried to obtain the money for such a survey from the state, but could not get it."

Relief Commissioner Lyons refused to comment yesterday on the survey. He said that he would meet Tuesday with the business man council to discuss its conclusions and proposed changes.

Wayne McMillen, chairman of the Chicago chapter of the American Association of Social Workers, said he agreed with the survey's statements that each district office should be placed in the hands of a person qualified both from a business and a social service point of view.

"But," he added, "administration has been more completely handled by the social workers than it would be handled by business executives. Business men have not proved to be sound advisers where problems of public administration are concerned."

HELD IN STABBING AFFRAY.

Logansport, Ind., Jan. 29.—[Special.]—Glen Moore, 45 years old, who was acquitted of a murder charge ten years ago, was held in jail today pending the outcome of knife wounds suffered last night by Harold McElheny, 26 years old, whom Moore is said to have stabbed during a quarrel.

Pays a Wage Tax

John J. Jeffers, 4½ months old, and the social security card he had to get before drawing his pay as a photographer's model.

John J. Jeffers of 1414 Sedgwick street is four and a half months old. But John J. also is a wage earner in spite of his youth. So he had to have a social security card. Because John J. can neither walk nor talk as yet, his dad, James L. Jeffers, got him the card and made him the youngest registrant in the Chicago office of the security board.

It came about because the baby posed for the infants' wear department of a big loop store. He earned $3 for acting nice before the camera for half an hour. But before the store would pay him, it had to have a security number and deduct 3 cents from the baby's pay check. His father got the card and the store paid John J. his $2.97.

FIVE PLUNGED IN POND TRYING TO RESCUE TWO

New York, Jan. 29.—[Special.]—Helen Heer, 23 years old, met Frederick Ernst, 24 years old, while skating on a pond last night. The ice broke, plunging them into water 20 feet deep.

For an hour they tried to keep each other afloat while other skaters attempted to get them out. Each time another skater crawled out on the ice it cracked, throwing him into the water. Finally seven persons were in the water.

When finally Ernst and Miss Heer were hauled out, Ernst was unconscious. He died an hour later. The others were treated for shock.

RED NAMED AID TO MANHATTAN BOROUGH CHIEF

New York, Jan. 29.—[Special.]—In the face of protests from patriotic societies, Borough President Stanley M. Isaacs of Manhattan has promoted Simon W. Gerson, communist, to be his assistant, it was learned today.

When Gerson was appointed confidential investigator Jan. 1 there was a storm of protest, which Isaacs ignored, declaring Gerson's activities beyond office hours were his own business.

"I am not interested in his political affiliations," Isaacs said.

DISCLOSE FACTS BEHIND DEADLOCK ON TRANSIT UNITY

Mayor Takes Hand Again in Merger Efforts.

Inquiries last night disclosed reasons behind the deadlock in negotiations for unification of Chicago surface lines and elevated railways. At the same time Mayor Kelly announced he would again take a personal hand in settlement efforts. He called a meeting of the special transit committee handling the negotiations for Tuesday.

The mayor will ask representaitves of both systems to modify their positions. It was learned that the issue which has deadlocked the committee is the city's transit modernization plan which proposes to convert three of the four west side elevated lines into elevated highways.

Clash on Time Element.

Both the representatives of the surface lines and of the elevated profess to favor the plan, but they disagree on the time element. The elevated representatives want to work out a financial consolidation now on the basis of present outstanding securities of the companies. Arrangements for the sale of the west side lines to the city for highways, they say, could be made by the new company.

But the surface lines, interests want these items considered first: The effect on the value of the elevated system that abandoning the three lines would have; the amount of money the city would pay for the lines taken over, and the amount needed to take the elevated company out of receivership.

At one point in the negotiations the elevated representatives asked the surface lines to make them an offer. The street car agents refused. Instead they asked another question: Where are funds to reorganize and modernize the elevated coming from?

Put Cost at 27 Million.

This modernizing job, city engineers estimate, would cost 27 million dollars. Estimates on the expense of getting the "L" out of receivership differ. The elevated reorganization committee says two million dollars. The surface lines' figure is higher.

If a financial consolidation is not effected, it was said last night, another arrangement could be made which would permit carrying out of the city plan. This would be a unification agreement providing for universal transfers and placing all operations under one management supervised by a city transit commission.

Stage Star Weds

Cleveland, O., Jan. 29.—[Special.]—Severance Milliken and his bride, the former Marta Abba, Italian star of the New York production of "Tovarich," left last night by train for Pasadena, Cal., where they will make their home until May 1. The couple who were married here yesterday, will live after their honeymoon on the estate in Cleveland of the late John L. Severance, millionaire philanthropist and uncle of Mr. Milliken.

ULSTER PREMIER RE-ELECTED; HAS NO OPPOSITION

BELFAST, North Ireland, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Prime Minister Lord Craigavon and thirteen members of his party received unopposed nominations today for the Feb. 9 election in which the Northern Ireland government is demanding a mandate against union with Ireland.

Six Nationalists, whose party in three constituencies boycotted the election, and one Laborite were opposed. Eighty candidates in all were expected to be nominated for the fifty-two parliament seats.

Lord Craigavon's cabinet, opposing the plan of Eamon De Valera, prime minister of Ireland, for a united Ireland, dissolved parliament Jan. 20 and called the election. Talk of union was revived by the recent talks between De Valera and Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain in London.

SAVED FROM DEATH UNDER COAL.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Jan. 29.—[Special.]—Buried for nearly three hours under tons of coal in a bin at the Iowa Electric Light and Power company plant, Ted Lodge was brought out alive today through the efforts of a shovel crew of co-workers.

CHARGE ILLINOIS IS PENALIZED BY U. S. COAL BOARD

Hearing Is Demanded by State's Congressmen.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 29.—[Special.]—The Illinois coal industry—and consequently the Illinois coal consumer—is being penalized by the national bituminous coal commission while coal producers in neighboring states reap the benefits.

Rep. Frank W. Fries.

This charge was made today by Representative Frank W. Fries, a Democrat who represents the four middle Illinois counties of Christian, Macoupin, Montgomery, and Sangamon which produce a large proportion of the state's coal. He announced he would petition the coal commission Monday to grant him and other Illinois congressmen a hearing on their protests.

Lewis to Appeal.

Senator James Hamilton Lewis [D., Ill.] again will appeal to the commission to consider the complaints made about discrimination against Illinois, he said. He protested some time ago but the commission, which does not number an Illinois man among its membership of seven despite the state's ranking of third in soft coal production, was cold to the complaints of the Illinoisans.

Representative Fries declared that Gov. Henry Horner of Illinois was absolutely correct in protesting that the commission's rules and price schedules are working a ruinous discrimination against Illinois coal and are increasing prices to Illinois coal users, large and small.

"It appears that the commission has given concessions to the states of Indiana, Missouri and Iowa which have penalized the Illinois coal industry, raising the price of Illinois coal and making it necessary for Illinois people to pay more for their coal than under ordinary circumstances," Fries said.

"There is no way to prove this, but it appears that the purpose of the commission is to increase the price of Illinois coal so that Indiana and Iowa producers may reap the benefits.

Fight to Save Industry.

"We of the Illinois delegation are going to use every conceivable method to prevent further increases which will penalize our coal industry. I will ask the commission Monday for an audience and we intend to fight to the last and use all our resources to protect one of our major industries."

"To phrase it mildly," remarked Representative Ralph W. Church [R., Ill.], "Illinois' two Democratic senators appear to have been asleep when appointments to the commission were being handed out. At least one of the seven members should have been an Illinois man inasmuch as Illinois ranks third to Pennsylvania and West Virginia in bituminous coal production. Pennsylvania and West Virginia, of course, are represented on the commission but Illinois was passed over in favor of Ohio, Iowa, Kentucky, Indiana and Missouri."

Representative Chester Thompson [D., Ill.], who also represents a district in the mining region, said he agreed completely with Gov. Horner's accusations and announced his intention of joining in the protests to the commission.

Doubt Relief Likely.

The consensus among several congressmen representing the coal areas in Illinois was that the state has little chance of obtaining relief from the commission so long as the present membership stands. Iowa, Indiana, Missouri, and Kentucky control a majority of four of the seven members of the commission. Since these states are benefiting from the discrimination against Illinois, any alteration in the Illinois rates is improbable, it was pointed out.

An indefinite continuance was ordered by the commission today on seven petitions for relief from the prices established on railroad fuel prices in Illinois. The reason given was the commission has called a general hearing Feb. 14 into the question of railroad locomotive fuel prices and marketing rules and regulations on the sale of such coal.

Hearings on the petition had begun yesterday with the case of the Patoka Coal company of Illinois taken as the precedent. Numerous exhibits were introduced by the petitioners showing the distress wrought upon Illinois coal companies by the prices fixed by the commission.

SLAYER OF SISTER CONVICTED.

Rockport, Mo., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Disregarding a defense plea of insanity, a Circuit court jury today convicted Frank Bales, a farmer, 61 years old, of murdering his divorced sister, Mrs. Alta Morrow, and fixed his sentence at life imprisonment.

Illinois Left Out

The leading soft coal producing states, with the production of each, are shown below. Illinois, ranking third, is the only one of the eight not represented on the national bituminous coal commission, which, it is claimed, has discriminated against the state in fixing prices.

SHIP RADIO MEN BALK AT RISING TO REPORT WEATHER

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 29.—[U. P.]—Pacific maritime troubles tonight included an investigation of radio operators on small craft who are reported to have refused to interrupt their bunk fatigue to send weather reports to the mainland unless paid an extra dollar a day.

Dotting a 7,000 mile triangle from Los Angeles to Hawaii to Alaska and back to Los Angeles is a number of small ships—sometimes a dozen, often a score. From each of these ships the weather bureau at Los Angeles expects to receive weather reports at 4 a. m. and at 4 p. m.

Friday morning no weather reports came from these craft. The reports came on schedule during the afternoon. Weather bureau officials attributed the early morning silence to a possible strike by the radio operators, who have been demanding an extra dollar a day for getting out of their bunks at 4 a. m. to send the reports.

Delicatessen Owner Shot in Side, but Routs Robber

Frank Kleck, 68 years old, was shot in the right side last night when he resisted a robber in his delicatessen store at 4900 North Pulaski road. The shooting was witnessed by Kleck's wife, Wanda, and a customer, Mrs. May Schubert, 4849 North Kostner avenue. The robber fled without loot. At the Swedish Covenant hospital Kleck's condition was called critical.

Salesman Returns Home, Finds Wife Shot to Death

When David Dall, a salesman, returned to his home at 639 East 79th street last night, he found his wife, Harriet, 47 years old, dead, and a revolver at her side. A bullet had pierced her heart. Dall told Burnside police that she had been ill for six months.

Courts Asked to Enjoin Price Boosts.

bers of the bituminous industry who were bewildered by the apparent scope of the court's order. This necessitated the flight to New York where the commission obtained a modification of Judge Manton's order. This relieves the company only from the claimed injustice of the commission's order in regard to the sale of its brand of pea coal in the New York market.

Expect More Suits.

Coal men said they expect many other smokeless operators and low volatile producers from central Pennsylvania to seek court orders similar to that granted the Carter company. Competition between Carter's district and central Pennsylvania is extremely keen along the northern Atlantic seaboard.

The commission, in its order No. 204, said it has rescinded its previous order establishing a price for locomotive fuel in the various districts and that hereafter minimum prices for locomotive fuel will be those established by the commission for general application in the various markets.

In Washington, however, it was said the 200 railroads that attacked the minimum locomotive fuel prices in a court action Friday will ignore order 204 and continue their fight in court.

A three judge federal court was scheduled to start hearings Monday in New York on a petition from the Indiana Gas and Chemical company of Terre Haute, Ind., for an order to set aside southern West Virginia prices as they affect the Terre Haute market.

Effect on Chicago.

Although the coal bill for the Chicago city government will be raised about $225,000 annually, a total of $100,000 above budget provisions, Mayor Kelly said the city is more interested in how the increases will affect the little fellow.

"We are interested," he asserted, "not only because the city is hurt by the boost, but because the increase hits thousands of small home owners who must heat their own houses. If we can do anything to meet that situation we will do it promptly and energetically."

TOMORROW LAST DAY TO PAY STATE JOBLESS TAXES

Employers in Illinois have until midnight tomorrow to pay their 1937 unemployment compensation taxes, Martin P. Durkin, state director of labor, said last night. More than $20,000,000 has already been paid by about 20,000 employers and payments by an additional 5,000 are expected before the deadline.

To accomodate late comers, the office at 205 West Wacker drive will be open all day today and until midnight tomorrow, Durkin said. Many of those who have not yet filed returns have been granted extensions on their federal returns ranging from thirty to sixty days and are thus eligible for extensions on state payments.

Buys Rare Stamp for 85 Cents; Sells It for $5,440

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 29.—An undamaged specimen of a Mauritius one penny orange postage stamp issued in 1847—one of the rarest stamps known to collectors—was discovered in Nykirk recently among junk bought by a local butcher. It was included in a framed landscape made up of various stamps, for which the butcher paid 1¼ florins [about 85 cents]. His Mauritius stamp has already been bought by an Amsterdam dealer for 8,000 florins [$5,440] and will be sent to the next London stamp auction. Mauritius is a British owned island in the Indian ocean, east of Madagascar.

GREEN ANSWERS HIS FOES IN FIGHT TO DRIVE HIM FROM MINE UNION

Miami, Fla., Jan. 29.—(AP)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, replied in detail tonight to charges on which he faces ouster from the United Mine Workers union, and at the same time accused John L. Lewis of deceiving the U. M. W. A. "to hide the failure of his leadership."

Green said he was unable to appear in person before the miners' convention in Washington, so was mailing his 3,000 word reply with the request it be read from the floor.

The A. F. of L. chief charged Lewis vetoed the formula for peace between the A. F. of L. and Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization, agreed upon last month. Green claimed also that Lewis misrepresented the number in the C. I. O. with "his empty challenge to have these 4,000,000 members ride into the A. F. of L. if only they were taken in without challenge."

He concluded with the inquiry to the miners:

"Were not these actions on his part simply a smoke screen to hide from you the failure of his leadership; to ward off the day of reckoning for his reckless squandering of your money?"

MOUNTED POLICE VETERAN RETIRES AFTER 32 YEARS

Sergt. Fred F. Dunsing, one of the first Chicago mounted policemen, yesterday sent his resignation to Commissioner James P. Allman. He entered the service on July 9, 1906.

Soon after he joined the force he was assigned to break in horses for the division organized by Charles Healey, who later was chief of police. The division was established when Edward Dunne was mayor of Chicago. The first twelve mounted policemen were sent to the loop that fall, among them Dunsing.

Dunsing was selected because of his army experience. He enlisted in 1894 and served in the Jackson Hole Indian campaign, the Spanish-American war, and the Philippine insurrection.

CANNED MUSIC BROUGHT UNDER UNION CONTROL

Radio Contracts to Give More Musicians Jobs.

The American Federation of Musicians will control the output of canned music [that is, music recorded by mechanical means for broadcast] in nearly 589 radio stations in the country in a new contract signed between the musicians and the principal recording companies, the chain radio broadcasting companies, and the independent affiliates. The contract, which will be effective for two years beginning tomorrow, was announced yesterday by James C. Petrillo, head of the Chicago Musicians' union and a member of the international executive board.

According to Mr. Petrillo, the new agreement will cost the radio stations an additional $2,013,000 each year and require the employment of 1,000 more musicians. At present the stations spend approximately $3,500,000 for musicians, he said. The increase in the outlay for music by the stations will be approximately 60 per cent, it was estimated.

100 Not Affected.

There are nearly 700 radio broadcasting stations in the United States. Of these, approximately 100 will not be affected by the contract because their programs are confined to educational matters.

Of those affected, 289 are affiliated with chain broadcasting companies. The chains have agreed to discontinue sending programs to affiliated stations listed as unfair to the musicians' union.

The rest of those affected, approximately 300, are independent stations. The recording companies have agreed not to supply phonograph records or electrical transcriptions to those listed as unfair.

Mr. Petrillo said the stations have been canvassed and asked to hire more musicians. Those that refuse will be placed on the unfair list and the chain and recording companies notified, he said.

Campaign a Year Old.

The Chicago Federation of Musicians started the campaign to control canned music a year ago. Last June Mr. Petrillo brought up the question at the national convention and the nation-wide campaign was agreed on. Mr. Petrillo said Chicago stations would pay $250,000 a year more to musicians as a result of the campaign.

The musicians next will direct their attention to canned music in the movies, the union head said. He asserted that 300 musicians in Hollywood have forced nearly 22,000 others out of work in the country's theaters. He said the Movietone and Vitaphone companies will be asked to agree not to serve theaters whose owners refuse to hire union musicians.

SUICIDE VERDICT RETURNED.

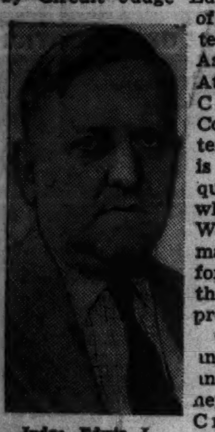
AVERS JUDGE MAY BE IN CONTEMPT IN KARATZ CASE

Cook County Ignores Joliet Freedom Order.

In the face of a possible citation by Circuit Judge Edwin L. Wilson of Joliet for contempt of court, Assistant State's Attorney James Cunningham of Cook county yesterday said there is a serious question as to whether Judge Wilson himself may not be held for contempt by the state Supreme court.



Judge Edwin L. Wilson.

Cunningham and First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley said they would disregard the habeas corpus writ issued Jan. 14 by Judge Wilson for the release on bond of Abraham Karatz. Karatz, a former St. Paul lawyer, sentenced to one to five years in the penitentiary, is being held in the Cook county jail. He was convicted in Chicago in 1935 of conspiracy in connection with the embezzlement of $54,000 by Otto Van Derck, a clerk in the Amalgamated Trust and Savings bank, who furnished money for Karatz and others to buy control of an insurance company they allegedly planned to loot.

On Way to Prison.

After an appeal to the state high court was disposed of, Karatz was at the door of the Joliet prison when Judge Wilson intervened.

Karatz was given his liberty on bail of $5,000 and Judge Wilson scheduled a hearing on the writ for last Friday. On that day he continued the hearing until Feb. 4, still permitting Karatz his liberty. Karatz was seized outside the court by Chief Deputy Sherif Edward Scholler of Cook county, who was accompanied by Prosecutor Cunningham, and brought to Chicago.

"Judge Wilson should have dismissed his writ when told that the Supreme court had passed on Karatz's case and affirmed his conviction," First Assistant Prosecutor Crowley said yesterday. "He issued the writ without notice to our office.

Up to Judge Now.

"I believe Judge Wilson knew at the time that the prisoner had appealed to the Supreme court and that all his rights had been protected, and that the court had decided against him. Nevertheless Judge Wilson admitted Karatz to bail. We hold that Judge Wilson's order admitting Karatz to bail was void. Consequently the whole proceeding is void. It's up to Judge Wilson to do one of two things: institute contempt proceedings or dismiss his writ. Karatz is going to prison regardless."

Prosecutor Cunningham, who with Scholler would be defendants if Judge Wilson decided to issue contempt citations, quoted a Supreme court decision, as follows:

"The judge, learning that the Supreme court has reviewed and affirmed conviction, must dismiss petition for writ of habeas corpus and deny writ for want of jurisdiction unless subsequent facts and circumstances have been made the basis of the petition, though defects complained of were not discovered until after affirmation."

"Inasmuch as the sherif, in taking Karatz to prison, was acting on a mandate of the Supreme court," Cunningham said, "Judge Wilson prevented the sherif from obeying the mandate. That may be construed as contempt of the Supreme court.

Chief Deputy Sherif Scholler said Karatz will be sent to prison early next week and will not be brought before Judge Wilson on Feb. 4.

ACQUIT WOMAN OF POISON DEATH OF HER HUSBAND

Hasting, Minn., Jan. 29.—(AP)—A district court late today acquitted Mrs. Beatrice Johnke, a grandmother of 41 years, of a first degree murder charge growing out of the death of her husband, Louis, 45, whom the state contended she poisoned for the love of another man.

"I feel just the way I did before," Mrs. Johnke commented after hearing the verdict. "I had nothing to worry about."

The jury of nine men and three women required more than 70 hours to reach its decision. The court had considered invoking a state statute providing that jurors may be required to deliberate "without food or drink, except water" in an effort to break an apparent deadlock.

Johnke, a packing house worker, died last August 19, and Mrs. Johnke was indicted Nov. 19.

Mrs. Joseph Fainer, wife of special prosecutor in Los Angeles bombing case, with their son, Jerry, en route to Honolulu.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 29.—(AP)—With his wife and son, Jerry, 4 years old, on their way to Honolulu to escape kidnap and murder threats, Special Prosecutor Joseph L. Fainer today prepared his case against suspended Police Captain Earle Kynette in the Harry Raymond bombing.

Mrs. Fainer said, as her ship paused at San Francisco, that not only their son's life, but her own had been threatened. The lawyer said a gruff voice had warned him by telephone. "If you don't get out of this case we'll pull a Lindbergh on your baby."

Fainer, named special prosecutor by District Attorney Buron Fitts at Raymond's request, conferred with the private detective at his hospital, where fragments of metal still are being removed from his body.

Meanwhile Fitts' investigators sought to link Kynette, head of the police intelligence squad, who is at liberty on a $15,000 bond in the Raymond case, with the bombing of an apartment occupied by Lyndon Foster, political publisher, in 1935. Fitts previously had announced Kynette was suspected in other bombings. He will be given a preliminary hearing Feb. 14.

IDLE THOUSANDS MARCH IN PARIS BEHIND RED FLAG

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 29.—Marching behind a red flag and singing the "Internationale," several thousand unemployed and aged workers paraded through the working districts of Paris today. In Montpellier 200 jobless invaded the city hall, which they held several hours.

These demonstrations were regarded in some quarters as ominous symptoms of the determination of the left wing political parties to exert pressure on the government through agitation in the streets.

The Paris demonstration appeared to be under communist auspices. The workers chanted: "Thorez in power." [Maurice Thorez is a leader of the French communists.]

A MERRY ITEM: PACKS HERSELF IN TRUNK, FLEES

Heiress Then Has Fun in a Baggage Car.

Disguised as a half dozen of her honeymoon gowns, Merry Fahrney fled from her Los Angeles hotel in a trunk last September, her friends disclosed yesterday. Their story came out just as her third bridegroom, Baron Arturo Berlingieri, was giving a deposition about the quarrels that ended the honeymoon.

Merry wasn't running away from the baron, because they had already separated. She was running away from the men her friends said had been sent to surround her hotel and hand her a summons in the $150,000 damage suit the baron had filed. The baron charged that she had injured his good name by refusing to live with him.

Just Pops In, Pops Out.

The Oak Park patent medicine heiress just tossed the evening gowns out, as the story was told, jumped into the trunk, and pulled the lid down. Then she had herself hauled away to a railroad station and put on a train.

When the train was out of the court's jurisdiction, she surprised the baggage crew by popping out and exclaiming:

"Hello, everybody!"

Then she went into a Pullman and bought herself a ticket.

Baron Tells His Side.

While these interesting facts were being recounted the baron was telling his story in the office of Merry's attorney, Frank E. Cantwell, in a deposition preparatory to the hearing of Merry's suit for divorce, tentatively set for tomorrow in the Circuit court of Judge John Prystalski.

A handsome, dark-eyed, athletic man in his early thirties, the nobleman said the romance began in Rome and continued in Paris. Merry met him at the boat when he came to New York last July 29, he said, and they were married at Harrison, N. Y., on July 31, with Merry's first husband, Hugh Parker Pickering, as a witness.

Merry Fahrney, the patent medicine heiress, whose latest escapade —a runaway to escape summons servers—was disclosed yesterday.

Sparring Starts Right Away.

The newlyweds quarreled at once. He went back to his hotel and she to hers.

Merry then decided to go to Los Angeles by train. She told her new husband he was to follow in her Duesenberg car, and to remember that her chauffeur was to do the driving. But when the baron reached Los Angeles, the chauffeur confided that the baron had insisted on driving the last three days, and the quarrel went on.

They lived in a suite in the Ambassador hotel, in separate bedrooms. But they went out together, to several Hollywood parties given by movie actors.

Seated beside his attorney, Edwin A. Halligan, the baron told about the money matters that Merry's suit blames for part of the couple's troubles. Questioning was by Cantwell.

Q.—Did you ask her for money? A.—No. When I arrived in New York, she said, "Your money must be tied up in Italy. I'll open a bank account for you so you won't be short of funds." I refused.

Q.—Isn't it a fact that you asked Merry for $200,000? A.—No. I never asked her for any money at any time.

Mention of the $200,000 concerned the happenings of last Aug. 15, when Merry and the baron moved to separate hotels. The baron soon afterward filed his damage suit, asking annulment on the ground that the marriage was never consummated. Then the process servers went over to see Merry, and she left, her friends say, in a hurry and the trunk.

INFORMATION VS. WISDOM

By CALEB

I DOUBT if Solomon could have named a dozen constellations—but he could read the heart of a mother. I doubt if Solomon knew how many camel trains crossed the burning sands of the world's great trade ways of his time in any year or month—but he knew how to pluck human heartstrings. Solomon, I dare say, could not quote the latest government figures on the cotton crop, on unemployment, or on the occurrence of spavin in wild horses—but he knew how to smooth the ruffled breast. Solomon may have had little information but he had plenty of wisdom.

These two—information and wisdom—have probably been confused wherever men have lived and thought.

The world is wisely made. Many people can accumulate vast masses of information through long education, so-called, and put that information to worldly use. But the person who must be deprived of the privileges of boning up for years, can, if he will, have a certain amount of wisdom. Information is concerned with facts. Wisdom is concerned with meanings. Information can quote figures. Wisdom tells why the figures exist and what their significance is.

Wisdom, like information, may be specialized and in any state of development. The successful mother of a large brood of children may have wisdom as it applies to children and their relationships. Her son may develop wisdom in a broader field, concerning the ways of men. And his son may have wisdom as regards the ways of large groups of men, societies, social organizations, nations. He may be a philosopher and a statesman.

Wisdom, like intelligence, is a good thing to have with education. But it enables you to get along without education.

People who are wise seem to understand other people. In our store, I have seen a small woman who has never had any formal education handle with notable success many situations which a highly educated compatriot of hers could never hope to handle. The first woman thinks and places herself in other people's situations. She has wisdom. The second woman has information.

I presume all wise people think. They ponder and reflect. People who acquire vast funds of cold information are too busy stacking mental lumber to do that most desirable of all things—acquire wisdom.

GERMANY HAILS HITLER AND HIS 5 YEARS' REIGN

Proud of New Army, but Has Other Worries.

ly with the organizers of the four year plan [for self-sufficiency] the situation will be relieved."

Men coöperating with Col. Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, director of the four year plan, are seeking ways of extracting iron out of Germanys' low grade ores. They assert they have made such progress that French iron and steel experts are coming to Germany next week seeking coöperation with the Germans.

Forecast Success This Year.

Nazi leaders say that the present period of difficulty should be termed the "bottle neck" period, in which every one must tighten belts temporarily.

"We are working our way out of the bottle neck," they add, "and by summer the main difficulties will have been surmounted."

They point to the development of German trade in southeastern Europe, to the impending visit of French industrialists, and to the fraternization of German Hitler youth with Japanese, Spanish, French, English, Italian, and Arab youth. The latter are called elements that will help Germany emerge from its economic isolation.

The Nazis see in the measures taken by Rumania, Poland, and other countries against Jews concrete evidence that Germany's racial policy is finding followers throughout the world.

Farm Indebtedness Rises.

Though the German consumer must pay more for his food than most consumers in the world, the German farmer sees the specter of greater indebtedness rising on his horizon.

The German government has protected the farmer with a tremendous customs barrier, embargoes on many foodstuffs, strict control of all imports, price regulations in his favor, and subsidies. In return, it expects him to increase production.

Herbert Backe, state secretary in the food ministry, said today that "the battle for increased production of agriculture, begun in the fall of 1934, has achieved great results, but the conditions under which this battle is being waged are now becoming increasingly difficult. In the year 1936-'37 production expenses increased by 335 million marks [$134,000,000] while sales amounts increased by 163 million [$65,200,000] marks."

Steak 60 Cents a Pound.

When the German housewife goes to market she must pay sixty cents for a pound of steak, or almost thirty cents for a pound of pork ribs. The cabbage and potatoes to go with the meat are cheap, but if she wants other vegetables she must pay quite a big price.

A two pound can of lower grade peas costs forty cents, while salads are at a premium—twenty cents for a tiny head of lettuce is the average price. Dried prunes sell at thirty to forty cents a pound. Oranges, when they can be had, cost between eight and fifteen cents each.

The lowest price for the German version of Swiss cheese is 53 cents a pound. Butter, which is rationed, costs 60 cents a pound. Every German is allowed to purchase six ounces of butter a week. A pound of flour costs between 10 and 14 cents.

Cultivation Cost Soars.

With these prices the German farmer should fare well. The price of intensive cultivation of land, however, is so high, according to official Nazi spokesmen such as Backe, that farm profits are dwindling.

The new policy of intensive artificial fertilizing has enabled Germany to keep up its production despite bad weather and other difficulties. The grain harvest for 1937, for instance, was large, though 7 per cent of the area available for cultivation was ruined by the winter cold and had to be resown.

The root vegetable harvest [potatoes and sugar beets] in 1937 was the biggest the country ever had. Germany harvested 55,300,000 tons of potatoes, or 30 per cent more than the average of the preceding six years. It harvested 14,000,000 tons of sugar beets, which was 40 per cent above the average for the six preceding years.

Milk production was raised to 25 billion liters, or 1 billion liters more than in 1934.

Cites Increased Costs.

Backe admits that this increase cost farmers and state an additional 1,400,000,000 marks [$560,000,000] since the beginning of the battle for increased production. More than 800,000,000 marks [$320,000,000] were invested for increased production in the year 1936-37.

The difference between the price for agricultural products and the cost of production, Backe said, is increasing the farmers' indebtedness, though farmers and their families are working overtime.

To keep their farmhands on the land, farmers were forced to increase their pay. The wage bill of the farmer has increased by 18 per cent, or a total of 250,000,000 marks [$100,000,000] since 1933-34.

Farmers have protested energetically that they need more help if they are to continue their intensive cultivation of lands. Consequently, Dr. Syrup, president of the national office for employment, announced that next spring the authorities will allow 200,000 foreign farmhands to enter Germany. The Nazi experiment of sending unemployed workers from the cities to work on the farms has failed.

A Plan for Peace

SYBIL THORNDIKE.

New York, Jan. 29.—[Special.]—A plea to politicians to shut up shop and hand the work over to the artists for a while, so that mankind may enjoy an age of peace, was made yesterday by Dame Sybil Thorndike, British actress, speaking at a luncheon of the Town Hall of New York.

"The artists," she said, "are the only international institutions at the present. Artists and those who follow art are the only ones who enjoy each other's differences. They don't like to have every one look alike and talk alike and dress alike and think alike." She warned that mistrust of foreigners and hatred is leading straight for destruction and death.

KING ZOG CALLS PARLIAMENT TO ANNOUNCE TROTH

TIRANA, Albania, Jan. 29.—(AP)—King Zog of Albania will inform the Albanian parliament at a special session Monday that he plans to give his country a queen of American blood by taking Countess Geraldine Apponyi as his wife.

Official confirmation of the betrothal came when the Albanian press service announced that parliament had been summoned in accordance with the constitution for the announcement.

The 22 year old countess is the daughter of the former Gladys Virginia Stewart of New York, who was married in Geneva on July 29, 1914, to Count Julius Nagy-Apponyi, member of the old Hungarian families of Apponyi and Karolyi.

Counts Charles and Louis Apponyi, uncles of the bride-to-be, and Mme. Virginia Debagi, her yonnger sister, are in Tirana for the announcement of the engagement. The date for the wedding has not been announced.

Ekman to Reorganize Evanston Police Force

Evanston's police force is to be reorganized under the direction of Lieut. Carl Ekman, who has been chief of the suburb's detectives for several years. Chief of Police William O. Freeman said that under the new system all policemen would have to attend courses in crime prevention.

VICTIM, 74, TELLS JURY OF $150,000 LOSS IN SWINDLE

Points Out Defendant in Fake Race Bet Trial.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 29.—[Special.]—Edward W. Gilsdorff, 74 years old, a retired Chicago contractor, told a jury in federal court today how confidence men enticed him to Reno, Nev., on promises of big winnings on the horses and then swindled him out of $150,000. He gave his address as 2558 Fitch avenue, Chicago.

Gilsdorff repeated the story told before another jury at a previous trial in July, 1934.

Rising from the witness stand and walking halfway across the courtroom. Gilsdorff shook his finger at Allen Comer of Sioux City, Ia., a defendant in the case, and identified him as one of the swindlers.

Largest Loss Uncovered.

Gilsdorff's loss of $150,000 is the largest brought out by the government in its case against the five defendants charged with operating a gigantic swindle which extracted $2,500,000 from a sucker list of seventy persons.

Besides Comer, the government is attempting to convict William J. Graham and James C. McKay, gambling kings and licensed vice operators of Reno; Boies Heed of Phoenix, Ariz., and Thomas W. Sloan of New Britain, Conn. The trial is before Judge Willis Van Devanter, 78 years old, a retired justice of the Supreme court of the United States.

Gilsdorff, a short, bald man with a gray mustache, told the court that his troubles began in May of 1930 when he and Mrs. Gilsdorff stopped at the Majestic hotel in Hot Springs, Ark., on a motor trip. Sitting in the lobby, Gilsdorff struck up an acquaintance with a man who gave his name as William Hyde.

Come-on Man Pleads Guilty.

The friendly Mr. Hyde in reality was Walter W. Hamlin of Eureka Springs, Ark., who pleaded guilty in the Gilsdorff swindle in 1936 and received a year and a half sentence.

The Chicagoan was followed on the stand by Alfred Henry Smith, a retired teacher of architecture, living in Portland, Ore., who lost $12,000 to the swindlers.

After Smith's story court was adjourned. The faces of the twelve jurymen, who have been locked up for six days, beamed with smiles when Judge Van Devanter told them they would be shepherded to a movie over the week-end.

COST OF LIVING IN GERMANY IS FAR OVER COST HERE

A survey of food prices in Chicago yesterday disclosed that the cost to the consumer here is much less than the cost to the consumer in Germany, where the Nazi government has used artificial means in an unsuccessful effort to benefit the farmer. A comparison of the consumer costs follows:

| | Germany. | Chicago. |
|---|---|---|
| Round steak, 1 lb.. | 60c | 26½c to 39c |
| Pork rib, 1 lb. ..... | 30c | 19c to 24c |
| Canned peas, 2 lb.. | 40c | 16⅔c |
| Lettuce, 1 head ... | 20c | 5c |
| Prunes, 1 lb. ...... | 30c to 40c | 10c to 16c |
| Oranges, 1 ......... | 8c to 15c | 2½c |
| Swiss cheese, 1 lb. | 53c | 35c |
| Butter, 1 lb. ....... | 60c | 37c |
| Flour, 1 lb. ........ | 10c to 14c | 2½c |

The Nazi government's manipulations are reported to be plunging the farmers of the nation deeply into debt instead of increasing their financial returns.

Plan Polar 'Rescue'

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, Jan. 29.—Plans have been completed for the removal of the soviet union's north polar party from the ice floe upon which it has been drifting since last May. The decision was announced by Prof. Otto J. Schmidt, head of the Great Northern Sea Route administration, after a radio conference with Ivan Papanin, leader of the polar party. It was decided to take off the four scientists, all of whom are in good health, by airplane in March.

The icebreaker Taimyr, carrying 73 persons, including Prof. Schmidt, and three airplanes will sail from Murmansk, Russia, about Feb. 10. It should arrive in the ice fields about Feb. 18, just at the end of the polar night.

The rescuers plan to remove Papanin and his companions before the floe enters the Atlantic ocean through Denmark strait, the 130 mile wide passage between Greenland and Iceland, where the scientists would be confronted by heavy ice pressure.

AUSTRIAN NAZIS ACTIVE ON EVE OF BERLIN FESTIVAL

VIENNA, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Nazis, whose party was outlawed in 1934, were active tonight on the eve of the fifth anniversary of Adolf Hitler's assumption of the chancellorship in Germany. Streets in some districts of Vienna were plastered with leaflets in which "revenge" for the recent arrests of Nazi leaders was forecast.

[Several hundred Austrian Nazis were arrested Thursday to thwart plans for a putsch or terroristic demonstrations against the government. Most of them were to be held in "protective detention" until after today's celebrations in Germany.]

A stench bomb exploded in the ballroom of the Royal Castle Hofburg while state detectives were holding their annual ball there. Flaming wooden swastikas were seen floating down the Danube. Reports from Styria and Salzburg said huge bonfires were seen burning on mountain tops.

The government announced during the day that Dr. Leopold Tavs, Austrian Nazi leader who was arrested Thursday, will be formally charged with high treason.

Chicagoan's $480,000 Gift to Village Upheld

Versailles, Ind., Jan. 29.—(AP)—The right of James H. Tyson, wealthy Chicagoan, to give his native village of Versailles $480,000 in new buildings was upheld yesterday by Circuit Judge Sam A. Donnelley. Tyson, cofounder of a Chicago drug company, set up a trust fund eight years ago to give this Ripley county seat of 523 persons a new school, waterworks, library, sewage disposal plant and church. The court action was to clarify the trust fund's terms.

FOCUS NATION'S EYES THIS WEEK ON SYPHILIS WAR

Chicago to Co-operate in Observances.

Wednesday is national social hygiene day, and the American Social Hygiene association and its affiliated state and city agencies will call attention throughout the country to its educational campaign against venereal disease.

Asserting that three of four syphilis infections are acquired by persons between 15 and 30 years old, the association has taken protection of youth as the keynote of the campaign to raise $500,000 for its work.

Plan Fair Exhibits.

The money is to be spent on antivenereal disease motion pictures, touring trailer exhibits, field workers, lecturers, instructive pamphlets, venereal disease research, New York's world's fair exhibits, an international social hygiene conference at the fair, and salaries of nurses and physicians.

The national program will culminate in radio network broadcasts. Gen. John J. Pershing, chairman of the association's anti-syphilis committee; Dr. Thomas Parran, United States surgeon-general, and Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of the association and of Leland Stanford university, will speak at 10:45 p. m. Wednesday. Dr. J. H. J. Upham, president of the American Medical association, and Dr. Livingston Farrand, president emeritus of Cornell, will be heard on Thursday at 10:30 p. m.

These broadcasts are being supplemented in Chicago by a series of eight anti-syphilis broadcasts throughout the week.

On Chicago Program.

The Chicago program will include three speeches by Maj. Bascomb Johnson, the association's director of investigations. On Wednesday at 8 p. m. he will address a mass meeting sponsored by the American Youth Congress at Lewis institute, 1951 Madison street, in coöperation with the board of health and the Illinois Social Hygiene league.

At a meeting sponsored by the Juvenile Protective association and the anti-vice Committee of Fifteen on Thursday at 12:30 p. m. in the Union League club, 65 West Jackson boulevard, Johnson will discuss "Commercialized Vice in Chicago: What Can We Do About it?"

Speaking at Woman's Club.

That evening at 6:15 he will speak at a dinner meeting in the Chicago Woman's club, 72 East 11th street, sponsored by the Illinois Social Hygiene league and the Council of Social Agencies. He will discuss the Chicago venereal disease program.

The Y. M. C. A. hotel, 826 South Wabash avenue, will conduct a three day program, beginning Tuesday at 8 p. m.

Dr. Louis E. Schmidt, chairman of the mayor's anti-syphilis committee, will report on the city's campaign Wednesday at 11 a. m. at the annual convention of the Chicago diocese of the Episcopal church, in the Church of Epiphany, 201 South Ashland avenue.

The Central Y. M. C. A. college, 19 South La Salle street, is arranging for group syphilis tests of faculty and students and will follow this with an educational program. Meetings of day and evening college groups for tests are being arranged for either Tuesday or Wednesday.

POWERS BATTLE ON RADIO SHORT WAVE LENGTHS

Fight for Allocations as Propaganda Aids.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 29.—[Special.]—Whether or not it is premonitory of the widely heralded future world war of dictatorships against democracies the "war of the ether" is already raging between these rival aggregations of powers.

With autocratic Russia, Germany, and Italy broadcasting subversive propaganda by high powered short wave radio to the British empire, France, the United States, and other American republics, and with the democratic powers beginning to employ the same weapon in defense, a major battle in the "war of the ether" will be fought around a conference table at Cairo beginning Feb. 1.

Treaty to Be Revised.

Assembled will be delegates from more than a score of countries in the quinquennial International Telecommunications conference to revise the international treaty on communications between nations by telegraph, cable, telephone, and radio. Chief subject of controversy will be the reallocation to nations of radio short wave lengths.

Pitted against each other in this contest will be on the one side the dictatorships seeking allocation to Germany, Russia, and Italy of additional wave lengths, in order to extend their radio propaganda operations, and on the other the democracies seeking to hold the dictatorships to their present channels of the ether if not to obtain additional wave lengths for themselves.

Heading the American delegation which recently sailed for Cairo is Senator Wallace White [R., Maine], a leading authority on radio. Other members are Capt. H. C. Hooper, former communications chief of the navy; Lieut. E. K. Jett, chief engineer of the federal communications commission, and Francis C. De Wolf of the state department's treaty division.

Considers Another Delegate.

To reinforce this delegation the President may dispatch also Commander T. A. M. Craven, member of the communications commission who last month at Havana successfully negotiated the treaty reordering the uses of wave lengths among North and Central American countries and prescribing new technical paths for South America.

At the close of the Havana conference the Latin-American delegates joined in a plea that Commander Craven be sent to Cairo to represent the interests of all American countries in the impending battle over short wave lengths with the dictatorships, chiefly Germany and Italy, which specialize on propagandizing Latin-America.

At all events the United States delegation will bear the responsibility of protecting the interests of all the American republics and everybody is praying that it will write the exception to the oft-repeated comment that "the United States never lost a war and never won a conference."

British Set Example.

Curiously enough, although the democracies are now desperately striving to cope with the propaganda deluge from the autocracies, it was from one of the democracies that the dictatorships learned the uses of the short wave length for their own peculiar purposes. Five or six years ago the British government initiated short wave broadcasting to the farthest reaches of the British empire. The programs of news and high class entertainment were designed for British empire consumption exclusively. There was no propaganda aimed at other nations.

Der Fuehrer Hitler, Duce Mussolini, and Dictator Stalin were quick to note the possibilities of the British use of radio. Soviet Russia organized the same sort of short wave broadcast ostensibly to reach all parts of the vast Russian territories but colored the news with Red propaganda. Soon the soviets were broadcasting in 57 languages and in German, creating no end of commotion in Germany. Hitler finally decreed imprisonment to any one tuning in on Moscow and many Germans are now languishing in jail for that offense.

Duce Retaliates on Britain.

Mussolini seized upon the idea to retaliate upon Great Britain and France for the policy of sanctions they caused the league of nations to direct against Italy in the war with Ethiopia. From the high powered Italian station at Bari propaganda was broadcast in Arabic and other native languages of French and British possessions in Africa and the near east which stirred up a great deal of native discontent.

To the Italian propaganda broadcasts in Arabic has been attributed the insurgency of the Arabs against British rule in mandated Palestine, with all the riots, assassinations and other disorders that have followed. The Italians spread this subversive propaganda in a cunning and comprehensive manner. They distributed to the Arab villages in Palestine free of charge, radio sets without dials for tuning in on broadcasting stations promiscuously. These sets could be tuned in on Bari only. So the Arabs listened to the Italian broadcasts for nothing.

Propaganda Interspersed.

The Italian broadcasts in Arabic were extremely attractive. They featured crooners of Arabian songs and other music dear to the hearts of the Arabs, with propaganda neatly interspersed in faultless Arabic designed to create a spirit of dissatisfaction with British rule. The British, waxing desperate, essayed to adopt the same method by way of defense. From London they broadcast programs in Arabic intended to inspire confidence in British rule. But the programs were accounted too highbrow, consisting largely of speeches by friendly Arabs. And the British had no crooner in Arabic. Result was that the Arabs tuned out London and partook exclusively of the Italian pabulum. The last heard of this contest was a diplomatic discussion between London and Rome of a propaganda truce.

Kenmore, N. Y., Jan. 29.—(AP)—New York state moved today to "deport" a seven month old Great Dane puppy because its ears have been clipped.

A police justice told the dog's owner, Miss Eleanor Ailinger, that New York penal law forbids ownership of a dog with clipped ears. Miss Ailinger told the court she would take the Dane back to Cleveland, where the operation was performed early this month.

The case marked the start of a campaign against ear clipping by the Buffalo Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

FRIENDS EXPECT CULBERTSONS TO BE REWED SOON

New York, Jan. 29.—[Special.]—Friends of the bridge playing Ely Culbertsons today forecast that their divorce, effected in Reno only last Wednesday, would be of short duration. They expect a remarriage soon.

Mrs. Culbertson, ill with a throat infection, returned to New York late today. Jack Korshin, the Culbertson counsel, confirmed the fact that she would take up her residence at her former apartment.

Mr. Culbertson, now in Europe, will resume residence right next door. During the marriage the two apartments were linked by doors. Now the doors have been bricked up.

Mr. Korshin said Mrs. Culbertson would resume work immediately on a new book for contract bridge beginners, and said he expected Mr. Culbertson to help her.

PLENTY OF RADIO TALK, BUT ARABS CALL IT HOOEY

Flattered by British and Italian Broadcasts.

BY B. NOON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ALEXANDRETTA, Syria, Jan. 29.—The ether is filled with talk these days—talk such as Britain, on the one hand, and Italy on the other want Arabs to hear. To one living in the near east, however, it is apparent that, though the Arabs are listening, they are not putting much credence in what comes to them by short wave radio.

Many poor Moslems were delighted when Great Britain began to broadcast Jan. 3 from its powerful new station at Daventry. It was built for a radio counterattack against the pro-Italian broadcasts which the Italians had been drumming on Arab ears for months from Bari, Italy.

Expected New Receivers.

With two powerful nations begging for their ears, the Arabs had visions of fine new radio receivers being presented to them — perhaps two for every oasis. Their hopes seemed justified since Italian receivers actually had found their way into Arab hands.

Though more new receivers have not been forthcoming, large numbers of Arabs in Syria, Palestine, Transjordan, Iraq, and Saudi Arabia have listened to the news and comment broadcast from England.

They have heard flattery of the Arabs from both sides. They have heard from the British station, for instance, that Arab countries under British mandate are in a most flourishing situation.

Find Arabs Not Impressed.

After listening to the Arabs' comments, however, an observer gathers that they are not much impressed.

Mouine Al-Madi, a member of the Arab higher committee and a leader of the Arab revolutionaries in Palestine, was asked for his idea about the Arabic broadcasting programs from England. For two months he found refuge in Beirut, Lebanon, but now has been compelled by the French commission to stay in Alexandretta.

"The broadcasts mean nothing to us," he replied. "If Great Britain really wishes to serve the Arabs let her serve them by settling the problem of Palestine."

He was reminded that Great Brittain is sending a new technical commission to Palestine. It will study the situation there and determine whether a former plan to split Palestine into three parts—Jewish, Arab, and British mandated — shall be altered.

"Whatever the commission decides is useless if it does not agree with our demands, which are well known by every one," Mouine Al-Madi said.

Dothan, Ala., Jan. 29.—[Special.]—Rehobeth High school here is closed, the town is upset, and the entire senior class is on strike today because Coach Hugh A. Wynn of the basketball team has been discharged for having dates with a student. He was accused of paying court to several girls and with writing them love notes in class, but he has denied this, saying that his heart is set on only one girl, pretty Mary Grubbs, 18 years old. Furthermore, both he and the girl say they are engaged. Meanwhile the school board refuses to rehire Wynn and the students refuse to go back until he is reinstated.

MRS. TEGTMEYER ASKS HIGH COURT FOR HER LIBERTY

Mrs. Daisy Tegtmeyer filed a petition with the State Supreme court yesterday appealing for reversal of a decision made in December by the Illinois Appellate court ordering her return to the county jail. She was freed on bond last July after being held in the jail almost four years, and is still free pending the appeal. She was jailed for contempt of court in refusing to account to the Cook County court for $30,000 of the estate of her father-in-law, Henry Tegtmeyer, for which she was administrator.

Mrs. Tegtmeyer, who is 51 years old, is in ill health and living at 6033 Vernon avenue, her attorney, Charles S. Harvey, said. The Supreme court has previously upheld the County court in ordering the accounting.

INFANT BORN 10 MINUTES AFTER MOTHER'S DEATH

Uniontown, Pa., Jan. 29.—[U. P.]—A brown eyed baby girl born 10 minutes after the death of its mother tonight apparently was winning the fight for life that seemed so hopeless at the time of her birth. The infant was aided by all the help that medical science could give. The baby, weighing eight pounds and apparently normal, was born at 1:15 a. m. to Mrs. Helen Kovach, 42, wife of a Greensboro, Pa., coal miner, through a Cæsarean operation performed the minute Mrs. Kovach died. The exact cause of the mother's death was not determined. Mrs. Kovach was the mother of 12 other children, all living.

WPA COMPLETES WRITING OF GUIDE BOOK TO ILLINOIS

Awaits Washington O. K. Before Publication.

Writing of the WPA Illinois guide book has been completed. Approval of a committee of state historians under the leadership of Paul M. Angle, state historical librarian, and approval of WPA editors in Washington must now be obtained before the guide can be published.

This announcement was made yesterday by John T. Frederick, noted writer and editor, who is in charge of the WPA staf which has been compiling material. Frederick was appointed director of the Federal Writers' project, the branch of WPA which is doing the book, last summer when radicalism and dissension were reported to have practically stopped work on the guide.

Some Sent to Washington.

"The work of the men and women who have compiled the material and written the book is done," Frederick said. "Most of the manuscript has been approved by the state committee and some of it has gone on to Washington.

"The manuscript has been completely rewritten since I took the directorship. We have attempted to treat the history of Illinois in a scholarly, objective fashion, but to write it in a way that will interest every one."

Frederick said that the manuscript as written would not, in his opinion, be open to the criticism that was made of the Massachusetts guide. Many objected that the Sacco and Vanzetti case was glorified by WPA radicals in writing the Massachusetts guide.

"Such things as the Haymarket riot are part of the history of Illinois," Frederick said, "but it is not our place to espouse any side's cause in this book. We have tried to take the purely objective view."

Washington May Make Changes.

Frederick admitted, however, that the treatment of controversial subjects may be changed in the Washington headquarters, where elements in authority in the writers' project may decide that radicalism should be brought to the fore.

Prior to Frederick's assumption of the state directorship the Illinois project was reported split between two factions, with the radicals and Communists dominating the work. It is said that Frederick has since weeded out most of these and has kept the remainder under tight rein in the way the guide manuscript was prepared.

BASIC CAUSE OF DEPRESSION.

The improvement of the standard of living depends upon the accumulation of capital and its application to the creation of more goods. In order for capital to be accumulated somebody has to save. The commonest type of saver is an individual. When he deposited his savings in a bank and the bank made a loan of his funds for some productive purpose, our saver made it possible for a borrower to produce more goods. Some savers preferred to invest in stocks and bonds and thus they made their savings directly available for productive purposes.

If a thrifty man lends his money to a spendthrift relative who then uses the money for his own living expenses, the capital disappears. If the borrower happens to be a government, instead of a poor relation, the result is exactly the same. The fact that the government gives an engraved piece of paper called a bond and the relative a mere i. o. u. on a plain piece of paper, does not save the capital. The capital came from saving. When it was turned over to the government and shot away in a war, embodied in useless public works, or even spent for a purpose wholly humanitarian, the capital ceased to be available, to be embodied in factories, machines, buildings, railway cars, and ships.

Some have been confused because, for a time at least, the government bond which was given in exchange for capital can be sold. But when it is sold to a new saver it means that one person's savings are being substituted for another. One country after another has learned that a government cannot create wealth with a printing press. Let us hope that from other nations' bad experience we may learn that lesson.

Keep firmly in mind that capital, the source of the material betterment of the people, can only be accumulated by saving, and consider what is now happening in the United States. We are not only not accumulating more capital but we are using up what we already had and making it increasingly difficult for any to be accumulated in the future.

Capital comes from spending less than income. A large part of the income is now taken as taxes. The federal income tax takes an increasing proportion as the income rises. For the wealthiest individuals, who might be expected to save most readily, the rate is highest. For the top incomes the rate goes up to 79 per cent. Of course, the government itself might conceivably do the saving and make the excess of its income over receipts available for productive purposes. But why speak of what might be done with a surplus when we have only deficits?

The government not only uses all the funds it collects by taxation but it borrows and consumes a large part of the funds which the taxgatherer missed. It does that in subtle ways. The department of labor reported recently that the average Chicago family with an income of $4,000 to $5,000 a year has savings of $589, out of which insurance premiums must be paid. That is the amount which on the average one group of Chicago families might add to the available capital of the country.

Of this amount $287 goes for insurance premiums. The insurance companies last year increased their funds by more than a billion 400 million dollars. More than half of that amount was immediately invested in government bonds, the proceeds of which the government has already spent. The government bonds which the companies hold are merely records of capital which the government has already used up.

Chicago families of the income group we are considering have $302 left after paying the insurance premiums. This may be used to buy baby bonds, and Chicagoans are the biggest baby bond buyers, or it may be deposited in the banks. If invested in baby bonds the capital is directly provided to the great consumer of capital. If the money is deposited in the banks it is in large part used to lend more money to the government. Thus, one way or another, the government obtains nearly all of the $589 which can be saved by a Chicago family in the $4,000 to $5,000 bracket. It has its tentacles out drawing in more and more of the capital of the country. It takes a large part immediately as taxes. What is left the government borrows from the banks and insurance companies.

Corporations formerly did a large part of the job of saving. It was out of corporate savings of prior years that a large part of the money was obtained to build up our most successful businesses. But under the surplus earnings tax the corporations may save only by paying a tax which was intended to be so exorbitant that corporations would cease to save rather than pay it.

Those who may have accumulated funds by saving prior to the perfection of this scheme to make thrift impossible are provided for elsewhere. The estate tax authorizes the government to confiscate a portion of the fortune of decedents up to 70 per cent of the total estate. This is in addition to the state inheritance tax laws. And what does the government do with the capital of estates which it takes over? This capital goes into the common pot and is consumed exactly the same as the tax money which it collects on income and the savings bank and insurance money which it borrows.

By using the capital of the country for spending money during the last few years we have several times had the feeling that prosperity was back. The fact must be faced that we cannot have a return of prosperity under present conditions. We cannot have good times, dependably good times, for a sustained period until we stop using up our capital and make it possible for new capital to be accumulated and invested in productive enterprise. Poverty lies ahead for the individual who wastes his patrimony. It is no different with nations.

DINING OUT IN CHICAGO.

Every so often somebody reprints one of those stupendous bills of fare which used to greet the clientele of the old Grand Pacific hotel on Jackson boulevard. The art of dining in those days was heroic and monumental in scale. There was no such thing as a light luncheon. When a man sat down to eat he ate as the gods eat on Olympus. He started with oysters from Cape Cod, passed on to terrapin, prairie chicken, buffalo steak, pumpkin pie. No doubt there were vegetables also. The wine was Burgundy, the coffee Arabian, and the cigars from Havana.

Incredible as it may appear, many of the customers survived to partake of tearoom fare. They saw one after another of the internationally renowned restaurants of the '80s and '90s disappear. The eating habits of the community were changing. Chicago was built by men whose appetites were formed on the farm and grew to maturity in the railroad and lumber camps. The city-bred sons had less zest at table and were more concerned for their waistlines. The gradual disappearance of wild life from the prairies and the laws forbidding trafic in game removed an important section from the menu cards. Slowly the imperial concept of what constituted adequate nourishment for an adult passed from men's minds.

Some of the old restaurants survived the change in taste and were improved by it, but few of them could survive prohibition. Chicago has one superb chophouse which came through, two or three German restaurants, two or perhaps three hotel dining rooms of the first class, three private clubs which can trace their tradition straight back, in an unbroken line, to Grand Pacific days. These places always were good and they held to their line even in the years of drouth and depression when every month saw another famous old house close its doors for the last time.

Of recent years the restaurant business in Chicago has enjoyed something of a renaissance. We have lost many of our three-star establishments of the order of De Jonghe's and the Tip-Top, but there are indications that their places are gradually being filled by newcomers. Some of the speakeasies acquired distinction for their cooking during the dry epoch and have since enhanced their reputations. New places are springing up. The managers are learning that good food is no less an attraction in a restaurant than a good floor show.

It begins to look as if Chicago is once more to become one of the great capitals of the epicurean world.

THE BRITISH GAVE THE PACIFIC TO JAPAN.

Japan bought one white chip in the world war for which in the end the United States bought every one a stack of blues. When all of Germany's possessions were shoved across the board to the winners Japan cashed in for all of Germany's Pacific islands north of the equator and Great Britain took the southern one for its antipodean children.

There was then in existence the Anglo-Japanese naval alliance and things seemed all rosy in the far east for John Bull. Later the price of dissolving that alliance was to be the treaty of Washington, with the sinking of American warships, the loss of American sea supremacy, and the barring of American fortifications west of Hawaii. America at Paris had asked for a communications station on the island of Yap in the Pacific. That was almost too much for the peace conference.

The generosity to Japan and the gyp of the United States may have seemed to constitute brilliant European diplomacy at the time. Its luster is dim in London now. Great Britain consolidated Japan's position in the Pacific and reduced America's naval power.

Balfour's earldom may have been dearly bought. But there's the situation as it exists, and it concerns Great Britain more than it does us. The British created it. Let them bear the responsibility.

OUR UNTIDY STREETS.
[Cincinnati Enquirer.]

Cartons, bags, cellophane wrappings—whenever you buy anything these days it has some kind of a protective or sanitary covering. If it is only a cigar, a package of cigarettes, or a candy bar, it comes in a cellophane overcoat.

Careless people throw these wrappings, these bags, and papers, in the street. That is why downtown Cincinnati is so littered up, why so many of our streets are unsightly because of the trash that is discarded thoughtlessly. No wonder the street cleaning department can't keep up with its job when the people whom it serves behave so badly.

Cincinnati is not a spotless town, and compared with any European city it is untidy and dirty. But no use blaming the city authorities for conditions which are our own fault. Some of us have chimneys that smoke, and apparently all of us regard the streets and sidewalks as places to throw all kinds of odds and ends. Really it is a case where each and every one of us should reform.

EUROPE'S NEXT BATTLEFIELD?

Edmond Taylor, Paris correspondent of The Chicago Tribune, has just completed an extensive survey of Czechoslovakia. Here is the second article:

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia. — Czechoslovakia's climate is one of the things which accounts for the big differences in character in various sections of the country.

Between western Bohemia and Ruthenia, which is the eastern tip of the republic, the difference in climate is roughly as between New York and western Nebraska. Ruthenia, however, is not as dry as Nebraska, owing to the influence of the Carpathian mountains, real ones these, contemporaries of the Alps.

In Bohemia both climate and the soil, which is neither rich nor poor, make the struggle for existence hard, but not too hard for a virile race. It has made the Czechs the most energetic, industrious, thrifty, and practical of the Slav races. Climate—and living side by side with Germans for centuries—has given them many of the virtues and a few of the failings of the Prussians.

* *

Slovaks and Ruthenians, living in a land where human possibilities are more conditioned by the seasons, have the softness of people who live mostly indoors in winter. A thousand years of Hungarian oppression have not helped to develop initiative among them. Hence, the feeling about the Czechs, like the Austrian feeling toward the Prussians—admiration and resentment.

This psychological nuance between Slovak and Czech, barely discernible in language, is well defined in politics and one of the secondary but important problems of the young republic.

Upon reaching Prague, you debark at the Wilson station and climb into a wheezy taxicab which heads down Hooverova street toward the center of town. A rather odd juxtaposition for Americans, but perfectly logical from the Czech point of view.

Without Wilson there might not have been any Czechoslovakia. He dealt the coup-de-grace to the Austro-Hungarian empire which Masaryk and Benes had been patiently undermining, and after some hesitation he gave his great moral authority to Masaryk's contention that the frontiers of the new republic should be drawn in such a way as to include nearly 700,000 Hungarians and more than 3,000,000 Germans. The allied statesmen at first thought 1,500,000 Germans would be enough, but Masaryk convinced them that the bigger the German minority was, the better it could protect itself.

Unless you have come to Czechoslovakia for your gout or to look at peasant costumes in the Carpathians, you will run into a peculiar difficulty in putting your impressions on paper.

An alert tourist quickly discovers that instead of visiting a country, he is studying an institution and grappling with an international problem. He thus finds himself in a controversial atmosphere reminiscent of Geneva or soviet Russia [not that there is anything "Red" about this young republic], and these associations pave the way for a new discovery: Czechoslovakia is an institution and a problem and also a cause.

Coming down on the train, I read a little brochure called "German and Czech," by S. Grant Duff, an English woman journalist. The preface by Hugh Dalton, British Laborite, concluded:

"When we speak of collective security we think, among the first hypothetical cases, of Czechoslovakia. Better than any of its neighbors this little state has both preached and practiced democracy. Masaryk's country makes a strong appeal to all who love justice and freedom better than brute force."

* * *

On my first day in Prague I called at the foreign office, where I received a cordial welcome and an armful of propaganda booklets. Accompanying both was a little lecture discreetly interwoven with the same idea—Czechoslovakia is an international problem and a cause—the cause of democracy. Naturally, though, the official Czech viewpoint is that the minority question is purely an internal matter.

Later in the same day I visited the editorial offices of Die Zeit, official organ of the discontented German minority led by Konrad Henlein. I found the followers of the Sudeten fuehrer in complete agreement with the Czech foreign office and the British Labor party that Czechoslovakia was an international problem—and a cause.

"This misrule by 7,500,000 Czechs of minorities totaling over 6,000,000 is a grave menace to European peace," they said, "and an injustice which the civilized world cannot overlook. As a representative of one of the nations which helped establish this state, it is your duty to denounce in the American press the persecution of three and a quarter million Germans carried on in the name of democracy."

* * *

Just as liberal and pacifist elements abroad support the Czech national idea, so does Germany—and to a lesser degree Italy—support the idea of the German minority. Every day in the German Nazi press you will find allegations that the treatment of the German minority in Czechoslovakia is an intolerable injustice and—to get around Goethe's dictum—an international disorder of the gravest kind.

Everywhere you travel in this country it is the same thing. Government officials, minority opposition leaders, and men in the street in both camps strike the same note. These people are completely and intimately Europeans, and, to a greater extent than any other people, world citizens. Hence the unavoidable tendency to see Czechoslovakia as a debating forum, a field of force.

This is just as characteristic a feature of the Czechoslovak landscape as the hop fields, the myriad ponds of Bohemia famous for their carp, and the darkly wooded, knobby hill tops, remnants of the Hercynian forest which blocked the Roman legions.

Let us resist for the moment the tendency to analyze this Czechoslovak problem, and, accepting it simply as a feature of the landscape, go on to consider other features of the landscape, starting with the scattered impressions that one picks up during a stroll through Prague.

* * *

Prague looms large on the landscape of Czechoslovakia. It is the largest city in the country, the only real large one, about 800,000 population, in a land where most of the citizens still live pretty close to the soil. Smallish a American towns go, and the morphology is apparent in a short walk—an ancient core, a museum city like Nuremberg or Florence, only alive, a nondescript and vaguely transitional zone of 19th century buildings, and then an outer ring of modern constructions pushing feelers far out into the countryside, office buildings and apartments together, revealing an almost mushroom growth since the world war.

While there are few factories, you see a great many banks and company offices. If you ask, you will discover that a great many industries from all parts of the country, including the German parts, have established administrative headquarters here because the taxes are lower.

The Czechs have an adjective for Prague, Zlata Praha, or Golden Prague. On a dull day it looks only brown, but in certain lights you can see the gold.

The Czechs do not need any special light. It is always golden to them, gleaming in their thoughts like gold, because it was the capital of the kingdom of Bohemia in the days of their greatness and because for three centuries it was a lost dream and because today they have it back.

MENTAL UPSETS ARE PREVENTABLE.

MANY societies, composed of public spirited citizens, have been formed to spread information on tuberculosis, cancer, and heart disease. Each cause is worthy and much good has been accomplished. There is, however—in my opinion—no topic dealing with public health that is of greater importance than mental hygiene. A movement, which has for its primary objective the study of conditions leading to mental disease and their elimination, was started nearly thirty years ago by Clifford Beers. The goal, of course, is good health, the ability to think clearly, the maintenance of poise and judgment.

Medical men have come to recognize that an individual may not fit every environment into which he is plunged. There may be something physical which militates to his disadvantage; or an emotional reaction may influence the heart, the blood vessels, or the digestive tract. In other words, the patient is studied—not as though he were abnormal in any way, but as one in whom the physical may affect thinking or behavior or vice versa. No one of us is merely muscles, bones, and organs. Each person is endowed with a mystic maze of sensibilities—all closely interrelated.

But some may say, "Why be interested in crazy people? They are doomed anyway; we can do nothing for them." Efforts at rehabilitation are so successful that a high percentage of those who suffer mental breakdowns can be restored to equilibrium. But—for argument's sake—let us assume that it is not true. We can point nevertheless to the fact that before the patient became utterly bereft of his senses there existed—in all probability—early signs of odd behavior which should have told those about him that he needed help. Unhappiness and disappointments should be rooted out of life's fabric as far as possible. We cannot escape the world's buffets entirely, but we can prepare ourselves for them so that when they come they will give us only minor concern. Then they will not—as many now permit them to do—blacken the whole horizon of life, dominating every waking moment.

Every thinking man and woman must shudder inwardly whenever he sees a child cowering with fear under the rule of a neighborhood bully or a misunderstanding parent, because that youngster is likely to become a ready victim to apprehensions which to you and to me may mean little, but to the lad—everything.

If we can take this point of view we will realize why so many individuals are ineffectual—actually incapable of carrying on under their own power. They are prone to join the rush into invalidism, expressing in pain and other symptoms those psychic upsets which they are powerless to face.

The population of our hospitals for the mentally ill is growing far too rapidly. It may take two or three generations before we—the public—will become thoroughly conversant with saner methods of aiding these victims. To stop this stream of abnormals we must devote far more attention to the growing child so that when he arrives at adult status he will be emotionally stable.

Every parent should be acquainted with the principles of mental hygiene so that stormy episodes on the part of a child may be handled intelligently and safely. The number of immature adults whom we encounter almost daily is legion. Many still retain dependence—the leaning attitude of childhood. As long as there is some one on whom they can rely—all will go well. But take away the friendly prop and many thereafter will wander aimlessly like a ship without a helmsman—tacking this way or that as the winds and waves of chance direct.

One thing every one can do—we can help each other to as much satisfaction as truth allows. Without becoming Pollyannas, a word of encouragement when deserved will save many a situation and make of the day a period of productive accomplishment.

I have been unable to get my 2 year old son to take either orange or tomato juice and would prefer to give him his vitamin C in any form other than the tablets which I now mix in his food.

REPLY.

Pineapple juice is not as rich in vitamins as either orange or tomato juice, although its vitamin content is by no means poor. Train your child to drink all kinds of fruit juices. This takes time. Sweetening the liquids may help. Perhaps your son likes the fuss you make over him when he refuses these drinks.

VITAMIN D AND CEREALS.

Yes, unless a great deal of cereal food is eaten, in which case cod liver oil may be used to furnish additional units. Curiously enough, when cereals are used in large quantities, more vitamin D will be needed.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON. — Premier Mussolini's new naval building program, hailed in the Italian press as Italy's reply to British naval rearmament, arouses no surprise in admiralty quarters in London. British naval observers, after studying Il Duce's decision to add two new 35,000 ton battleships, twelve large destroyers, and an undisclosed number of submarines to Italy's naval strength, attribute it to two causes.

These are a growing realization in Rome of the bad strategical position into which the conquest of Abyssinia has plunged Italy and a desire to dazzle Germany and enhance Italian values as an ally.

Nervousness about the security of communications with East Africa obviously is growing in Rome, according to British sources. Mussolini's aim is to create a battle squadron of eight ships. The two new 35,000 ton battle cruisers are expected to be similar to the Littorio and Vittorio Veneto, launched last summer and due for delivery in the first half of 1939. These have a speed exceeding thirty knots and are armed with nine 15 inch and twelve 6 inch guns.

In addition to her four new ships, Italy has four old battleships. Of these the Cavour and Cesare, 23,622 tons, have been modernized. Their speed has been increased from twenty-two to twenty-seven knots and a battery of ten new 12.6 inch guns has been installed.

The remaining pair, Duilio and Doria, are undergoing the same process of modernization. Consequently, admiralty circles estimate, the projected battleship squadron of eight units should be in commission before the end of 1941.

By that date the other "triangle" powers will possess the following capital ships:

Japan: Two or four new ships, 35,000 tons or larger, mounting 16 inch guns; 10 older ships, 29,330 to 32,720 tons, armed with 16 inch and 14 inch guns.

Germany: Two ships, 26,000 tons, with 11 inch guns; three ships, 35,000 tons, with 15 inch guns.

Combined, the three powers should be able to muster at least twenty-five, and possibly twenty-seven, battleships, of which no fewer that eleven will be newly constructed.

Britain is building five 35,000 ton ships, with 14 inch guns, and probably will begin three or five more this year. These new ships also may be armed with heavier guns. In addition, Britain has fifteen older capital ships, most of which have been modernized.

Until recently the British government was understood to be aiming at a total strength of twenty-five battleships, but this figure, naval circles state, eventually may be increased.

France's reaction to the latest Italian move is being followed closely in Britain. With two naval fronts to defend, she has only four modern battleships built and building, and five old vessels, which have been partially modernized. A project for laying down three further ships of 35,000 tons, shelved last year, may be revived, according to well informed quarters here. In cruisers and destroyers, France is slightly inferior to Italy, and she is outnumbered in submarines.

The new Italian program makes no mention of cruisers, nineteen of which have been completed in the last ten years. Italy now has eighty-nine destroyers built or building, sixty-eight torpedo boats, and 120 motor torpedo boats.

The number of new submarines to be built is kept secret. At present Italy has 106 of these boats ready or building, and with the possible exception of Russia is the foremost world submarine power.

Italy's naval personnel, which stands at approximately 60,000, is to be increased substantially, according to reports from Rome.

HOUSING ARRANGEMENTS.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—We would like to know if there are any [1] city or state laws regulating the housing arrangements in a college dormitory. If so, will you please inform us, through the Chicago Tribune [2] as to the details of such laws, pertaining to the number in each room, sleeping arrangements, cubic feet of air space per person, elevator service, etc. In case there are such laws, how could we obtain copies of them? D. S.

1. We assume from the postmark on your card that you are interested in Chicago. There are various ordinances pertaining to housing arrangements but not distinguishing students from other persons.

2. Such an answer would be of undue length. You can look them up at the office of the city clerk, room 107, in the city hall.

What do you do when a fellow is from Indiana and a girl from Chicago? I am in this case. Tell me what we should do. Must we have two licenses? R. T.

If the girl resides in Chicago, presumably the marriage will be celebrated here and the license should be obtained here. Your facts are not clear to us.

JOINT TENANCY PROPERTY.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I would like information regarding some property in Kansas. There are four daughters and the property was in joint tenancy with my mother and father. They are dead.

1. Mother died in 1933 and my father married a few months later. In March, 1936, he died. But after his death I learned that [2] he made a will to his wife making her sole beneficiary of the property. We understood we would get a cash settlement some time after his death, but so far none of us have received anything. Before the death of my mother and father [3] I personally put my earnings in this property. 4. I would like to know if this will is legal and [5] could it be made without our knowledge? 6. Do we lose our rights as heirs? A. S.

1. This means that the joint property passed to your father as survivor.

2. If the will is so worded as to carry the property which he received as survivor in joint tenancy, then his children by his first wife would receive nothing unless they could set aside the will by proving undue influence or lack of mental capacity, which does not seem likely.

3. The materiality of this fact would depend on the understanding under which you made your contribution.

4. See preceding answers.
5. Yes.
6. See 4.

INCONSISTENT POLICIES.

Chicago, Jan. 26.—Mr. Roosevelt, in his press conference of Jan. 25, unwittingly offered one of the best arguments yet presented for the immediate repeal of the vicious undistributed profits tax. He said, "Those who believe in the profit system must recognize that those who get the profits when business is good must bear the losses when business is slack."

During the recent depression [not the present one, which can be directly charged to this undistributed profit tax along with other half-baked New Deal legislation] it is estimated business paid out nearly 20 billion dollars from the surpluses and reserves which had been built up in prosperous years, thus keeping plants open and labor employed.

Under the undistributed profits tax business is not allowed to rebuild those reserves and surpluses and consequently will not be in a position to do what Mr. Roosevelt says it should do and what it has always done heretofore.

If Mr. Roosevelt isn't careful some one will be accusing him of being inconsistent. G. H. VAN CLEVE.

HILL BILLIES.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—Well, a while ago when I heard that our beloved President was agoin' to bring the more abundant life to the Tennessee valley, I says to myself, now ain't it a shame that my kinfolks down there has got such a bad character; they could just as well be gittin' some of the 'lectric lights, washin' machines and refrigerators, and mebby a vacuum sweeper for the dirt floors in their cabins if they wasn't just so much poison to the New Dealers in Washington.

But they must a bin holdin' revival meetin's down there or somethin', because all to once they've got respectable, sittin' at the first table an' soppin' their corn pone in the pot liquor, right with the best of 'em, as you might say. For instance, take them two Chemical boys, Victor and Monsanto, that lived over on the mountain. Mon's brew wasn't so bad, but the stuff that used to come out of Vick's still would eat the lining out of a razorback's stummick. But now, here they are doin' their "cookin'" with 'lectricity and gittin' the 'lectricity from the revenuers, whadda think of that?

There was ole Arkansas Power. When I know'd old Ark he was the feudenest houn' dawg that ever shifted a cud of tobacco. He'd snipe off a competitor quickern you could say Andy Jackson, but he don't have to hit the trail no more; he's got the whole territory to hisself.

Then there's ole Uncle Aluminum Company. Why, Uncle Al was so bad they tried to git the law on him two or three times. But now look at him. He has wiped the tobacco juice off his chin and is hobnobbin' around with the Watts and Amperes of Washington.

Yes-sir-ee, it's been a great job of upliftin'. When you get a pair of ole sinners like Uncle Al and ole Ark to seek salvation, you're doin' tolerable well. HEP.

REMEDIES FOR THE RELIEF RACKET.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 24.—In the present state of our civilization there can be no doubt that relief has become a function of the government, be it federal, state, or local. Unfortunately, it has also become a racket and an important lever [even weapon] in the hands of the politicians. As a vote producer it is of almost unequaled efficiency. For these reasons I am afraid that the two suggestions I am about to make are as Utopian as is the permanent abolition of poverty or any other idealistic pipe dream.

Nevertheless I suggest: That any person receiving direct or indirect aid from any governmental agency shall, while receiving such aid, [1] be deprived of the right to vote and [2] have his or her driving license suspended.

I do not delude myself with any hope that such measures could be put into effect, but I am certain that if they were the number of persons on relief rolls of all sorts would drop with surprising rapidity and that the humanitarian ardors of the political gentry would cool just as quickly, with a proportionate drop in the relief funds they clamor for so loudly. JOHN HEARD.

TRANSPORTATION SUGGESTIONS.

Maywood, Ill., Jan. 26.—The writer of these lines is a rider of the Chicago transportation lines for over thirty years. Conditions have become altogether unbearable, dangerous and insanitary. It surely is the duty of the city council to change these conditions as soon as possible. Quite a little relief and accommodation can be given the public without a very great expense.

1. Give us the Madison street type of car on all through lines.
2. Give us a number of one-way drive streets to all parts of the city, to the city limits.
3. Give us four track elevated lines to all parts of the city with good express service.
4. Universal transfers between street car, elevated, and bus lines.

This would not cost so very much money and would solve the transportation problem in a very satisfactory manner. P. KOLB.

PARTY UPSTAIRS.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 27.—A bit of advice to "Flat Renter," whose family was disturbed by inconsiderate tenants until the wee hours of the morning. My cousin had a similar experience not long ago. She did not rap on the ceiling, but leaned on their door bell, and when the entertaining host threw open the door and blurted out "So what?" she quietly told him who she was and added: "Shall I call an ambulance or a police patrol wagon?" He evidently sensed the fact that she meant what she said. There was no more noise. DUD MAHONEY.

Evidently the plump boys reaching the golden age of 50 have not patronized the good doctor to any appreciable extent; hence his outburst. At any rate, to plump boys of 50 and over, life without any ache or pain would be very drab, indeed! CLAY T. HELD.

RATE CHICAGO AND OTHER BIG CITIES ON TAXES

Experts Also Study Cost of Governments.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

Despite a steady increase from the depression lows of 1933 governmental costs and the consequent tax burden are still lower, on most bases of comparison, in Chicago than many other major cities of the country.

Chicago tax bills apparently reached their post-depression peak in the 1936 levies. This peak, however, was still far below the all-time high of 1930. Completion of 1938 budgets made possible an estimate of 1938 tax levies a week ago in THE TRIBUNE which showed that the average 1938 tax bill will be 2 per cent lower than the 1936 bill, and approximately equal to the 1937 bills which will be paid this year.

Yardstick Is Problem.

There is no completely satisfactory method of comparing taxes and governmental costs of different cities, principally because there is no reliable yardstick. To begin with, no two cities of major size render exactly the same services to their citizens. And if they did, allowance for the relative efficiency with which services were performed would still leave their cost at varying levels.

Mayor Daniel Hoan of Milwaukee had some of these intangible factors in mind when he once objected to the use of a purely fiscal yardstick for measuring governmental efficiency.

"Never mind what the tax levies are," he asserted. "The test of good government is not how much is spent but how much the people get for what they spend."

Fall Back on Statistics.

Unfortunately no method has ever been found to measure how much the people get. Comparisons have to be based on statistical information about tax rates and per capita costs and revenue. In this instance Chicago is compared on both bases with the other eight cities in the United States with a population exceeding 750,000.

Governmental complexity and costs naturally increase as a city grows. Even within the range taken, from 7,154,300 in New York to 786,900 in Boston, it should be expected that governmental costs would be higher, regardles sof governmental efficiency, in the larger cities.

In per capita costs, or costs per inhabitant, Chicago makes its most favorable showing. One of the best of these measures is the per capita cost of operating departments of governments. This leaves out of consideration pensions, bond and interest costs, and construction costs, but includes in Chicago the operating costs of all local governments, including a pro rata share of those of the county, forest preserve district, and sanitary district.

How Operating Costs Compare.

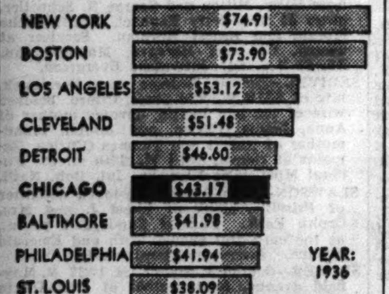
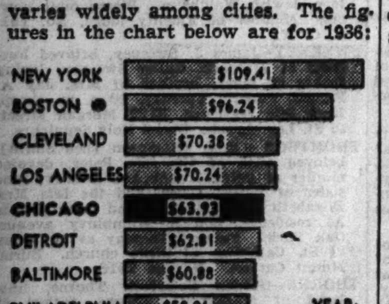
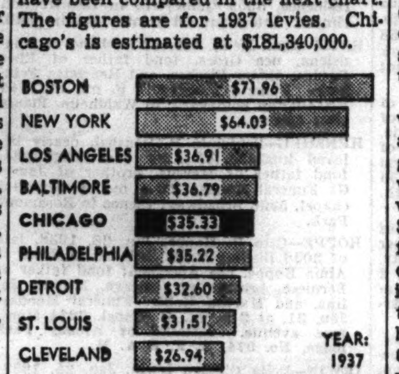
Per capita operating costs of the nine largest American cities for 1936, the latest year for which such information is available, are shown on the chart below. Chicago's 1938 costs will not vary greatly from the 1936 figure, but no information is available on later trends in the other cities.



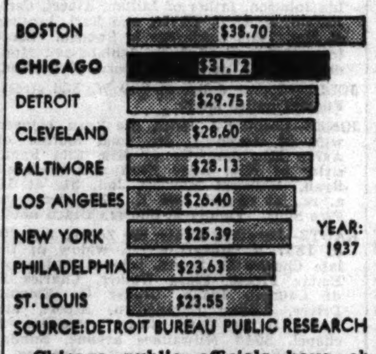
Another per capita comparison which is significant is that of general revenue. This includes property taxes, licenses, fees, tax penalties, and subventions from state and federal governments, but does not include revenue from public service enterprises, such as the Chicago water system, since the scope of these services varies widely among cities. The figures in the chart below are for 1936:



Per capita tax bills are another valuable form of comparison, since such taxes, when they are passed along in the form of rents or merchandise prices, are a general charge on the whole community. Cities derive a varying proportion of their property tax funds from personal property, ranging from none in New York, which taxes personalty in other manners, to 43 per cent in Baltimore. For that reason only real estate taxes have been compared in the next chart. The figures are for 1937 levies. Chicago's is estimated at $181,340,000.

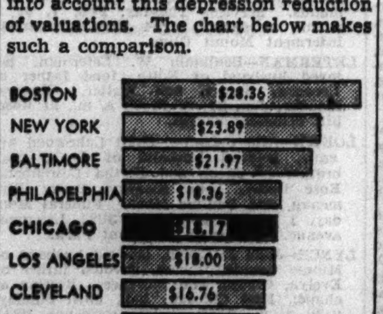


Another common yardstick is the so-called adjusted tax rate, a method originated some years ago by the Detroit bureau of public research. Chicago makes its poorest showing on this basis, in which the adjustment consists of figuring the rate on the full value of assessed property, rather than the assessed value, as it is figured on the tax books. The next chart compares these adjusted rates for 1937.



Chicago public officials have objected to the use of this yardstick as unfair. There is apparently some ground for their complaint, because with the single exception of Detroit, Chicago has debased its assessed valuations more during the depression than any other city in the group, which raised tax rates here considerably regardless of any increases in tax levies. This fact is not taken into account in the adjustment made by the Detroit bureau.

A further adjustment of the Detroit bureau figures, by applying 1937 levies to full value of property assessed in 1929, for comparative purposes takes into account this depression reduction of valuations. The chart below makes such a comparison.



Because of the difference in population, Milwaukee and Cincinnati, two cities frequently compared with Chicago, were not included in these charts. Chicago, however, does not suffer greatly by comparison with those cities.

Its 1936 operating cost per capita was $43.17, that of Milwaukee $56.64, and that of Cincinnati $50.91. Its general revenue per capita in 1936 was $63.93, while that of Milwaukee was $76.23, and that of Cincinnati $79.25. Per capita real estate taxes for 1937 will be about $35.33 in Chicago, $43.44 in Milwaukee, and $26.14 in Cincinnati. Chicago's 1937 adjusted tax rate is $31.12 on the Detroit bureau basis, Milwaukee's $31.72, and Cincinnati's $15.10, while the adjusted rates on the basis of 1929 full valuations are Chicago, $18.17; Milwaukee, $22.46, and Cincinnati, $12.60.

CHICAGO'S PLACE AS STYLE CENTER BECKONS BUYERS

Spring Apparel Shows Will Be This Week.

Apparel buyers from all over the United States will converge upon Chicago this week for the annual spring markets. As indication that Chicago's position in the world of fashion is becoming more and more eminent, merchants point to a heavy increase in advance registration. More than 10,000 buyers and merchants are expected.

"Chicago's rise in style supremacy is due primarily to its strategic position as a transportation center," Abraham Heller, executive director of the Style Creators of Chicago, said.

"Economic conditions forced retailers to curtail the size of their stocks and prompt delivery was imperative to keep these stocks replenished.

"Today Chicago leads the country in quality production, in originality of style and in suitability to individual types. Chicago manufacturers produce more than 40 per cent of all the quality styles made in the United States."

Display Fashions Tuesday.

As visible proof of the fashions Chicago now is creating, the Style Creators will display some 500 new spring fashions in the Grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel Tuesday night. The show, with 1,500 buyers as guests, will be repeated Feb. 9.

Spring fashions tend toward individuality, Miss Theresa Wallach, stylist of the Style Creators, said. Suits in beige and navy and cape costumes will be popular.

In ensembles, the bolero jacket, and three-quarter length coat, often with a tuxedo banding of fur, are in favor. The length of skirts is unchanged, but in shape they are frivolous—gored, accordion plaited, or "swing."

Beige, combined with caramel or navy will be the outstanding spring color. Other favorites, Miss Wallach indicated, are Indo-clay, crushed strawberry, blue, ashes of roses, aqua, turquoise, dusty pink, and nude, a misty tan.

On Architectural Lines.

Among the new styles to be introduced at Tuesday's show is the suit on architectural lines. This tends toward the box silhouette, with symmetrical pockets and trimmings.

Spring formals are flowered and frilly. Flowers, in fact, are predominant everywhere. Capes are lined with floral prints; plaited swing skirts of plain fabrics are topped by jackets of brightly printed bengaline.

Buyers will throng the wholesale district for the Style Creators' new offerings, but they will go to the Palmer house for the 10,000 original new styles of the Chicago Wash Dress and Apparel association, which also opens its show today.

Wash apparel, the manufacturers find, is becoming a major industry. Where the cotton dress once was only the house dress, now smartly dressed women appear in it for street, sports, and even formal attire.

New Sportswear Industry.

The development of sportswear alone, they say, has become an industry in itself. Slacks and sun suits, once used only for beach wear, now are seen almost everywhere. Sports dresses [for play] this spring will be knee length with plaited skirts.

The makers of wash apparel also will have a dinner and style show Tuesday night. Theirs will be in the Grand ballroom of the Palmer house.

FAULTY SWITCH ON CAR TRACKS BLAMED IN DEATH

Verdict of Accident Is Returned at Inquest.

A verdict of accidental death was returned yesterday in the case of Al C. Faeh, general manager of the Chicago Automobile Trade association, who, with his sister-in-law, Miss Ruth Slawson, was killed Friday when Faeh's car crashed head-on into a street car in front of the car barns at 78th street and Vincennes avenue.

Henry Hill, the motorman, testified that a defective switch caused the street car unexpectedly to make a sharp turn to the left as it passed the barns. He said he stopped the car a moment before Faeh's automobile, which he said was traveling at forty-five miles an hour, hit it. S. Tamiazzo of 9904 South Wallace street, who was driving his auto abreast of Faeh's, said the auto showman was going at twenty-eight miles an hour.

Killed by Hit-Run Car.

Mrs. Anna Ross, 82 years old, a widow, was killed last night by a hit-run automobile in front of her home at 2840 Fulton street. A man drove the car. With him were two women. Mrs. Ross was dragged 100 feet before the driver stopped. Then, according to witnesses, the women alighted, looked at their victim, and jumped back into the car, which then sped away.

A witness took the license and the car was traced to John McClellan, 34 years old, 2855 Fulton street, a service man, who was arrested. Police said his car was blood stained and that a piece of horn broken in the accident and found on the scene fitted into a broken horn on his car. McClellan denied involvement in the accident. A woman friend of his was questioned.

Driver Held to Grand Jury.

Morris Silverman, 36 years old, a fruit dealer who lives at 1115 West 51st street, was held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter yesterday after he was identified before a coroner's jury as the driver of the automobile that struck and killed Joseph Duda, 72 years old, 5158 South Marshfield avenue, on Jan. 11, at Ashland avenue and 52d street.

Edward Patrick Spratt, 50 years old, 8606 South Racine avenue, was killed last night by an automobile in Kedzie avenue at 99th street, Evergreen Park, as he was walking down the road. The driver, Orville Wilmington, 21 years old, 9228 South Trumbull avenue, Oak Lawn, told police he did not see Spratt. He took the latter to the Little Company of Mary hospital, but Spratt was already dead.

Pneumonia Kills Car Victims.

James J. Sweeney, 62, of 8129 South Morgan street, a real estate broker who was injured Jan. 20 when his automobile crashed against an abutment under a railroad viaduct at 75th and Morgan streets, died of pneumonia yesterday at his home. He had incurred fractures of two ribs and his nose in the accident.

Walter Milwiz, 62 years old, of 7740 West 45th place, Lyons, a junk dealer, was killed early yesterday when he was struck as he pushed his cart at Harlem avenue and 45th street, Forest View, by an automobile driven by Clayton Albers, 26, of 1636 South Wenonah avenue, Berwyn.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday ninety-six persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since the first of the year. Of these seventy-seven were killed in Chicago, where 1,306 were injured in the same period.

TRAFIC SAFETY PROPOSALS WIN KELLY SUPPORT

Praising the seven trafic safety measures proposed by Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th], Mayor Kelly announced yesterday that he will ask the city council to adopt the program at its meeting tomorrow.

Ald. Lindell, chairman of the council subcommittee on trafic accident prevention, made his recommendations Friday after a study of the city's 1937 trafic fatalities.

He urged a uniform speed campaign, better knowledge of trafic regulations, wider use of accident prevention squads, a school for trafic law violators rather than a fine, coördination of safety organizations to crystalize public opinion, passage of a drivers' license law, and investigation to determine if motorists involved in accidents carry liability insurance.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 29.—(AP)—The 1,744 ton steamer Tinge, registered in Panama, tonight was feared lost with all twenty-three hands, near Terschelling bank, in the North sea. Distress calls from the vessel were followed by silence. Tugs which set out from the Netherlands were unable to locate it. The Tinge, loaded with wood, was en route from Sundsvall, Sweden, to Hull, England. Most of the crew were Hollanders.

Mrs. Roosevelt's Bob

This picture of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, made as she spoke at youth meeting in New York, gives a good idea of her new and much discussed coiffure.

New York, Jan. 29.—[Special.]—Opening the New York state model legislature of youth, sponsored by the city council of the American Youth congress, at City college, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt spoke against isolation and in behalf of world peace. She asked for closer coöperation between the United States and other nations.

The convention is being attended by 1,500 delegates from churches and social institutions throughout the state.

"Even with the effort we made during the years since the world war we still have not succeeded in bringing about world peace," Mrs. Roosevelt said. "We have tried by all the methods used to find a basis for peace. We thought of an international court. We always wanted to take every opportunity to bring about a better understanding between the nations of the world. We cannot live in a little world of our own when the whole world is constantly being drawn closer together."

Indiana License Law Cuts Down Marriages

Evansville, Ind., Jan. 29.—[Special.]—A recent decision of the state Supreme court upholding a statute of 1852 which requires that a marriage license be issued only in the county of the bride's residence has cut marriage licenses here sharply. Most of the couples refused here go to Henderson, Ky., said Circuit Clerk Val Dietsch. Last month only forty-two licenses were issued, a drop from an average of 100 a month.

NATION THANKED BY PRESIDENT FOR PARALYSIS GIFTS

Greets Thousands by Radio at Birthday Fete.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 29.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt tonight thanked dancers at the balls throughout the country and the donors of dimes for making his 56th birthday happy in their raising of funds to aid fellow infantile paralysis sufferers.

"It is glorious to have one's birthday associated with a work like this," he said. "One touch of nature makes the whole world kin. And that kinship, which human suffering evokes, is perhaps the closest of all, for we know that those who work to help the suffering find true spiritual fellowship in that labor of love.

Expresses Thanks to All.

"So, although no word of mine can add to the happiness we share in this great service in which we are all engaged, I do want to tell you all how deeply I appreciate everything you have done. Thank you all and God bless you all."

By radio Mr. Roosevelt's voice hushed bands at some 15,000 birthday balls in the nation. The balls, which have been held every year Mr. Roosevelt has been in the White House, were sponsored by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Thousands of dimes poured into the White House to be added to the money which was raised by the balls. More than thirty sacks of mail, each containing about 3,000 letters containing dimes, were brought to the White House during the day. It is estimated they brought about 90,000 dimes. Earlier in the week the mail brought 131,000 dimes. Seven balls were held in hotels here.

Actually the President's birthday is not until tomorrow. But, because the parties were set for tonight, Mr. Roosevelt also moved up the celebration of his birth.

CELEBRATE IN CHICAGO.

More than 4,000 Chicagoans assembled in the Palmer house last night for the major celebration of the President's birthday in the Chicago area. Tickets were $5 a person.

An elaborate program of dancing and entertainment, with stage and radio personalities as performers, was given. Both dancing and entertainment stopped at 10:30 that the celebrators might listen to President Roosevelt in his infantile paralysis broadcast from Washington.

Mayor Kelly served as honorary chairman of the Chicago committee. Frank W. Luther was director and James R. Leavell, treasurer.

SEINING UNDER ICE MAY BRING A STATE SHAKEUP

Violations Blamed on Lax Supervision.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 29.—[Special.]—A shakeup in the Illinois department of conservation was predicted today as a result of complaints lodged against the department by sportsmen and commercial fishermen of the Peoria area, who charge that conservation officials have been showing favoritism to one Peoria fishing company that was allowed to seine under the ice. Such seining is specifically prohibited by the Illinois game code.

Sportsmen claim that the ice seining has injured bass, crappies, bluegills, and other fish which unintentionally are caught and must he handled when they are returned to the water. It is reported that Gov. Henry Horner has started an investigation.

Fisherman Admits Practice.

J. Raymond Saylor, president of the Peoria County Sportsmen's club, said that Ross Dixon, a Peoria commercial fisherman, has been permitted by conservation department officials to place seines under the ice of the Illinois river and adjoining waters. Dixon, when interviewed in Peoria, admitted that he had made several hauls of fish by this method after being told by conservation officials to go ahead.

Other commercial fishermen were given the same privileges, but they accuse the department of not giving them the right to seine until after Dixon had started his crew and had gained control of the few worthwhile fishing areas.

Used at Natural Havens.

Seines were used in the Illinois river waters where natural spring holes and wells pour comparatively warm water into the river. Fish naturally congregate at these places. In making his hauls under the ice Dixon, said that he freed all bass and other game fish. Saylor pointed out that although all game fish were turned back during these hauls, many undoubtedly were injured.

"In drawing these seines a lot of moss, weeds, and mud is brought in," Saylor said. "By the time the crew has removed the fish from this débris, many are bound to have been injured."

Thomas J. Lynch, former Wilmette nurseryman, is acting director of the department of conservation. Pete J. Erio of Bullpit, Ill., is chief inspector.

MAN, 25, KILLED BY TRAIN.

A man about 25 years old, who carried a social security card issued to Edward Lucas, 1516 Quarry avenue, Grand Rapids, Mich., was killed last night when he was struck by an Illinois Central passenger train at 31st street.

FREEZING RAINS GLAZE ROADS IN NORTH ILLINOIS

Highways in virtually all of northern Illinois, with exception of Chicago and parts of Cook county, were covered last night with an icy glaze due to freezing rain. Hundreds of miles of roads were impassable, and comparatively few cars and trucks ventured out. Bus lines canceled schedules on many routes.

The glaze extended in Illinois to the Mississippi river and to the Wisconsin state line, and beyond these borders in Iowa and Wisconsin, according to the Chicago Motor club.

On U. S. highway 41 in Kenosha county, Wisconsin, cars and trucks were stalled almost solidly for five miles because of the ice, and the sherif asked Chicago authorities to warn drivers against trying to drive into Wisconsin today.

Chicago and the south and west sections of Cook county escaped the freeze, although caught in the rain. The north shore was not so fortunate. Three men were injured in two automobile accidents on Roosevelt road, one-half mile west of Wheaton. They were Roy Vaskovich of Lansing, Mich., and Jack Siegel, 318 West Adams street, and Robert Alexander, 161 Latrobe avenue, both of Chicago.

ROBBED OF CASH, RING, COAT.

Samuel Gorenstein, 5017 North Lawndale avenue, and his wife were held up by two men in back of their home last night. Gorenstein surrendered $110 and Mrs. Gorenstein a $200 ring and a $300 fur coat.

Survey Shows Realty Prices Advance Throughout Country Despite Trade Recession

REVEALS RENTS AND OCCUPANCY ARE INCREASING

Investment Money Found Still Plentiful.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Despite the slowing up of the real estate market, coincident with the slump in stocks, residential and business property rents, sale prices for realty, and occupancy throughout the country generally are higher than during January, last year, according to the 30th semi-annual survey of the real estate situation by the National Association of Real Estate Boards, made public yesterday.

In three-quarters of the 260 cities reporting, money for real estate investment is so plentiful that capital is actively seeking loans. Although the most common interest rate still is 6 per cent, a quarter of the cities reported 5 per cent as most used.

Healthy Condition Shown.

A healthy condition in the chief underlying factors that affect the prospect of a real estate advance was shown in the survey. It also showed a sustained, but balanced absorption of residential and business space, and increased earning power for every type of property reported upon.

"Although in the last few months of 1937 real estate market activity suffered in the general business recession, and in a majority of cities is now lower than it was a year ago, sales prices for real estate are predominantly higher," the survey says. "A ten per cent rise over last year is the turn most frequently reported. It has taken place in 56 out of every 100 cities. One city out of every ten states that its prices are up 15 per cent.

Only 14 Per Cent Show Loss.

Only fourteen per cent of the cities reported that realty prices were 10 per cent lower than last year.

"Residential rent changes most commonly reported are rises either of 5 per cent or more commonly of 10 per cent, for both houses and apartments," the survey said. "For heated apartments, rents are 10 per cent above the rates of a year ago in almost half of the cities reporting; 5 per cent above last year in over one-third, and 15 per cent above the same month of 1937 in 16 per cent of the cities. Rents were lower than last year in 8 per cent of the cities reporting."

House Rents Advance.

For detached houses rents were found to be 5 per cent higher than a year ago in one-quarter of the reporting cities, 10 per cent higher in almost half of the cities, and up 15 per cent at least in one-fifth. They were 5 per cent lower in 6 per cent of the cities and down 10 per cent in 2 per cent.

"Business property rents are up as compared with last year in 51 per cent of the cities; lower in only 3 per cent," the survey shows. "Office building rents, slowest sector of the real estate market to recover from the depression, are up in 28 per cent of the cities; lower than last year in only 2 per cent."

The survey found that no city in the country with population over 500,000 has any remaining oversupply in either apartments or single family dwellings. On the other hand, 73 per cent of them still show an oversupply of business property; not one reported any shortage in that type of property.

NEW BUILDING PERMITS HIGHER IN DECEMBER

Building permits issued in December throughout the country showed an increase in cost compared with the same month last year and November, 1937, according to Secretary of Labor Perkins. The number of permits issued decreased in both instances.

Residential construction increased 48 per cent in value of permits over November. This was largely due to a $27,000,000 gain in New York residential building. The increase over December, 1936, was only 7.4 per cent.

New York City lead the country in building during 1937, with permits valued at $314,000,000, compared with $224,000,000 in 1936. Los Angeles was second with $64,000,000 in permits in 1937 and the same total in 1936. Chicago was fifth with $36,000,000, compared with $35,000,000 in 1936.

Leases First Six Floors at 168 West Adams Street

Philip Pekow, hotel operator, leased the first six floors of the Midland building, 168 West Adams, for five years from Jan. 1, at a reported monthly rental of $1,750, plus a percentage of profits, from Fritz Steinbrecher, federal trustee of the 168 Adams Building corporation. Stephen Love, of Wolf & Love, was attorney for the lessee, and Kirkland, Fleming, Green, Martin & Ellis were attorneys for the lessor.

Courses in Realty

Four courses in real estate and land economics will be offered during the spring term in the evening division of Northwestern university's school of commerce on the Chicago campus, beginning Feb. 9. The courses will cover real estate fundamentals, evaluation, practice, and building management. The faculty includes Graham Aldis, Morton Bodfish, A. D. Theobald, and H. W. Walther.

Armour institute yesterday announced several evening classes in building construction, beginning Feb. 7. It also has evening courses in architectural design, air conditioning, and welding.

NEW MAP SERVICE IS OFFERED PUBLIC AT THE CITY HALL

Preparation of a booklet containing Illinois plat and vacation statutes, and Chicago code provisions, rules, forms, and procedure pertaining to subdivisions, was announced yesterday by Howard C. Brodman, superintendent of maps and ex-officio examiner of subdivisions. It is called "Official Subdivision and Vacation Guide."

"The primary purpose of this booklet is to assist real estate men to a better knowledge of readjustment of land and to standardize subdivisions," said Brodman.

"The booklet later, after some revision, will be published if it seems advisable. This bureau is at last able to sell maps. I've been trying for some years to get the authority from the council to sell copies of the map atlas pages and other city maps.

"Other large cities have given this service for years and an ordinance finally was passed by the city council on Jan. 12, 1937, granting me the right to sell maps. While this is a method of raising revenue, the prices will be kept as low as possible. The ordinance was effective on Jan. 29, 1938. This service will not be in competition with any private company, as they do not make the maps which are to be sold by the city."

Brentano Will Move Back to South Wabash

Brentano's Book Store, Inc., one of Chicago's oldest concerns of its kind, is going back to the neighborhood in which it was originally started more than thirty-five years ago. A lease was signed yesterday for space at 29 South Wabash avenue, beginning May 1.

The Brentano store now at 55 East Washington street, in the Pittsfield building, will be moved to the new location on or about that date.

"Saints and Sinners."

According to Wendell W. Goodpasture, in charge of Brentano's for the last decade, a revival of the famous old "Saints and Sinners" corner will be a feature of the new store. This was a section of the old McClurg book store in which Eugene Field and other local literary celebrities used to look over books.

Brentano's originally was a branch of the establishment founded by Simon Brentano in New York City in 1853. Coming to Chicago about 1900, the firm was on the east side of Wabash, south of Adams, and across from the McClurg book store at 218 South Wabash avenue, which was bought by Brentano's in 1923. Five years later the business was moved to the Pittsfield building.

Will Remodel Premises.

The new store premises will be completely remodeled, giving the book firm 50 per cent more first floor space than it now has. A mezzanine floor will be built in the rear. The old and rare book department will be enlarged. The basement will be used for storage.

BROWN ELECTED HEAD OF FLAT OWNERS' GROUP

Frank E. Brown, manager of the Edith Rockefeller McCormick trust properties, was elected president of the Apartment Building Owners and Managers association at its annual meeting on Jan. 26. John L. Paul, manager of 209 Lake Shore Drive Building corporation, is treasurer.

According to Louis C. Sudler, retiring president, the association now represents managers and owners of approximately fifty million dollars' worth of local unfurnished apartment property of the fireproof, elevator type.

FACTORY-BUILT HOME MAY LEAD U. S. INDUSTRY

Builder Sees Big Future for Prefabrication.

Mass production of prefabricated house units eventually will become America's greatest industry, with lower building costs, better homes, and faster construction resulting from standardization and speeding up of factory built residences. This assertion was made yesterday by Howard T. Fisher, president of General Houses, Inc.

When this long predicted construction goal can be reached no one knows, Fisher said. It may be during the next few years or it may be some distance in the future, but it is coming sooner than the general public realizes, he believes.

Points to Other Industries.

Fisher pointed to the automobile and refrigerator industries, which started on a modest scale with prices out of reach of the ordinary citizen, but which gave better values at lower costs as soon as they got into volume production. Prefabricated houses will follow a similar course, he believes.

A survey of the prefabricated house field, however, shows that although several concerns claim to be ready for mass production, the public is not yet in the market for homes of this type to a large enough extent to keep factories going on a big scale.

According to the Portland Cement association, the largest plant for prefabricated cement houses in the country, located in New Jersey, is equipped to turn out twenty-five complete houses a day. At present it is manufacturing about two units a week.

Twenty in Chicago Area.

Among the manufacturers of prefabricated steel houses one of the largest is a unit using the Steelox system made by the American Rolling Mill company, Middletown, O. According to the American Institute of Steel Construction, Inc., approximately 250 buildings of this type, of which 200 were residences, have been erected since March, 1935. Twenty are in the Chicago area.

General Houses, Inc., with headquarters in Chicago, is reported to have erected about 125 homes since 1932. It makes units of both steel panel and steel frame with siding of cement asbestos and other materials.

American Motohomes, introduced in 1932, has about 100 residences to its credit.

Hundreds Use Stran Steel.

Several hundred homes have been built under the Stran Steel system. About a hundred houses using the Reynolds system have been erected. This system utilizes structural members of hollow sheet steel shop-filled with a composition into which nails can be driven.

Introduced in 1936, the Pre-Fab Homes system is responsible for nearly 100 houses, according to the steel institute. Within the last three years sixty houses have been built by the sponsors of the Palmer system of shop-fabricated panel type, all in the western part of the United States.

About 125 structures have been built under the Insulated Steel Construction system, of which forty have been residences and the remainder commercial buildings.

Build 100 in West.

Sponsors of the Lea system have built more than 100 residences and other structures, all in the west, since 1934.

During the last four years more than 50 buildings have been erected by the sponsors of the Unibilt system, all on the Pacific coast.

Among the smaller producers are the Berloy system, the sponsors of which have built twenty houses since 1935; the Arcy system, used in six houses built during 1937; the Lindeberg system, used in several homes, and the Phemaloid system, under which several houses were built since 1933.

"Mass production of homes will open modern residential units to hundreds of thousands of American families who now live in obsolete dwellings," said Fisher. "As volume increases prices will go down, quality will be improved, and new markets will be opened until this will be America's greatest industry."

News of the Architects

Samuel A. Lichtmann and Ira J. Bach have formed the architectural firm of Lichtmann & Bach, with offices in the Hyde Park-Kenwood National Bank building.

$3,000 Prefabricated House

This four room prefabricated steel house can be built in Middletown, O., for about $2,600 and for an estimated $3,000 in the Chicago area, according to Steel Buildings, Inc. This is known as a Steelox home. According to the American Institute of Steel Construction, about 250 of this type of house have been built, of which twenty are in the Chicago area.

Completed at 79th and Rhodes

The above building, at the northwest corner of 79th street and Rhodes avenue, designed by the Thomas R. Bishop company, architects, has just been completed by the South Side Construction company. It is directly across from the new Rhodes theater. It fronts 125 feet on 79th and 150 feet on Rhodes, and contains seven stores. Each store has an individual summer and winter air conditioning system. The land and building cost a reported $80,000.

Rents Will Not Rise, Builders and Mortgage Bankers Predict

Two nation-wide organizations yesterday made rent predictions: One that there will be few increases during 1938 and the other that there will be no spring advance.

"Building authorities do not expect rental boosts this spring due to contraction of general business," said E. M. Craig, secretary of the National Association of Building Trades Employers. Although some cities complain of a housing shortage, the number of workers added to the jobless ranks during the last few months again is creating a doubling-up situation in their localities which has lessened the demand for housing facilities."

Bankers Make Prediction.

Few rent increases will be made during 1938, according to a survey just made by the Mortgage Bankers' Association of America in sixty-eight of the principal cities of the country. Sixty-five per cent of the members of the association expect no further rent increases in single family houses during this year; 64 per cent expect no advance in apartment rentals, and 77 per cent expect no rise for office space rents.

"Data in our survey show that prospects for increased rents in sigle family houses, flats, and office space this year are not good," said George H. Patterson, secretary of the association. "In all three classifications about two-thirds of our replying members expect no rise.

Actually Means Reduction.

"Predictions against rent increases were strongest in the far west and mountain and southern states with the middle west close behind. Opinion from eastern members was not quite so conclusive, indicating some possibility of higher rents there, although even for this section more than half of the replies predicted no advance.

"No further rent increases this year in many respects means a reduction because taxes, labor, and repair costs, and the price of many building materials are going up. Rents generally are only 42 per cent above the depression low, while many costs directly affecting them, such as common labor, are at all time highs."

The association has nearly 500 members in forty-one states.

Will Go Up at Cicero and Milwaukee Corner.

Working plans are under way and actual construction is expected to start during April on a one and two story business building at the southwest corner of Milwaukee and Cicero avenues. It will represent a reported total investment in land and building of $575,000. This is a project first announced on May 23, 1937, and which then contemplated including a theater in the building.

Because of certain conditions the plans have been revamped and, instead of a playhouse, a large food mart is contemplated. The mart will be on the ground floor and will contain approximately 16,000 square feet of space, making it one of the largest in the country.

Will Have Two Entrances.

The food mart section will have a truss roof with a center height of twenty-four feet, and will provide all clear spaces without posts. Two separate entrances, one of forty-eight feet width on Milwaukee avenue, and another of twenty-six feet on Cicero avenue, will open into the main section.

In addition to the food mart there will be twenty-two stores. On the second floor of the two story unit will be eleven office suites.

The present two story corner section is to be remodeled on the first floor and an entire new exterior built which will harmonize with the one story section to be erected to the south of it. When completed the two sections will front 345 feet on Cicero and 292 feet on Milwaukee.

The building will be built and owned by a syndicate and will be manage by C. F. Durland & Co. Frank E. Bourget, who arranged for the purchase of the property, is handling the entire building program. John V. Olson of 4817 Irving Park boulevard is coöperating with Durland & Co. in leasing space.

It was reported by Durland that 65 per cent of the rentable area already has been spoken for. The property will be known as the Cascade Commercial building. It is across from the new million dollar Sears, Roebuck & Co. store, to be built at the northeast corner of Irving Park boulevard and Cicero.

Pays $59,500 for Former American Cutlery Plant

John E. Rose bought the former American Cutlery company plant at 752 Lexington street, occupying a site 358 by 119 feet, from the Continental-Illinois National Bank and Trust company, trustee, for $59,500 according to the revenue stamps on the deed. The five story building is occupied by various tenants. Fischel, Kahn & Heart were attorneys for the buyer.

Buys South Side Vacant and Will Erect Building

J. E. Combiths bought the vacant switchtrack land, 100 by 300 feet, at 1864-1900 South Kilbourn avenue, from the Continental-Illinois National Bank and Trust company as conservator of the estate of Ada Sawyer Garrett. According to Mrs. Ursula Lasley, broker, the buyer will erect a one or two story building for investment.

CALLS ON G. O. P. TO FIGHT THREAT OF DICTATORSHIP

Topeka, Kas., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Dr. Glenn Frank told the nation's Republicans tonight their party "must be more faithfully expressive of the American spirit than the Fascist program of the New Deal," which, he said, "threatens to Hitlerize what was once democratic self-government."

Dr. Frank, chairman of a national Republican program committee of more than 150 called to meet in Chicago Feb. 28, made a broadcast address at the Kansas day banquet celebrating the 77th anniversary of the state's admission to the Union.

With Alf M. Landon, 1936 Republican presidential nominee, and chairman John D. M. Hamilton sitting nearby, Dr. Frank enunciated a five-point creed he described as expressive of the mood in which the party should approach its responsibilities.

Landon Introduces Frank.

At an earlier luncheon, Landon said of Dr. Frank that "we are proud to have as our guest a man who was a victim of another man who talks free speech and then denies it to the people of Wisconsin." Landon apparently referred to the controversy in which the administration of Gov. Philip La Follette replaced Dr. Frank as president of the University of Wisconsin.

"Incredible as it sounds," said Dr. Frank, "the New Deal is seeking slavishly to duplicate all the techniques employed by big business in the early years of the twentieth century. . . . Political royalism takes the place of economic royalism. . . . American millions stand to gain no more from monopoly under politicians than from monopoly under business men. . . . American liberalism has been betrayed in its own household with the Judas kiss of a new despotism."

Sensitive to Human Needs.

The Republican party first, said Dr. Frank, "must be more sensitive to the human needs of the millions than many political programs of the last quarter century have been."

Secondly, the educator asserted, the party must "awaken the American millions to the certain destruction of self-government involved in much of the legislation that has, in the last five years, been pressed for passage by the congress. The menace to democratic self-government in these measures has lain, not in the alleged purpose these measures sought to serve but in the administrative mechanisms and powers which must inevitably reduce the courts, the congress, the varied commissions and the people to impotence."

For his third point Dr. Frank called on the party to "expose the growing practice in American politics, of which itself may have been guilty at times, of auctioning off the country to any highly organized pressure groups that can muster enough votes to look impressive."

Economies of Plenty.

Next, he said, "the Republican party must ground its program for business, industry, labor and agriculture on the economics of plenty which will result in more goods at lower prices to take the place of the New Deal economics of scarcity which is resulting in fewer goods at higher prices and, for all the ballyhoo attending it, is leading us away from rather than towards the abundant life. . . .

"Fifth, the Republican party must strike at the growing heresy, fostered by the administration, that when a party is elected to office by a clear majority every senator and every representative must check both his conscience and his intelligence at the door of congress . . . and thereafter echo in detail the will and even the whim of the chief executive."

LOVE SLAYER AND MATE HOLD OPEN HOUSE IN BAKERY

Mrs. Ada Szczytowski and her husband, Rudy, held open house yesterday in their bakery at 1351 North Paulina street, to celebrate Ada's acquittal on the charge of murdering her love rival, Irene Kerstein.

Hundreds of neighbors and others crowded into the little store all day long, and found the couple cooing like love birds. "It's sure swell to be back with Rudy," said Ada again and again, patting the face of her once errant husband, and Rudy grinned sheepishly.

Mrs. Szczytowski was freed by a Criminal court jury Friday on her plea that she killed Miss Kerstein on November 22 in self defense after she discovered, she said, that Miss Kerstein had tried to steal her husband's love.

EVEN A SHAVIAN FINGER HAS TO TELL ITS STORY

LONDON, Jan. 29.—[U. P.]—George Bernard Shaw, Irish playwright, told the London News-Chronicle today that he would have led a life of crime if he did not have fingers which left prints. Shaw denied reports circulating for years that his fingers were without whorls and were so smooth that no print could be made of them. "I wonder where it originated," he said. "I have finger prints just the same as everybody else—or rather nearly the same."

Fall Into Fraud Trap

Two polls official sof the 1st ward were arrested in the board of election commissioner's office yesterday on fraud charges growing out of the April, 1936, primary, when they made application to serve as officials at the coming primary on April 12.

Both worked in the 11th precinct of the 1st ward in 1936, Jack Swift, 1234 South Wabash avenue, as Democratic clerk, and Charles Saltzman, 1239 South Wabash avenue, as Republican clerk. Several months afterward the primary contempt warants were issued against them by County Judge Jarecki, but deputy sherifs were unable to find them.

Recently both filed applications to serve this year which, when referred to the commission's fraud department, recalled the warants. A letter was sent to each stating that they had failed to answer certain questions and asking them to appear yesterday morning. They did and were arrested.

URGE CORRECTION OF REGISTRATION FACTS BY VOTERS

Change in Address or Name Must Be Listed.

Cook county voters who cast their ballots in the primary elections April 12 will be registered under permanent registration systems. Chicago and 11 cities and villages now are under the board of election commissioners' permanent registration system. Remaining towns and country districts in the county are under the permanent system directed by County Clerk Michael J. Flynn.

Both registration systems have stressed that citizens who have moved should correct the records in the permanent files before March 14 and 15.

Niles Center, which is under the permanent registration law for the first time, will register in each local precinct on Feb. 26 and will hold a second local registration March 15.

March 14 is the final day for registration at the board of election commissioners for Chicago, Chicago Heights, Berwyn, Harvey, Cicero, Summit, Evergreen Park, Stickney, Morton Grove, and Elmwood Park.

Under the county permanent registration system, which includes Oak Park, Evanston, Maywood, Forest Park, Homewood, Des Plaines, Park Ridge, and 74 other country town voting districts, all registrations between now and the primary election must be made at the clerk's office in the county building.

From May 1 until October registrations can be made with village and town clerks, Clerk Flynn said, and added the law has authorized village and town clerks to be registration officers. Approximately 200,000 voters are registered in country town voting districts, and 50,000 more are expected before the primary election.

COUNTY G. O. P. HEADS GET VOICE IN SLATE MAKING

State Central Committee Agrees to Co-operate.

BY PARKE BROWN.

A peaceful understanding between the Republican state central committee and the recently formed organizations of the Republican county chairmen of the entire state was established yesterday at a meeting of the former body held in the Chicago offices of Chairman John F. Tyrrell.

Although the opening of the meeting saw some state committeemen inclined to resent the plan of the county chairmen's organization to look over the field of candidates with a possibility of making advisory recommendations to the voters in the party primary, the final vote was a decision to coöperate in the effort to obtain unified and harmonious action.

Subcommittee Is Named.

After it had been explained that the county chairmen's organization has not authorized its executive committee to do any slate making, Chairman Tyrrell was authorized to appoint a subcommittee of six to attend the meeting of that executive committee at Champaign on Feb. 7.

Tyrrell heads this subcommittee and those who will serve with him are Justus L. Johnson, Aurora; Thomas J. Houston, Chicago; John Spence, Fairfield; Frank G. Thompson, Mt. Vernon; and William C. Radliff, Bloomington.

"We think that the organization of the county chairmen is a constructive effort to crystallize party sentiment," said Tyrrell, "and our committee voted to do whatever it can to help."

Tyrell also said that he hopes to obtain United States Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan as the speaker for the state convention this year. Although the meeting is tentatively set for April 29, it probably will be recessed until September.

Downstate Democrats Disagree.

Pre-primary activity among the Democrats came to an unexpected standstill when Gov. Horner's leaders in conferences that began on Friday failed to reach an agreement on a downstate candidate for United States senator. In reply to reports that the governor had refused to support Michael L. Igoe, it was said the governor has not considered the Igoe candidacy at any time because he still stands by his original declaration that the nomination should go to a downstater.

The slate committee of the Democratic county committee gathered for a meeting in the morning but, because of the pleas of several members that they had important engagements for the afternoon, recessed until this afternoon.

NAME DEMOCRAT TO FILL STEIWER SENATE VACANCY

Salem, Ore., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Alfred Even Reames, 67 years old, a lawyer and chairman of the executive committee of the Democratic state central committee, became Oregon's 31st United States senator today.

Alfred E. Reames.

Gov. Charles Martin appointed Reames to the post which Senator Frederick Steiwer will vacate next Monday after eleven years to enter a Washington law firm. Reames will serve out Steiwer's unexpired term of eleven months, after which he will retire to private life.

Reames becomes the first Democratic senator from Oregon since 1921. He replaces in Senator Steiwer one of the staunchest critics of the Roosevelt administration. Reames said he expected to leave for Washington in a week.

GOLDEN GLOVES ENTRY LIST CLOSES AT MIDNIGHT

5 MORE CENTERS JOIN FIGHTING DURING WEEK

Cleveland Names Team Friday.

Out of Town Meets

FOLLOWING is a list of out of town Golden Gloves tournaments which will be held this week:

TOMORROW.
Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette preliminaries.
Fort Worth Star-Telegram preliminaries.

TUESDAY.
Lexington Herald-Leader preliminaries.
Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette second round.

WEDNESDAY.
Lafayette Journal-Courier second round.
Lexington Herald-Leader second round.

THURSDAY.
Danville Commercial-News preliminaries.
Davenport Times preliminaries.
Lexington Herald-Leader quarter-finals.
Cleveland Plain Dealer semi-finals.

FRIDAY.
Danville Commercial-News quarter-finals.
Peoria Journal-Transcript semi-finals.
Davenport Times second round.
Lexington Herald-Leader semi-finals.
Cleveland Plain Dealer finals.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

This is the last day you can enter Chicago's Golden Gloves tournaments, the first of which will start next week in the Madison Athletic club. No entry will be accepted if postmarked later than 12 o'clock tonight. Physical examinations for these last contestants will be held next Friday night. The examination tomorrow night in Trafton's gymnasium is for contestants previously enrolled.

While Chicago boys are preparing for the four sectional tournaments which will qualify thirty-two of them for the Tournament of Champions, out of town Golden Gloves centers are marching ahead to the climax of their tournaments. From these forty-five centers located in fifteen states and drawing contestants from eleven other states, will come 360 champions. These boys will meet Chicago's qualifiers and the champions of the Catholic Youth Organization in the three day tournament which opens at the Stadium Feb. 28.

Five Cities Swing Into Action.

Five centers swing into action this week. Last week nine cities were holding their matches but only two, Ogden, Utah, and Huntington, W. Va., named their champions. Sioux City, Ia., previously had acclaimed the eight boys who will carry the banner of northern Iowa and the Dakotas in the Tournament of Champions.

The newspapers which open their Golden Gloves sectionals this week are Fort Wayne, Ind., Journal-Gazette; Fort Worth, Tex., Star-Telegram; Lexington, Ky., Herald-Leader; Danville, Ind., Commercial-News, and the Davenport, Ia. Times.

Friday night this week the tournament sponsored by the Cleveland Plain-Dealer will be concluded. One of the largest Golden Glove centers, the finals in Public hall are the high point of boxing in the Ohio metropolis each year. From the days of Don Gonzales, who won the featherweight Golden Gloves championship in Chicago in 1931, through last year when Lem Franklin of Cleveland knocked out Herbert Runge, Germany's Olympic champion, in the international bouts here, Cleveland always has contributed extraordinary talent to Chicago's Golden Gloves.

Competition Keener Each Year.

Each year, however, the competition has become keener. Five years ago Detroit, Cleveland, and Davenport were the more distant centers which successfully fought Chicago's representatives and those from the Gary steel district and South Bend for Golden Gloves set with diamonds, the annual award for the champions. There have been other representatives from Peoria, Rockford, and Milwaukee on intercity squads. Last

One of the most ambitious teams entered in Chicago's Golden Gloves tournaments is that of Franklin Park, coached by Danny Spunt. Coach Spunt sees his battlers in line for more than one title. Fighting in Chicago's four sectionals begins Feb. 9 and 10 on the west side in the Madison A. C. The Franklin Park team, first row, left to right: Danny Spunt, coach; Sam Malmed, 135 pounds; George Davis, 126 pounds; Joe Michaels, 135 pounds; Oscar Ginsberg, 112 pounds; Sam Cooper, 112 pounds, and Joe Spunt, assistant coach. Second row, left to right: Fred Penny, 160 pounds; Willie Klein, 126 pounds; Joe Tessler, 126 pounds; Joe Davis, 135 pounds; Ed Lewis, 126 pounds; Herbie Appel, 135 pounds, and Oscar Norman, Franklin Park director. Third row, left to right: Eddie Lander, 118 pounds; Sol Abrams, 126 pounds; Marvin Earlix, 126 pounds, and Al Lander, 135 pounds. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Stratton and Herman Send in Contracts

The Cubs yesterday received the signed contract of Billy Herman, veteran second baseman, and at the same time the White Sox announced that Monty Stratton, brilliant young pitcher, had sent in his signed agreement. Charley Root, Cub pitcher, sent word that his signed contract was in the mail.

Stratton, who had sent back his first contract, was reported to have asked $12,500 and a bonus based on attendance figures. He signed Owner Lou Comiskey's second offer without delay.

Gives Up Conference.

Herman had never sent back the contract offered him, but had expressed a desire to confer with Owner P. K. Wrigley. Yesterday, however, he gave up the idea of a conference and said that he was satisfied. The last available figures on Herman's income from the Cubs are those for 1936, when he received approximately $21,000.

Zeke Bonura, Ted Lyons, Luke Sewell, Rip Radcliff, Sugar Cain and Boze Berger are now the only White Sox players who haven't signed.

Fifteen Cubs Still Out.

Fifteen Cubs are yet to come in, but only Bill Jurges, Frank Demaree and Bobby Mattick have returned their contracts unsigned.

Stratton won 15 games for the White Sox last season up to the time he suffered an arm injury early in August. He was forced to remain on the sidelines for the remainder of the season. The Sox are hoping that he will be one of the most effective right handers in the league during the coming campaign.

Herman a Salesman.

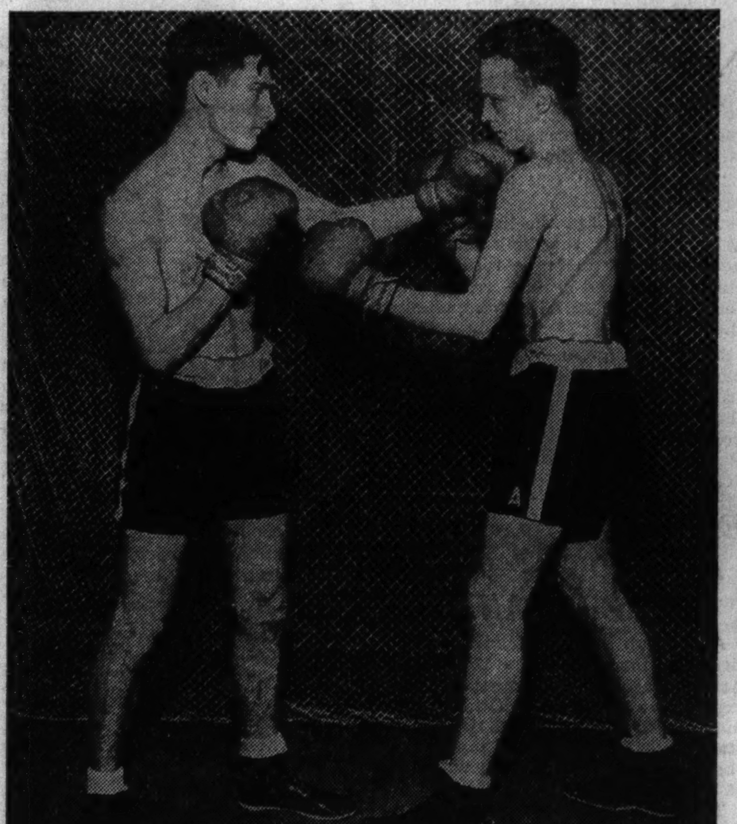
Herman, who has been working as a gum salesman during the winter, has been with the Cubs since 1931. He is recognized as one of the greatest second basemen in either league. It is understood that he is the highest paid member of the Cub staf with the exception of Manager Charley Grimm.



Armour Tech will be represented by a strong team in the Chicago battles. Squaring off in a workout are Robert McMahon (left), 147 pounds, and Tom Clark, 160 pounds. The two will fight in the North section novice division.

Never Forgotten Farm Scenes

Remember the big stove in the kitchen? The steaming dinners of pork sausages, cream gravy and boiled potatoes? The smoke house with its big supply of meats? And the juicy blackberry pies your mother baked? Oh boy! Bob Becker brings back such memories in his article about life on the Tribune experimental farm at Wheaton. It appears in the want ad section of today's Sunday Tribune.

All Germany Ready to Cheer for Schmeling

HAMBURG, Germany, Jan. 29.—[U. P.]—Boxing fans streamed into Hamburg today to see Germany's national sporting hero—Max Schmeling—fight in the fatherland for the first time in almost three years.

Schmeling, tuning himself for a heavyweight title fight in June against Champion Joe Louis, meets Ben Foord of South Africa tomorrow afternoon in Hanseatic hall in a twelve round fight that no one except Ben and a few of his sympathizers think will go beyond the tenth.

Special trains began arriving this afternoon from all over Germany. Tickets were at a premium for Max's first scrap in Germany since he outpointed old Paulino Uzcudun in July, 1935, in Berlin. A crowd of 38,000 is expected. All 23,000 seats have been sold and provisions were made to accommodate 15,000 standees. The fight is scheduled to start at 9:30 a.m., Chicago time.

Foord Has Weight Advantage.

Foord scaled 207½ pounds at the weigh-in at Hotel Esplanade today. He had a fifteen pound advantage over Schmeling, who weighed 192½. Both fighters looked fit and were pronounced in excellent shape by examining doctors. They shook each other's hand but did not talk.

Foord, when he walked into the scale room, greeted the crowd with a breezy Nazi salute. Max Pippow of Berlin will referee.

The odds on Schmeling, who hopes to become the first man ever to recapture the heavyweight crown, jumped today from 5 to 1 to 10 to 1. Betting on a knockout was 2 to 1 in Schmeling's favor.

Foord, a 25 year old, black haired giant, has been idle since he was technically knocked out eight months ago by former Champion Max Baer. He is the former British empire heavyweight champion. He lost that title to Tommy Farr last year after enjoying considerable success in 1936 when he beat Tommy Loughran, Larry Gains, Jack Petersen, and George Cook.

One More Tuneup Bout.

Schmeling launched his tuneup campaign in December by knocking out Harry Thomas in New York. Previous to that Max had been idle since his victory in 1936 over Louis. If he beats Foord, Max plans to go to the United States for one more bout before meeting Louis in June.

Both fighters took it easy today. Foord went through light exercises this morning and Schmeling, after a turn on the road, moved from his suburban headquarters to a Hamburg hotel. He was considerably upset over the death of his friend Bernd Rosemeyer, German racing driver, who was killed yesterday.

Irish Football Captain Elect Leaves School

He gave no reason for his action before leaving South Bend, and university officials followed the traditional policy of withholding comment in such cases.

Shellogg was first string right tackle during the 1937 campaign, having won his letter at that post as a sophomore the previous season. A junior in the college of arts and letters, he came here from New Castle, Pa.

MALESEVICH MAY FAIL

Madison, Wis., Jan. 29.—(AP)—University of Wisconsin athletic officials tonight were investigating reports that Bronko Malesevich of Mayville, Wis., regular half back in 1936 and 1937, would be ineligible for football next fall.

Guy Sundt, assistant athletic director, said he had been informed Malesevich did not write mid-semester examinations in several studies. He is enrolled in the college of physical education.

"I haven't talked with Malesecich," Sundt said. "He was on final probation and if he neglected to write the exams he is all through."

Lyal Clark of Delaware New Harvard Line Coach

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 29.—[U. P.]—Head Football Coach Lyal W. Clark of the University of Delaware tonight was appointed line coach at Harvard university, succeeding Ray Crowther. Athletic Director William J. Bingham said Clark would come to Cambridge March 1 for full time duty.

KIPKE RETIRES AS COACH; TAKES SALES POSITION

Kipke, dismissed recently after nine years as Michigan coach, revealed that he had accepted a position as a salesman with a Detroit concern that represents manufacturers of watches, tools, hardware, and rubber goods.

"It would have been nice to continue in football," Kipke said. "The game has a strange fascination and it is hard to break away, but I had the future to think of and I finally decided that I had better get started in business before it is too late.

"In permanently retiring from football, I can say that I have had my full share of thrills and heartaches, victories and defeats, joys and sorrows, as player and as a coach. I've been up and I've been down. I hit the peak and touched the bottom and I will always look upon football as the best game in the world."

Kipke disclosed he had several coaching offers, one of them from a southern university.

Wins Two Titles.

At 35 years of age, Kipke closes a gridiron career that began as a half back at Lansing Central High school, continued as a student at Michigan and then as a coach at two other colleges before he returned to his alma mater.

He is considered one of Michigan's outstanding punters and defensive half backs. He captained the Wolverines in 1923, his senior year.

Following his graduation, Kipke went to the University of Missouri in 1924 as assistant coach, and four years later he became head coach at Michigan State college.

The next year he returned to Michigan as head coach. Beginning in 1930, his teams tied for two Western conference championships and won two in four consecutive seasons.

He was at the peak of his popularity then, but in late years Michigan's fortunes waned and the end of each unsuccessful season brought rumors that he would be relieved.

Clamor for Ouster Continues.

The 1934 team won only one game; in 1935 Michigan won four, lost three and tied one; 1936 brought them one victory and seven defeats, and in 1937, Kipke's last season, its record was four triumphs and four losses.

The clamor against Kipke did not subside despite this improvement and it was climaxed by the announcement of his dismissal.

Then began the speculation over his successor, with at least a dozen men mentioned as possibilities, but so far there has been no inkling as to whom will be chosen or when the choice will be made.

Kipke said he will continue to live in his new home near the campus in Ann Arbor.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 29.—[Special.]—Minnesota defeated the University of Chicago, 45 to 29, in a Big Ten basketball game tonight.

The Gophers, co-champions with Illinois last season, presented such an effective defense that eight minutes passed before the Maroons could score a field goal. And to further harass Chicago, at the eleven minute mark its captain, Kendall Petersen, was ejected on fouls. It was Petersen who had scored the first Chicago basket. With this advantage, Minnesota ran up a 24 to 11 lead at the half.

Gophers Use Reserves.

On resumption of play, Gopher reserves shoved the score up to 34 to 19, and then the varsity continued in the same manner, at one time leading, 42 to 19. Here, however, and until the end of the game, the Maroon defense tightened somewhat to restrict the winners to three points while their own offense accounted for ten.

The crowd of 11,000 received most pleasure from the performance of Fred Mullins of Chicago. Playing under the handicap of an injured leg, Mullins led his team in scoring with six points. Paul Amundsen sank two baskets for the Maroons.

Kundla Best for Gophers.

Best shot for the Gophers was Johnny Kundla, who made three baskets and five free throws for eleven points. A total of thirty-five fouls was called on the two teams. Two others besides Peterson committed four each and had to leave the game. They were Eggemeyer of Chicago and Spear of Minnesota.

DE PAUL LOSES, 41-40

De Paul university, experiencing its leanest basketball season in a decade, lost two games in the final seconds last night in the De Paul gymnasium.

The varsity quintet, leading Western State Teachers' college, 40 to 39, with five seconds to play, let Wayne Davidson get loose for the basket that meant a 41 to 40 triumph for the Kalamazoo, Mich., school. Earlier the De Paul freshmen had dropped a 38 to 36 decision to the Western State frosh on a field goal that barely beat the final gun.

Seventh of Season.

The varsity's defeat, its seventh of the season and third in a row, came after an apparently safe margin had been gained over the aggressive Western State five. Ahead, 19 to 17, at the end of the first half, in which the score was tied six times, De Paul moved into a 30 to 23 lead midway through the second period.

At this point, however, Western whipped in six points while holding De Paul scoreless. Kovacs then matched field goals by Crowley and Norris, and Peckham tied the score at 34 to 34 with a short shot. Bob Neu's free throw gave De Paul the lead, but Peckham finally got the Teachers out in front with another short shot.

Then, Mr. Davidson!

Norris sank a field goal, and Peckham tied it again with a free throw. Free throws by Neu and Crowley were wiped out by Guse's field goal from the middle of the floor, but Crowley dropped another free throw to give De Paul a 40 to 39 lead. Davidson then came through with the winning points.

Neu, De Paul guard, led both teams in scoring with 16 points on five field goals and six free throws. He fouled out in the final minutes, the third player to go out on personals. A total of 35 fouls were called on both teams. Peckham, center, was high scorer for Western State with four field goals and three free throws, 11 points.

EDDIE SCHROEDER SETS HALF MILE SKATING RECORD

Northwest Club Wins Meet; C. Y. O. Second.

Table of Points

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Northwest | 390 | Unattached | 40 |
| C. Y. O. | 240 | Southtown | 30 |
| Elgin | 90 | Midwest A. C. | 20 |
| Olympic | 80 | Aurora | 10 |

Eddie Schroeder of the Northwest club, 1931 Silver Skates champion, set a new western outdoor speed record for the half mile by covering the route in 1 minute 22 seconds in the Illinois Skating association meet at Glen Ellyn yesterday. He clipped 9.2 seconds off the record set by Vic Ronchetti two weeks ago at Elgin in the tri-state meet.

Schroeder got off to a poor start, but worked his way to the front as the three lap race progressed. With one lap to go he moved into third place and took the outside lane to set the pace in the back stretch, pulling away from the Serro brothers, John and Charley, who finished second and third, respectively.

Gathman Wins Mile.

In the mile Schroeder fell at the fourth lap, but regained his feet to finish third. Ed Gathman of Elgin won the event in a close finish with Mike Andruch of the Northwest club, who finished second. The time for the mile was 2:58.5.

Northwest won the meet, gathering 390 points against the C. Y. O.'s 240. Individual honors for the day were won by two Northwest stars, Schroeder making 40 and Elaine Bogda winning two events for a total of 60 points.

In the men's class A 440 yard sprint Bob Sherman took the lead from the gun and held it with Kenny Kisselburg, his Northwest teammate, second, by less than a stride, and Ray Doersam of the Olympic club, third. Schroeder, whose forte is longer distance events, was fourth.

Miss Bogda First in 440.

Elaine Bogda established herself as likely winner of the state title at Aurora today by winning the women's 440 yard event, beating out Veronica Leonard of the C. Y. O. and Marilyn Pitt of the Olympic club, respectively. Miss Bogda's teammate and foremost opponent, Shirley Jameson, in the title events today did not compete, but will be at Aurora for the championships.

Both the C. Y. O. and Northwest Skating clubs were handicapped by the absence of stars, several of whom are in Minneapolis competing in the North American indoor title races.

Fifty men and twenty-five women, eager to win the Illinois skating title, will compete today on Mastodon lake, Phillips park, Aurora, Ill., beginning a campaign that will continue through February until the United States indoor meet is held in the Chicago Arena on Feb. 26 and 27.

Men will race in four events—the 440 yard dash, half mile, mile, and two miles. Women will compete in three races, the 440, half mile, and mile events. A dozen other races are carded for the various classes and age groups, but the title events are for senior men and women.

Eddie Schroeder of Chicago, who has been a member of the 1932 and 1936 Olympic teams, holds the national two mile record and is the Illinois defending champion, will encounter strong competition from the skaters in his home state.

Leading contenders for Schroeder's title are Bob Sherman, Schroeder's teammate from the Northwest Skating club; Tony Neberz of the C. Y. O., Ray Doersam and Eddie Stundl of the Olympic club, Ed Gathman of Elgin, Don Meyers of Rockford, and Tom Baacke of the Midwest Athletic club.

The women's championship event is an open race with the title holder, Mrs. Eleanor Theil-Dyer, in Minneapolis today, seeking the North American crown. Miss Shirley Jameson of the Northwest club, a University of Illinois co-ed, and her teammate, Elaine Bogda, must battle the Swierkos sisters, Helen of the C. Y. O. and Genevieve of the Olympic club for title honors.

The field in the nonchampionship events is expected to exceed 400 entries.

Trace Decline of Popularity in U. S. of Soccer

BY OFFSIDE.

An investigation of the status of soccer football in America has revealed that it is losing its popularity, although it remains the outstanding athletic activity in Europe. As evidence of its drawing power it can be cited that the last England-Scotland match in April in Glasgow was played before 188,000 and more than 15,000 were turned away.

The decline of soccer in America, a sport established in the 1860's, had its origin in the years immediately following the world war. Twenty years ago Chicago was one of the soccer centers of the country boasting such strong teams as the Pullmans, Canadians, Thistles, and the Brickies. Each team had its own followers, playing to thousands at every game. Chicago's only teams today with drawing power of more than a few hundred are the Maccabees and Sparta, professional clubs. The lack of enthusiasm for soccer has extended to other former centers of the sport throughout the nation.

Class of Play Declines.

Perhaps the chief factor in soccer's decline is the fact that the class of play today does not compare with that in America 20 years ago. This is attributed to more stringent immigration laws which cut the number of stars available from Europe, and the gradual fading from the scene of former stars in America. To combat these factors, soccer officials recommend that America adopt the practice prevalent in Europe of hiring professional coaches. Tilden and Oak Park High schools in the Chicago district have such coaches and the teams long have ranked high in amateur competition.

Another factor militating against large soccer crowds is that schedules are played through the winter in severe temperatures. It has been noted that even American football fails to draw when near zero temperatures prevail. Soccer officials in Chicago urge that the schedules be drawn up only for spring, summer, and fall months. Objections to the suggestion, based on the premise that summer weather is too hot for the type of game, have been answered by the contention that recent international matches played against some team in Chicago all have been held in the summer, with no ill effect on the players.

Hold Meeting in June.

The United States Football association, governing body of American soccer, will hold its 25th anniversary meeting in New York City in June. Chicago officials plan to present these suggestions to the group in opening a campaign to restore soccer to its former popularity in America

The petition alleges the government illegally taxed sums of money accruing from a series of motion picture short subjects he made for Warner Brother Pictures, Inc.

Open Mann Park Ice Boat Regatta Today

Ice boats manned by experts will skim over the ice on Lake Calumet, 120th street and Stony Island avenue, today and next Sunday in the annual Mann park Chicago regional ice boat regatta sponsored by the Chicago park district.

More than 25 craft are expected to participate in four events, the first starting at 10 a. m. All entries must be registered 30 minutes before the race in which they are to compete.

The four events will be divided into two groups, the 75 and 100 square foot classes, making up two five mile races and two ten mile events, the latter starting at noon.

The first event will be for the 75 square foot class over a five mile course, followed by the 100 foot group at 11 a. m. over the same course. At noon the first ten mile race will be started for the 75 foot crafts with the 100 square foot flyers concluding the events.

Annual winners will have their names inscribed on the Harold Motz trophy, which will be presented to the persons who score the most points over a period of three years. Racing ribbons will be awarded yearly.

EXPECT SHAKEUP IN MIDGET AUTO RACE STANDING

A shakeup in title standings is anticipated tonight in the 124th Field Artillery armory, 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue, when the leading indoor auto race drivers of the central states meet in a ten event program of short races. The first race will start at 8:30 p. m.

The program includes a 25 lap main event, four ten lap elimination races, a 12 lap reverse order handicap, a ten lap consolation, and several novelty races. Lieut. A. J. Strak, general manager of the races, states that shorter races will continue in the armory until the fans demand another 100 lap race.

Although Marshall Lewis of Los Angeles, point standing leader, lately has had little success, his lead is not in jeopardy tonight, but the next eight places can change hands. Harry MacQuinn of Indianapolis moved into second place last week over the injured and idle Jimmy Snyder, while Shorty Sorenson, Cowboy O'Rourke, Art Hartsfeld, Ted Duncan, and Duke Nalon can pass Johnny Ritter, fourth place holder, unless the latter returns to competition.

Hartsfeld, MacQuinn, Sorenson, and Nalon are the favorites in tonight's racing, while Ted Duncan will renew his bid in Tony Bettenhouser's improved racer. Duncan qualified the car in second place in the time trials last week, but experienced motor trouble in the title races.

Terry, Writers Meet--Report No Casualties

New York, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Bill Terry made what appeared to be a move toward burying the hatchet in his row with the baseball writers today and then predicted his Giants would win the National league pennant for the third straight year.

In his first meeting with the New York writers since his recent magazine article criticizing them, Terry made no mention of the fuss, but he was more pleasant than at any previous time in the memory of the oldest inhabitant.

In his 42d street office he reviewed the coming season from the Terry standpoint, picked the Cubs to give the Giants their toughest fight, with the St. Louis Cardinals as a strong threat, looked forward to another world series with the Yankees, and then revealed that he has some trading irons in the fire, possibly involving deals with the Cincinnati Reds or Cubs.

Smile Is a Surprise.

Terry made his first appearance of the day at the International league meeting, where a 154 game schedule opening April 21 was adopted.

"Hy, fellows," Terry greeted the writers, with a smile that surprised all hands by its unusual pleasantness. Then he shook hands all around, playfully punched one scribe just above the belt line, and walked on.

Afterward he invited all over to the Giants office for the year's first Terry talk.

There'll be no difference in the Giants' lineup for 1938 from that which took a fearful beating from the Yankees in last fall's world series.

"I'm definitly starting Mel Ott on third base again," Terry explained, "with Johnny McCarthy back on first. Hank Leiber will get the center field job.

"And I think we'll win again," he added confidently. "The Cubs will be the toughest of the bunch, and the Cardinals may be a lot different if Dizzy Dean comes back. But the second division clubs will be no stronger."

Seeks an Outfielder.

The possibility of a deal with the Cincinnati Reds seemed most likely. While Terry was in the International league meeting Bill McKechnie, Reds' manager, phoned him about a trade. Terry replied that he'd call back later after thinking it over.

"McKechnie wants an outfielder and wants to make a change in his catching staf," Terry disclosed. "We've discussed deals before with the Reds, but we've never been close enough to make a trade. I'm not considering Paul Derringer [Reds pitcher] in any deal. Otherwise I don't know what players would be involved.

"You know, too, there's been some talk of a three cornered deal with the Reds and Cubs. Chicago likes Jojo Moore and we like Frank Demaree. But I don't know if we'd make a trade on those terms. Moore is still a plenty good ball player."

FEDERAL JUDGE DISMISSES SUIT AGAINST LOUIS

The suit was dismissed because Black is a resident of Chicago, thereby bringing the case within the jurisdiction of the state court. Joseph E. Clayton, colored lawyer for Bruseaux, obtained Judge Barnes' permission to file an amended complaint in federal court naming only Louis and Roxborough, who are residents of Detroit.

Bruseaux brought the original suit July 18, 1935, charging that the Louis group had defamed his character in reply to his charges that Louis had been doped before the bout with Max Schmeling. Bruseaux based his action on a published statement by Louis and his managers which included the following countercharges:

"Rumors of Joe Louis being 'doped' not only are false and libelous, but part of a campaign of blackmail and shakedown maliciously pursued before and after the fight by Sheridan A. Bruseaux, a Chicago south side detective."

Newark, N. J., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Police said today a man arrested here had confessed ransacking a dressing room of the Columbus, Ohio, Red Birds during the Little World series here last September and stealing $1,812 in cash, checks and jewelry.

Deputy Police Chief John Haller said Henry Mrozowicz, 21, of Newark had confessed the robbery at Ruppert stadium. Haller said much of the jewelry was pawned in New York, but Mrozowicz threw an engraved watch, presented by Columbus fans to Enos Slaughter, Red Bird outfielder, into the Passaic river because its inscription made it too difficult to sell.

Cooper Scores 136; Takes Second Place.

Oakland, Cal., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Jimmy Hines scored another 67 today for a total 134 to lead the field at the half-way mark in the $5,000 Oakland 72-hole open golf tournament.

Hines' pace gave him a two-shot advantage as the field was trimmed to the 60 low scoring professionals, together with last place ties, and the ten low amateurs.

Hines, who picked off second money in two recent southern California tournaments, might have posted a 64 for his second round if it were not for three putt greens on the 8th, 13th and 14th holes. He made six birdies.

Cooper Is Second.

Two strokes behind Hines was Harry Cooper. He scored a 66 for a 36-hole total of 136. It was the best round of the tournament.

Cooper's outstanding feat of the round was an eagle 3 on the 474 yard 16th. He banged his second to within six feet of the pin and rolled the ball down.

Cooper's great second round brought him from a five way tie for fourth place to second position, two strokes ahead of John Perelli, of Tahoe, Cal. Perelli hit par today for a total of 138.

Harrison Scores 68.

E. J. Harrison, Little Rock, Ark., moved into contention with 68 and a total of 139 while Paul Runyan of White Plains, N. Y., and John Revolta, Evanston, Ill., each scored 140. Grouped at 141 with four others was Vic Ghezzi, Deal, N. J.

Henry Picard and Sam Snead, with 74 and 73, respectively, today, were tied at 144 strokes with Horton Smith, Lawson Little, and Craig Wood at 146. Jimmy Thomson, winner of the recent $8,000 Los Angeles open, had a wobbly 75 for his second round for a total 149.

Aron Returns to Action with Charley Burns

Milt Aron, who is threatening to become a leading contender for Barney Ross' welterweight championship, will return to action in this week's boxing headliner. He meets Charley Burns, aggressive fighter of Johnstown, Pa., for ten rounds in Marigold Gardens tomorrow.

It will be Aron's first appearance since he scored a six round knockout over Lou Raymond in the same arena Dec. 27.

Burns is making his Chicago debut. Originally he was scheduled to clash with Davey Day, foremost lightweight contender, but an old back ailment forced Day's removal from the card and Aron was substituted.

The hard fighting Burns distinguished himself when he extended Lou Ambers, 135 pound champion, in St. Louis Nov. 16. He also handed Eddie Zivic a beating in his home town Aug. 27.

Burns weighed 139½ pounds against Ambers and 138 against Zivic, compared with the 148 Aron carried against Raymond.

There won't be much difference in the weights of Bronko Nagurski and Fritz Von Schacht when they meet in the windup bout of the wrestling show in the Coliseum Feb. 8, as each scales more than 200 pounds.

Wrestling and boxing matches on this week's schedule include:

CUNNINGHAM 1ST IN K. OF C. MILE; LASH WINS 2 MILE

San Romani Trails Fellow Kansan by 12 Yards.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Glenn Cunningham, indoor and outdoor mile record holder, led Archie San Romani, his New York Curb exchange teammate, by twelve yards to win his fourth consecutive K. of C. mile victory before more than 13,000 tonight in the Prout games at the Boston Garden. Cunningham was timed in 4:13.8. Gene Venzke of the New York A. C., who has won three of these features, placed third, about fifteen yards behind San Romani in the six man field.

Don Lash of Indiana, the indoor two mile record holder, rested for twenty-five minutes after winning his specialty and then started in the mile. He pulled out of the race on the last lap after making a sensational bid on the third. Ray Mahannah of Drake was fourth and Norman Bright of San Francisco fifth.

Don Lash Repeats.

Bright was the early pace setter, and he remained in front for two laps, until Lash rushed from last to first place. The two mile star faded fast when San Romani forged ahead during the sixth lap, and he stayed up front until Cunningham cut loose on the second last lap. Venzke pulled into third place during the fourth lap and remained there.

Lash, world indoor record holder in the two mile, burst around the last bank to overhaul the veteran Joe McCluskey of the New York A. C. by two yards in the Leo Larrivee two-mile event. Lash's time was 9:04.6.

McCluskey took the lead from Lash on the 16th lap and remained in the van for all but the last 30 yards. Lash dropped back as far as fourth, behind Tommy Deckard of Indiana and Floyd Lockner of Norman, Okla., but regained second place at the start of the gun lap. His tremendous closing drive was too much for McCluskey. Of the eight starters only five finished, Locker in third place, Deckard, fourth, and Ray Sears of the St. Louis relay association, fifth.

Another Hoosier, Sam Miller, raced to victory over Charlie Beetham, New York, in the Bishop Cheverus "1,000," which drew six starters. Lou Burns of Manhattan, last year's winner, was a poor third. Miller was timed in 2:16.6.

Towns Wins High Hurdles.

Forrest [Spec] Towns, Georgia's Olympic hurdling champion, defeated Dartmouth's Johnny Donovan, the I. C. A. A. A. A. title holder, by a foot in the 45 yard high hurdles. Towns was timed in 5.8 seconds, a tenth of a second off Sam Allen's indoor world record. Allen placed fifth and last in this event.

Shortly afterward another 1937 winner, Marty Glickman of Syracuse, trailed Ben Johnson of Columbia, I. C. A. A. A. A. champion, and Ken Clapp of Brown, as he finished third in the 50 yard dash final. Johnson was timed in 5.4 seconds.

The first 1937 Prout winner to repeat was New York university's Jimmy Herbert in the William C. Prout memorial "600," who had two yards on Howard Borck of Manhattan when he broke the tape in 1:14. Another last year's victor, Eddie O'Sullivan of the New York Curb exchange, romped away with the "300" event, beating Bob Rodenkirchen of the New York A. C. by 10 yards, while running the distance in 33 seconds.

124th Artillery Poloists Beat 122d, 16 to 6

The 124th Field Artillery polo team defeated the 122d Field Artillery last night, 16 to 6, in the 124th Field Artillery armory, holding their opponents without an earned goal until midway in the final period.

By their victory the 124th combination of Lieut. Don Rice, Capt. Romeo Mura, and Lieut. William D. Fergus took the lead in the Metropolitan Polo league senior division. The performance of these players also virtually assured them berths in the starting lineup when the 124th trio meets Yale next Saturday night in the south side armory.

The score rolled up by the winners tied the armory record for the season, set by the 124th artillery three weeks ago against Fort Sheridan.

BOXER'S STORY OF DIVE DRAWS HEARTY LAUGH

Members of the Chicago boxing fraternity yesterday were amused by a story from Philadelphia quoting Harry Blitman, former southpaw lightweight, as saying he "threw a bout to Eddie Shea in Chicago because I had been ordered to by Al Capone." Shea scored a one round technical knockout in the match, which was listed as a semi-windup to the Billy Jones-Charley Belanger bout in the Coliseum Dec. 16, 1932. It was a benefit show presented under the auspices of the late Mayor Cermak.

James C. Mullen was the matchmaker and Phil Collins the referee. Blitman was purported to have said that Capone had won $90,000 on the bout by betting $30,000 at odds of 3 to 1. Mullen explained the match was unimportant and he doubted if 30 cents was wagered on the outcome.

"It's the biggest joke I've heard in a long time," he laughed.

Referee Collins recalled that Blitman, who was washed up at the time, was given a thorough licking and after two knockdowns Collins stopped the bout with the Philadelphia boxer still on his feet.

The bout attracted gate receipts of less than $2,000.

Medinah Girls Capture Dual Swim Meet

Girl swimmers of the Medinah club last night defeated young mermaids representing the Indianapolis A. C., 36 to 30, in a dual meet in the Medinah club pool.

In connection with the girls' events two men's central A. A. U. championship races were held and the women's central A. A. U. fancy diving championship was successfully defended by Arlite Smith of the Medinah club.

Chuck Wilson of Medinah, competing unattached, won both men's A. A. U. events, taking the 100 yard free style from Bill Zerrin of the Shawnee Country club and beating Stewart Bader of the Midwest A. C. in the 150 yard back stroke.

The program, arranged by Swimming Director Stanley Brauninger, drew a capacity crowd which vigorously applauded the performance of Johnny Howard who swam 400 feet under water to break the thirty-two year old mark of 320 feet. Howard was under water two minutes and two seconds.

RONCHETTI 3D IN NORTH AMERICAN TITLE ICE MEET

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Frank Stack, Canadian Olympic skater from Sudbury, Ont., tonight won the first two races to score 60 points and take the lead at the halfway mark in the senior men's division of the two day North American speed skating meet.

Don Johnson of Minneapolis' Maple Hill club finished second to Stack in the three-quarter mile final and the 30 points thus earned gave him second place in the standings with 50 points.

Vic Ronchetti, former Chicago Tribune Silver Skates champion, put together a second and third place in the 440 and three-quarter mile, respectively, to place third with 30 points.

Manager and Wife Urge Jim to Quit Ring

New York, Jan. 29.—[U. P.]—James J. Braddock is considering retirement from the ring and probably will reach a decision Monday, Joe Gould, his manager, said tonight.

If Braddock does quit it will be because of the insistence of his wife, Mrs. Mae Braddock, and of Gould, his long time friend and manager. Braddock, visiting friends in New Jersey, could not be reached.

"Jim wouldn't say anything anyway," Gould said. "The matter is simply this. I want the public to remember Jim as he appeared in the last two rounds of his fight with Tommy Farr. I've asked him to quit for good and all. There are a lot of other things he can do.

"But Jim sees that there is something like $50,000 in another fight with Farr, and that's an awful lot of money."

Braddock and Farr are tentatively scheduled in a return engagement in March. Braddock won a split decision over the Welshman last week.

It has been reported frequently that Mrs. Braddock is anxious for Jim to quit. According to one report, shortly before the Farr fight she told Tex Sullivan, Braddock's secretary, to "get Jim's gloves right after the fight is over, win, lose or draw. I want those gloves because they are the last ones Jim is ever going to pull on."

LAST NIGHT'S RESULTS.

Toronto, 4; Detroit, 1.
Boston, 2; Montreal Maroons, 2.

The New York Rangers, whose march to the top of the National Hocky league heap was stopped after six games without defeat, by the Canadiens last Thursday, will be the Blackhawks' opponents in the Stadium tonight.

Manager Lester Patrick never has been as bold as he is this season with predictions. He not only believes his organization eventually will catch and pass Boston, but that it will sail easily through any opposition it faces in the Stanley cup finals.

Kerr Leads Goalies.

There is sound reasoning to back up Patrick's predictions. In Davie Kerr he has a net minder who is leading the rest of the goalies, not only in shut outs with six to his credit but also in the goals against column. In Cecil Dillon the Rangers have one of the league's leading scorers and in the Dillon-Clint Smith-Lynn Patrick line the New Yorkers possess the United States section's leading scoring string. Babe Pratt, Art Coulter, Joe Cooper, and Ott Heller comprise a quartet of defense men who have protected their goalie better than any other defense combination and they also top the other seven defense departments in the matter of making points to date.

Despite the superlative quality of the 1937-1938 edition of the Rangers, the Blackhawks are the only team in the league who seem to reach the heights when they clash with New York. In four clashes to date they have won three times. Two of the victories were scored on the Rangers' own Madison Square Garden ice.

Voss and Shill Please Manager.

Gratifying results of Thursday's victories over the champion Red Wings in the opinion of Manager Bill Stewart, was the way Carl Voss performed in the injured Louis Trudell's spot between Gottselig and March and the play of the Hawks' new left wing Jack Shill. Shill, although arriving in Chicago after an all day ride just in time to slip into a uniform, was a big help in the much needed victory which put the Hawks two and a half games ahead of the Detroit Red Wings.

The Blackhawks yesterday unconditionally released Victor Heyliger, a former University of Michigan player, because of illness. Heyliger, a promising center acquired at the start of the season, was sent to the St. Paul club for additional seasoning. He was advised by physicians, however, to quit the game because of a sinus infection and a nervous disorder.

COLISEUM SIX DAY BIKE RACE OPENS TONIGHT

Kilian and Vopel Head Field of 13 Teams.

Awaiting the starter's gun, which will be fired tonight by the finger of Judith Allen, night club entertainer, are the twenty-six bicycle riders entered in the international six day race in the Coliseum, 15th street and Wabash avenue. The race will start at 9 o'clock.

Nearly 2,500 miles will be covered by the pedalers before the final sprints Saturday night. Heading the list of riders are Gustav Kilian and Heinz Vopel, winners of nine successive races. Challenging the Germans will be American, French, Polish, Italian, and Jewish teams as well as several combinations of riders paired by Manager George Harvey, who has endeavored to make the field as strong as possible. A second combination that refused to be broken up is Jimmy Walthour and Al Crossley, American pair who beat Kilian and Vopel in New York in December, 1936, and led the Germans on points in the recent Cleveland race until the final hour when the Teutons stole a lap to win.

Realign Two Teams.

A realignment of two teams was made last night when the combination of Cecil Yates and Freddie Ottevaere was broken up, Yates drawing Piet Van Kempen of Holland, who has won thirty-one races. Gotfried Huertgen, powerful German, is paired with Ottevaere, Belgian youngster.

The French combination of Henri Le Page and Fernand Wambst, who caught a boat from Havre just in time to appear in the Cleveland race, also menaces the Germans. Wambst is a newcomer to Chicago.

Other members of the field are well known in Chicago, among them Mickey Rodak, anchor of the Polish team. Willi Korsmeier is his teammate. Fans will honor them Friday night, which will be Polish night.

Preceding Polish night will be Italian night, set for Thursday, when Dominik Camastro and Tom Seatta will be honored. German night is set for Wednesday. German athletic societies of Chicago will be represented at the track.

Under New Promoters.

The race opening tonight is the first promotion of Joe Tobin and Charles Wolfe in Chicago. They have been successful in their races in eight other cities.

Two hours of amateur bicycle races, in which representatives of twelve Chicago clubs will compete, will precede the race proper. The teams are competing under the auspices of the Amateur Bicycle League of America.

Wise Prince Wins $7,000 Hialeah Race

Miami, Fla., Jan. 29.—[Special.]—Carrying on with a surprising show of power in the last furlong, Wise Prince today won the $7,000 Miami Beach handicap at Hialeah, finishing the mile in 1:37 and losing many highly fancied horses through the stretch run.

Supposed to be only a sprinter, the 6 year old son of Wise Counsellor, bearing the silks of Felix Spatola, eclipsed several route runners which were supposed to have great possibilities for the $50,000 Widener Challenge cup.

The winner returned $16.40 for $2 after drawing off to win by a length and a half from Mucho Gusto, now owned by Ramsey and Coppage. Three lengths to the rear, Go Home closed fast from a slow beginning to land the show. Wise Prince earned $5,250.

Carries 114 Pounds.

Not only did Wise Prince win decisively, but he did so under 114 pounds. Carroll Bierman was in the saddle. The mutuel play on the Miami Beach was heavy and contributed toward the day's total of $539,291, largest handle of the meeting to date.

Mrs. Emil Denemark's entry of War Minstrel and Corinto were favored at slightly more than 4 to 1 when the field paraded to the post.

Cravat Wins as Expected.

The secondary feature saw a decisive victory and a fine performance by Townsend B. Martin's Cravat. This 3 year old son of Sickle finished a mile in 1:38 in the Sarasota purse, scoring by four lengths. Backed into odds-on favoritism, Cravat returned 75 cents on the dollar. He was well rated in the early part of the race and then came on nicely when asked to put away the opposition. Mythical King was second and Mightily third.

MARTIN BARTON galloped along for the first half mile, began to make up ground around turn, was taken to outside and, closing gamely, got up to win in last stride. PEACEFUL, very rank at start, was placed outside of stalls, broke good, made up ground gradually and held on gamely. BOMAR was rushed into lead, appeared beaten at top of stretch, but came again at end. MISS CAPERS was never a serious factor. BLACK PETER had plenty of speed for seven furlongs, then tired.

MAEDIC got away fast and clear of interference, came to outside in stretch, closed gamely and won drawing away. FAIR LEAD broke good but was pinched back by KINGSBURY at far turn, was taken to outside and finished fast. KINGSBURY broke running, showed speed but weakened badly. BIOLOGIST, improving, finished with a great burst of speed. HIGHER CLOUD took a stride and then swerved to the outside, almost knocking PANTHER CREEK down and never was a factor. WISE PRINCE broke very good, followed pace to stretch where he closed with a rush, took lead and won going away. MUCHO GUSTO got away fine, showed good speed and held on well. GO HOME broke slow and trailed far back, worked his way up on the outside and finished with a rush. CLOCKS jumped away to a fast lead, showed speed but weakened in last quarter mile. MAERIEL slow to get into his stride, closed very fast. PICCOLO ran good race. PREEMINENT ran a good race. WAR MINSTREL tired after showing a flash of early speed. MOTHEL best ridden. He was allowed to gallop along for a mile and a half, then moved up, came to inside entering stretch and outgamed LATER ON. # MEE AND RAMME BOWLERS CRACK LEAGUE RECORD

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

A season record was broken and a mark that had stood since 1926 withered before the fire of the Mee and Ramme Undertakers in the Samuelson Arcade Major league, one of the better northwest side bowling organizations.

While going about the business of winning two out of three from the Budweisers, the Mee and Ramme team piled up a 3160 series that included 1177, the league's all-time high game. The best previous game was 1159, set by a group of bowlers also sponsored by Mee and Ramme.

During the heavy bombardment Clarence Steinke of Mee and Ramme shot games of 246, 257 and 214 for 717, the best individual total of the season. Thus Johnny Small, with 706, had the honor of holding high series for only a week.

On North Side Alleys.

Pins were hard to get in the Gold Coast Major league, and the leading Fuller Press quintet was the only team to break 3,000. They did, quite emphatically, with 3,148 for three victories over the Gold Crown Beers. Joe Fischer, 689, and Ike Kresek, 675, led the Fullers. Joe Sinke tops the league with a 218 average, followed by Bill Hargadon with 211. . . . Aided by a 256 game George Hoffman led the Chicago North Side Traveling league with 652. Next were Martin Szorc, 639; Pete Barak, 633; Pat Panzek, 623; Ed Early, 621; Frank Wanat, 616; John Paulus, 602, and John Urban, 600. . . . The 5300 Super-Service team piled up a city record game of 1,217 in the Northwest Traveling league on the North Town alleys. How they scored:

Classic League.

The Classic league will bowl tonight in the West End Recreation, 3425 West 26th street, with first division teams meeting second division opponents. The pairings: Monarch Beers vs. the Charles H. Webers; the Oak Leaf Motors vs. the Baby Ruth Candies; the Triangle Shirts vs. the champion Prager Beers; the Pabst Blue Ribbons vs. Power House Candy.

On South Side Alleys.

The Bruck Major league teams had to be content with totals under 3,100 with the Bleeker Brothers' 3,065 being high. Leading individuals were Adam Plunge, 674; Bob Hayes, 662; Frank Menecek, 646; Pete Smidt, 638; Bill Buckley, 629; Moon Mullins, 622; Otto Boehm, 618; Bill Harper, 616; Hank Kluge, 614; Louis Sadjak, 614; Clem Lightfoot, 606; Eddie Boyle, 604, and Herb Swanson, 600. . . . The Dudeck Coals are still setting the pace in South End Traveling league, their record now showing 33 victories and 15 defeats. William Giese of Marzanos tops the individuals with a 202 average. E. Broderdorf of the Dudecks is hitting an even 200.

Windy City Major League.

The Budweisers were defeated twice by the Soper Brothers but clung to first place in the Windy City Major league. The Serrano Cigarros won a pair from the Whitecaps and now are one game off the pace, with thirty-eight won and twenty-two lost. Leading individuals were Bunning of the Mineralites, 704; Theel of Budweisers, 699; Siwe, Whitecaps, 675; Grogan of Burlington Zephyrs, 673; Freitag of Budweisers, 667; Jilek, Soper Brothers, 659; Russell, Soper Brothers, 658; Kowalski, De Young Fuel, 658, and Svestka, Kralovecs, 651. Tomorrow's schedule:

McKesson's Old Crow vs. G. & W. Mill Farm; Boyer-Schultz vs. Mineralites; Soper Brothers vs. Serrano Cigarros; Vogel Brothers vs. De Young Fuel; Budweisers vs. Whitecaps; Blazek Tailors vs. Burlington Zephyrs; J. M. Kralovecs vs. Strachan Coal; Town Club of Cicero vs. O'Keefe Coal.

Northern Anglers Get Thrill in Florida.

BY BOB BECKER.

The salt water bonefish, sometimes called "the bad boy of the Florida keys," has been giving northern fishermen a lot of fun in recent weeks. Anglers who have been putting their rods and reels to work on the wide, flat mud bars several hours below Miami, found no difficulty in connecting with the speedy bonefish—a species that usually confounds fresh water fisherman with its tricks and speed. The largest specimen caught [that we have heard about to date], weighed 9¼ pounds. That is a good sized fish. When we spent some time on the bonefish banks several winters ago we found that they usually ran from 5 to 8 pounds in weight.

The bonefish recently was named the sportiest salt water game fish by some seventy fishing authorities and fishing writers. There is no doubt that the bonefish has that something that thrills fisherman. We have had the good luck to wet a line in fishing waters ranging from Brazil to Alaska. After catching many species of game fish over this wide range of fishing country we had to admit that the bonefish was just about tops, because it requires careful stalking, eternal vigilance, a quick and unusual strike, and skilful handling of line and rod.

Silvery Pearl in Color.

The fish is silvery pearl in color. He's lanky, lean, streamlined, and has a powerful caudal fin. He feeds on the shallows and mud flats. We used to fish from a dinghy which we poled over the shallow banks. There is so little water on the banks that you may get out and walk when you wish.

You spot the bonefish in the bright sun when his silvery tail protrudes from the shallow water and catches the Florida sunlight like a small mirror. He must be approached with great caution and the bait [hermit crab] has to be cast to him. When hooked on light tackle Mr. Bonefish reels off a couple of hundred yards of line before you realize that the skin has been burned from your thumb. After catching many bonefish it's our belief that he has burned more thumbs than any other fish of his size in American waters.

Brook Trout Fans Indifferent.

The bonefish enthusiasts represent only a fairly small group among salt water fishermen. But how they love their bonefish ! The saying is [among these fishermen] that the bonefish speaks only to the permit [another remarkable and fast species] and the permit speaks only with heavenly fishes! Compared to bonefish anglers the followers of the beautiful brook trout in the north are persons who look on their fishing with indifference.

Title Events March 11.

These successful contestants will return to Chicago for the semi-finals and championships on March 11. From this group and from any round of the Tournament of Champions, if a boy merits consideration, a squad of thirty-two will be named for the trip to New York where the eleventh intercity fights will be held in Madison Square Garden March 21. In May the Chicago Golden Gloves team will meet the amateur boxing champions of Europe in the seventh international bouts sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

59 CENT DOLLAR QUITE A BOY: 4 LONG YEARS OLD

And His Future Is as Clouded as Ever.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Tomorrow afternoon at 3:10 the United States dollar will have completed four years at its present gold parity of 15 5/21 grains, nine-tenths fine. Prior to the money debasement program of 1933 and early 1934 the dollar had been worth 25 8/10 grains of the same fineness. The reduction to 59.06 per cent of its former value in terms of gold was the source of the "59 cent" dollar's nickname.

The present short weight dollar's fourth birthday finds its future fully as clouded with uncertainties as any of its previous anniversaries. These uncertainties have been increased recently by the prospects of more "pump priming" expenditures by the federal government, plus the recurring danger of another international currency depreciation contest.

Expect Dose of Inflation.

Although administration leaders in Washington last year repeatedly proclaimed their intention to balance the federal budget, the decline in business activity during the last few months has increased the political clamor for more government spending. Because the raising of taxes to cover such additional expenditures is impossible, especially in view of the business slump, most financial men look for another dose of inflation of one sort or another. Opinions are divided as to whether this inflation will take the form of further borrowing by the government from the banks on treasury I. O. U.s, or whether the theoretical gold "content" of the dollar will be shaved again as it was in 1933 and 1934.

The American dollar is not now "on the gold standard" as it was prior to the emergency bank legislation of April, 1933. That is, paper currency cannot be exchanged for an equivalent amount of gold. Today is the fourth anniversary of the confiscation of all monetary gold by the treasury, including even that formerly held by the federal reserve banks as backing for federal reserve notes. No person or agency in the country, except the treasury itself, may legally hold monetary gold.

Could Declare 50 Cent Dollar.

The treasury department, however, has half the entire world's stock of gold. Under laws already on the statute books the President has the authority to raise the price of this gold—in terms of dollars—by further reducing the theoretical gold content of the dollar, because he did not cut it down as far as he was legally empowered on Jan. 31, 1934. By presidential decree the "59 cent" dollar could be made a "50 cent" dollar at any time.

The declaration of a "50 cent" dollar would automatically result in a "profit" of about 2 billion dollars on the treasury's present gold holdings of nearly 12 billion 800 million dollars. Such an operation just four years ago gave the treasury its "profit" of 2 billion 800 million dollars, about 1 billion 800 millions of which is still left in the "stabilization" fund established for the manipulation of international currency transactions, the government bond market, and the silver market. Immediately before the official debasement of the dollar just four years ago the gold stocks of the United States totaled 4 billion 33 million dollars—measured in "100 cent" dollars.

World Situation Uncertain.

The outlook for the American monetary system on the fourth birthday of the "59 cent" dollar is further clouded by the uncertainties in the international currency situation. Last week, for example, the treasury disclosed that the American stabilization fund was being used to buy French francs daily in an attempt to support the declining French currency, which has been wobbly as a result of political uncertainties in that country plus the bad condition of the French treasury.

Treasury spokesmen explained that collapse of the franc would probably result in the establishment of a "controled" French currency, which would be injurious to American exporters. Many other nations have already clamped the lid on the movement of their currencies over their borders.

In addition to the aid extended to France the treasury has been using American funds to help support the finances of other nations, notably China and Mexico, both of which have been permitted to sell silver to the United States government at arbitrarily high prices in order to get money with which to prevent financial collapse.

Portugal Buys 5 Cargoes of United States Wheat

LONDON, Jan. 29.—(AP)—The Portuguese government today completed purchases of 65,000 tons of wheat from the United States, Argentina, and Australia through the London market. Portugal bought five cargoes from the United States and two each from Argentina and Australia for delivery between February and April.

Holding Firm Abuse Mostly in Utility Field

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The most notorious abuse of the holding company has been in the utility field. In the 1920s many recklessly promoted companies bought up properties at greatly inflated prices, using these values as the basis for the public issuance of securities. With the exception of a few soundly established firms the record of the holding company in the utility field is not impressive.

Samuel Insull.

The flimsy basis of many of these is shown by the train of bankruptcies and reorganizations that followed. Samuel Insull's exploitation of the holding company in his unsuccessful attempt to consolidate his enterprises has brought odium on all holding companies. The operations of Insull and others resulted in making the holding company a target for political attacks.

Controled by Small Holdings.

The holding company of the Insull type resembled only faintly its predecessors in the industrial field. The chief difference was the degree of ownership with which the utility holding companies exercised control over subsidiary properties. Industrial holding companies in the main own all or a substantial majority of the stocks of their subsidiaries. On the other hand the utility holding companies were able to extend their control over a large number of properties by investing a relatively small amount of capital in the junior voting shares.

Sometimes the control rested on the ownership of a bare majority of the voting stocks. Frequently less than a majority of the shares was needed to obtain practical working control. Minority stockholders in the subsidiary properties, whose financial stake was frequently larger than that of the holding company, had no voice in the management of the properties.

Holdings in Middle West.

The consolidated assets of the Middle West Utilities system at the end of 1930 totaled about $1,200,000,000. An investment of about $267,000,000 gave the parent company control of these assets. Securities of the Middle West system held by the public aggregated $1,172,000,000.

The Middle West company was in turn controled by the Insull family through minority holdings of common stock by Insull Utility Investments, Inc., and Corporation Securities company, investment companies. Members of the Insull family owned enough of the voting stock of the two investing companies to control the management. The companies owned approximately 30 per cent of Middle West common, enough to carry working control of that company and its vast chain of subsidiaries.

Repeats on Smaller Scale.

The structure of Middle West was repeated on a smaller scale in another Insull holding company, Midland United company, controling a chain of properties in Indiana and Ohio.

The Utilities Power and Light corporation, now undergoing reorganization in bankruptcy, was still another example of the use of the holding company in the utility field. The sound companies controled by the corporation suffered when the holding collapsed.

NEW TAX PLAN IS OPPOSED BY MANUFACTURERS

Opposition to the proposal that a flat 22 per cent tax be levied on all corporations in lieu of the undistributed profits tax was expressed by James L. Donnelly, executive vice president of the Illinois Manufacturers association, in a letter sent yesterday to Representative A. W. Robertson [D., Va.]. Robertson is a member of the house ways and means committee which has been conducting hearings on proposed changes in corporation taxes.

Robertson was told that a survey made by the manufacturers association showed that 58 members alone were prevented from making extensions and improvements to the amount of nearly $40,000,000 in 1937 as a result of the undistributed profits tax.

HINT RFC MAY RESUME LOANS TO BUSINESS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, will attend next week's conference of more than 500 small business men here, the commerce department announced today.

The chief of the federal lending agency was invited, officials said, "in anticipation that the problem of financing small companies will be one important subject discussed."

The announcement resulted in widespread speculation that the RFC may relax its purse strings, which were tightened early last fall, and invite new applications for loans from small business men who can demonstrate difficulty in obtaining finances elsewhere.

Union Officials Say Fisher BodyPlantOpensTomorrow

Cleveland, O., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Local officials of the United Automobile Workers' union said tonight that the Fisher Body plant here will reopen Monday with approximately 3,300 employés back at work. The plant, which regularly employs about 6,800, has been shut down since Jan. 20.

EXPORTER SEEKS LEASE ON LARGE CO-OP ELEVATOR

U. S. Financed Firm Is Liquidating.

The Continental Grain company is negotiating for the lease held by the Farmers National Grain corporation on the Rock Island elevator at 93d street and Harvard avenue, it was learned yesterday. Farmers National, government financed marketing coöperative, is winding up its affairs as the result of the decision of stockholders last week to dissolve.

The Continental Grain company is one of the largest exporting firms in the country. It is financed largely by foreign capital. Since the revival in America's export trade in grain it has been expanding its elevator properties. The firm is reported to be negotiating for other properties on the eastern seaboard and on the gulf.

Speedy Liquidation Expected.

Transfer of leases on the Rock Island and other properties and disposition of remaining holdings of the coöperative will be completed in a short time, it was indicated. The Rock Island elevator, with a capacity of 4,000,000 bushels of grain, is one of the largest properties operated by Farmers National. It controls a number of other properties throughout the country.

The liquidation of the corporation ends an eight year effort to set up a national system of coöperative marketing into which the federal government poured millions of dollars. The government stands to take a loss of 15 to 20 million dollars on the venture. It now owns a string of elevator properties and other assets which it took over from the corporation two years ago when a refinancing program was effected. These properties were leased back to the corporation, the government retaining title.

Consistent Money Loser.

Except for the period when it acted as commission broker for the defunct Grain Stabilization corporation, Farmers National was a consistent money loser. It was originally chartered in 1929 under the agricultural marketing act which was designed to encourage the coöperative handling of farm commodities. The government put 14 million dollars into the corporation and gave it the profitable brokerage business of Grain Stabilization corporation which was attempting to peg wheat prices at a high level.

Farmers National reached the end of its rope financially in 1936 when the government foreclosed on its properties and advanced it new credits to enable it to continue in operation. The program was designed to make the corporation pay its own way. It called for an "internal tax" on grain marketed through the coöperative, the proceeds to be used for paying off government advances.

Member of Coöp Revolt.

Member coöperatives, the nominal stockholders of the national organization, revolted against this arrangement which cut down the proceeds on their grain. Dissatisfaction resulted early last year in a reorganization and the retirement of C. E. Huff, who had been president of the corporation since its inception. Later in the year directors recommended to stockholders the dissolution of the corporation, a step which was approved at the annual meeting in Chicago last week.

The transfer of leases and liquidation of grain inventories will complete the dissolution. Stocks of grain owned by the corporation are said to be less than 5,000,000 bushels.

TEXAS CITRUS FRUIT CONTROL PLAN EFFECTIVE

Harlingen, Tex., Jan. 29.—[Special.]—Control of the movement of citrus fruit from the lower Rio Grande valley of Texas will become effective tomorrow as planned, it was announced here today on receipt of notice from Secretary of Agriculture Wallace that he has approved the shipper prorating order. The limit set by the control committee is 180,000 boxes, or about 460 carloads, a week.

The control committees in the citrus producing area and the secretary of agriculture ignored the protest of a group of thirty independent shippers who have threatened to close their plants in a body or ignore the prorating order. The plan reduces shipments almost 50 per cent.

Sales of Chicago Retail Stores Are Below Year Ago

Sales of 303 independent retail stores in Chicago declined about 9.3 per cent in December as compared with December, 1936, according to preliminary estimates of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce. The average decline for all of Illinois was 9.1 per cent from a year ago. Adjusted for the number of working days, December sales in the Chicago stores showed an increase of 22 per cent over November sales.

Indiana Group Requests Rail Rate Boost Be Granted

Washington, D. C., Jan. 29.—(AP)—The Vincennes [Ind.] Chamber of Commerce urged the interstate commerce commission today to approve the railroad's pending application for a general increase of 15 per cent in freight rates. The chamber recommended the increase be granted "to the end that the railroads of this nation be able to operate efficiently and, in some instances, avoid insolvency and receiverships."

Railroads Now Employ 800 Thousand Less Than in 1926

Better Trade Signs Offset by Price Dips

Encouraging signs in business indices that the trade slump is leveling off were offset last week by declines in security and commodity markets. The President's warning to business on Tuesday to keep wages up and hold prices down depressed stock prices, and his armament program announcement, calling for little increase in expenditures immediately, brought further weakness in the market.

Steel production, advancing last week for the fourth consecutive time, was scheduled at 32.7 per cent of capacity, up 2.9 points or 9.7 per cent from the preceding week. Building contracts were running 13 per cent ahead of the corresponding 1937 week, and 6 per cent higher than in the preceding week. The advance in this line was caused by the awarding of large industrial contracts. It was estimated that residential building in January was 25 per cent less than that of a year ago.

Little Sustained Buying.

Inventories of some consuming industries continued light, with little evidence of sustained buying demand in the face of current uncertainty as to prices. In several fields a moderate expansion in ordering has been registered in recent weeks, but it has been spotty and mostly replacement buying.

Automobile assemblies were practically unchanged from the preceding week, but about 20 per cent less than a year ago. The prospect for continuing automobile production at the present rate is not bright, however, because of the heavy dealer stocks on hand which are not moving, it was said. The report of the Chicago Federal Reserve bank last week on business conditions showed that automobile stocks on hand in the district at the end of December were twice as large as a year ago, and that retail sales in December were only 50 per cent of December, 1936.

December Reports Depressing.

A depressing note was further reports of the decline in production, employment, and pay rolls in December, and in the present tendency to spread the work by cutting hours. The United States Steel corporation placed its office workers on a five day week instead of a five and a half day schedule, amounting to a salary reduction of about 9 per cent.

The national industrial conference board estimated that the number of unemployed increased in December by about 1,300,000 to a total of 8,998,000. Statistics from the Illinois department of labor showed that the decline in employment and wages from November to December was the second largest in fourteen years.

Hope of improvement through coöperation of government and business was dashed by the President's stand on prices and wages. The result is that many business men regard the long term outlook as extremely uncertain.

BUILDING STEEL ORDERS IN 1937 GAIN SLIGHTLY

New York, Jan. 29.—(AP)—New business booked by the structural steel industry during 1937 totaled 1,628,641 tons, an increase of a little more than 1 per cent over 1,609,016 tons in 1936, the American Institute of Steel Construction reported today.

Shipments in 1937 amounted to 1,660,570 tons, or 59.2 per cent of normal [yearly average of 1928-'31]. They were 1,548,205 tons in the preceding year.

December new business declined to 99,070 tons from 166,542 in December, 1936. Shipments dropped to 108,396 from 121,775 a year earlier.

INDIVIDUAL INCOME UP 5.5 PER CENT IN '37; TOTAL IS 67 BILLIONS

New York, Jan. 29.—[Special.]—The total income received by individuals in the United States in 1937 amounted to $67,534,000,000, an increase of 5.5 per cent over the $63,984,000,000 in 1936, the national industrial conference board estimated today. The income was 15 per cent below the peak of $79,101,000,000 in 1929.

The board pointed out that the 1936 total was abnormal, due to the distribution by the government of more than $1,800,000,000 in payment of the soldiers' bonus in that year.

"The 5.5 per cent increase in income was not as large in terms of actual goods and services purchasable as in dollars, because the cost of living was 4.4 per cent higher," the board said.

Niagara Share corporation of Maryland showed net assets at the end of 1937 equivalent to $11.19 a class B common share against $22.59 a year earlier.

Overseas Securities company, Inc., reported net assets were equal to $5.04 a share, compared with $15.65 a share a year ago.

Stocks Record 8th Straight Price Decline

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 29.—The stock market today underwent its eighth consecutive decline. Trading for the most part was slow, although a slight pickup in volume came in the last half hour of the short session as offerings increased. The turnover was 434,170 shares.

Leading stocks moved in a comparatively narrow range throughout the session and few others swung outside the limit of a point. Many traders were reported on the sidelines, unwilling to guess on prospects for next week.

Steel Loses Full Point.

United States Steel stock opened at 52½, a decline of a half point. It recouped the loss and added a quarter point to yesterday's final price, but sold off toward the end to finish a point net lower. Bethlehem started a fraction higher, but fell into the decline in later dealings.

Railroad stocks made a comparatively good showing. Fractional advances were frequent, reflecting the optimistic business statements issued in Pittsburgh by leading railroad executives. Erie, whose control passed today into the hands of Chesapeake and Ohio, moved up a fraction. Atchison and New York Central also improved. The rail group was the only one to record a gain in the averages, but the change was slight.

Auto Range Is Narrow.

General Motors, Chrysler, and other stocks moved within a narrow range. Fractionally lower prices were the rule at the close.

Allied Chemical dropped 6½ points in an inactive market and du Pont gave up less than a point. Aircraft issues were soft. Douglas gave up 2 points and United Aircraft declined more than a point. Westinghouse Electric lost 1½ points. Coppers and utilities eased.

Mild inflation talk buoyed gold mines, with Dome and McIntyre touching new highs in the week.

CHICAGO STEEL OUTPUT WILL BE CUT THIS WEEK

The steel ingot production rate will continue unchanged this week at Pittsburgh, but will decline in the Chicago and the Youngstown districts, it was indicated yesterday. Chicago operations are expected to fall 2.7 points to approximately 21 per cent of capacity. The Youngstown district will begin operations at about 26 per cent of theoretical capacity, compared with 28 per cent a week ago.

Of the 83 open harth furnaces in the Youngstown district, only 28 will be in operation this week, compared with 31 last Monday and 30 at midweek. Two bessemer plants will continue operations on part schedule.

Rock Island Changes Time of Golden State Limited

The Rock Island railroad, effective Feb. 13, will operate the Golden State Limited out of Chicago at 10:15 a. m. instead of 9:15 p. m., W. J. Leahy, passenger trafic manager, announced yesterday. The Golden State Limited will take the schedule formerly assigned to the Apache, which is being discontinued. The streamline Rocket train that has been running between Kansas City and Denver will be withdrawn from that service on Feb. 3 and on Feb. 13 it will be placed in service between Kansas City and Oklahoma City.

Dividend Cuts Show Profits Tax Harmful

BY HERBERT VEDDER

Evidence has been given in corporation dividend actions in the last ten days to indicate definitly that the undistributed profits tax, far from furthering the administration's stated object of leveling out peaks and valleys of business, is tending to build up the peaks and make canyons out of the valleys, in so far as investors are concerned.

Forced to distribute substantially all of their profits in good years or pay as a penalty a large portion of retained earnings to the government in taxes, corporations have begun to cut dividends or omit them entirely as soon as a business slump appears. They have been discouraged from building up surpluses such as those that permitted continuing dividends long after the depression set in toward the end of 1929.

Reluctant to Pay Dividends.

Even companies reported to be doing comparatively well are reluctant to pay out dividends now. Many boards of directors wish to wait until later in the year to see what earnings will be for 1938 and whether the undistributed profits tax will stay on the books before making payments. This was brought home by Deere & Co., which omitted its common dividend despite reports that the farm equipment business is still fairly good.

Not knowing what the future may bring and having been prevented from accumulating extra cash, a number of corporation managements have found it advisable to omit or cut down dividends in order to maintain a sound cash position. Many companies have little ready cash because a large amount of their funds is tied up in inventories.

Brooklyn Gas Is Example.

One of the most startling dividend omissions last week was that of the Brooklyn Union Gas company. Except for 1920 and 1921, it had not missed paying dividends in any year since its organization in 1895—and it paid a $7 special in 1926 to make up for the 1920-'21 lapse. Until cut to $3 in 1936, the company's dividend rate long had been $5 annually while earnings ranged from $6 to $8 a year, permitting accumulation of surplus. The $3 rate approximated reduced earnings until cut to 40 cents quarterly last July. There has been no surplus lately.

Leading examples of surpluses benefiting stockholders were those of Bethlehem and United States Steel, which continued dividend payments into 1932, although operating at a loss after 1930. Both companies deferred action last week after substantial 1937 payments. Allegheny Steel and American Rolling Mill continued dividends into 1931, although earning nothing on the common shares after the middle of 1930. Both have deferred dividends.

Actions of Other Firms.

The Anaconda Wire and Cable company handed out $4.75 per common share last year, including a $1.25 extra to escape the undistributed profits tax. It omitted its dividend last week. In 1930 and 1931, however, it paid four times as much as it earned on the common—out of savings from preceding good years.

Directors of the Armstrong Cork company and the Belden Manufacturing company were among those to say flatly last week that future dividends will depend entirely on earnings, that cash position must be maintained. Both paid large dividends last year to distribute most of earnings and escape the penalty tax. Armstrong Cork cut its dividend in half, but promised a year-end special if business turns out to be better than expected.

Changes in dividend policy have been announced by Reynolds Tobacco and Continental Can—regular quarterly dividends being cut, with total payments for any year depending on earnings in that year.

On the other hand, some corporations such as the Caterpillar Tractor company, which conserved cash by paying extra dividends in preferred stock or which paid the tax rather than distribute all earnings, are continuing regular dividends.

4 Million Dollar Hotel Sold to Bank for $50,000

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 29.—[Special.]—The Sagamore hotel, valued at $4,000,000, was sold today in foreclosure for $50,000. This sale was the final effort in a five year struggle for financial reorganization of the property. The purchaser was the Continental Bank and Trust company of New York, trustee under a $2,250,000 issue of S. W. Straus & Co. bonds floated in 1921 and on which $1,300,000 principal was outstanding.

BIG INVESTMENT TRUSTS CAUGHT IN STOCK SLUMP

Shrinkage in Assets Averages 34.49%.

An accounting of the 1937 results of major investing companies shows that they, like many individuals dabbling in the stock market, were caught unprepared for the swift decline in values that began last August and continued through the remainder of the year.

The average depreciation in assets shown by the companies in 1937 was greater than the decline in the Dow-Jones industrial stock average. An analysis of results reported by 18 major companies showed an average net depreciation in assets of 34.49 per cent in 1937. The decline in the Dow-Jones industrial average for the year was 32.8 per cent.

Results of individual companies varied widely. The largest shrinkage among the individual companies was 57.49 per cent, the smallest, 17.71 per cent. The depreciation in most cases was between 30 and 40 per cent.

Record of 18 Companies.

| | Shrnkg. before Creds. for. Div. and Int. Paid. | Net shrnkg. Aft. Credits. |
| Adams Express | 34.22% | 31.58% |
| American Intern'tional | 36.97% | 35.15% |
| Chicago Corp | 33.65% | 30.00% |
| Dividend Shares | 42.97% | 35.32% |
| Gen Am Investors | 36.98% | 35.01% |
| Incorporated Investors | 38.30% | 33.64% |
| Lehman Corp | 38.91% | 30.60% |
| Mass. Investors | 35.43% | 31.83% |
| Quarterly Income | 46.45% | 33.30% |
| State St. Investment | 35.44% | 31.20% |
| Tri-Continental | 39.53% | 36.71% |
| Supervised Shares | 44.77% | 40.20% |
| American General | 34.59% | 33.29% |
| Selected Industries | 36.80% | 32.61% |
| Selected American | 30.26% | 44.41% |
| Broad St. Investment | 60.95% | 57.49% |
| Capital Administration | 33.98% | 30.80% |
| National Bd. & Share | 23.55% | 17.71% |
| Average | 38.08% | 34.49% |

Lower Liabilities Considered.

In figuring the shrinkage in asset values, provision was made for reductions made during the year in liabilities, including capital.

Only seven of the eighteen companies held their losses within the percentage decline shown by the Dow-Jones industrial averages. A better showing is made when the results are compared with the Standard Statistics company's market averages based on 419 stocks, which is more representative of the market as a whole than the Dow-Jones index. The former index dropped 37.1 per cent in 1937. The depreciation shown in the portfolios of only three reporting companies exceeded this figure.

The Chicago corporation, biggest investing company in the middle west, made a better showing than most of the big eastern companies, showing a depreciation of 30 per cent, compared with 30.60 per cent for Lehman corporation and 34.22 for Adams Express.

National Bond Does Best.

The best record among the eighteen firms was made by the National Bond and Share company, which held its net shrinkage to 17.71 per cent and closed the year with substantial holdings of cash and government bonds.

For the most part, the record of performance shows, the investing companies did not anticipate the market's swift decline. There is no indication that they had liquidated holdings in the expectation of a turn in the market.

The market's lack of liquidity was an important factor governing the policies of these companies. The large concerns as the result of the size of their holdings were more or less frozen into the market positions they held. It was not possible to unload large blocks of stocks without material price sacrifices. The lack of liquidity had been aggravated by the numerous restrictions imposed on trading by the Securities and Exchange commission.

GRAINS DECLINE ON PROSPECT OF DROUTH RELIEF

Slump in Securities Is an Added Influence.

CHICAGO GRAIN FUTURES

| | Yesterday. | Friday. | Yr. ago. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Wheat | $0.92⅜ | $0.93½ | $1.27¾ |
| Corn | .59½ | .60⅛ | 1.06¼ |
| Oats | .31⅛ | .31¼ | .49⅞ |
| Rye | .73½ | .74 | 1.10¼ |
| Soy beans | 1.04½ | 1.04⅝ | 1.56½ |

Scattered liquidation by holders of grain contracts developed yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. Wheat prices declined more than 1 cent at the extreme, with the May delivery selling at 92½ cents a bushel, a new low since Jan. 4. Corn futures declined about ½ cent and went into new ground since late last December.

Continued weakness in securities and selling of wheat futures attributed to operators who were forced to protect their position in the stock market, and a forecast for rain or snow over the larger part of the winter wheat belt was responsible for the decline in wheat.

September Wheat Weakest.

Closing wheat trades were at net losses of ¾ to 1⅞ cents, the latter on the September contract. Net losses on corn futures were ¼ to ⅝ cent a bushel. Oats, rye, and soy bean futures eased in sympathy with other grains.

Reports of export sales of nearly 2,000,000 bushels of American cash wheat to Portugal failed to influence the market, as the bulk of the grain was understood to have been of the Pacific coast varieties. Many leading exporters in the Pacific northwest are said to have followed a policy of not hedging their grain by sales of futures for a number of years, and there was consequently no necessity of buying in the hedges when they disposed of the cash wheat.

Forecast Moisture for West.

Students of the weather map yesterday suggested there was a better prospect of the dry section of the winter wheat belt receiving much needed moisture than at any time in recent weeks. Snow started to fall at a few points in northwestern Kansas before trading in futures eased. The new crop months showed more weakness than the May delivery.

Fears that an embargo on shipments of No. 3 grades of cash corn to New Orleans for export, which went into effect last night, would result in damp grain being sent to Chicago had some effect on the price of futures yesterday. Aggregate trading was not large. Buenos Aires corn futures closed ⅛ to ⅝ cent lower, the former on the May delivery. No export business of consequence developed on yesterday's decline. The trade is expecting a moderate increase in tomorrow's statement on the visible supply of corn.

I. C. C. ASSAILS GAS COSTS IN RATE DISPUTE

Charge Company Pays Affiliates Too Much.

The Illinois commerce commission asserted yesterday that as the result of an investigation of natural gas pipeline companies affiliated with the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company it has uncovered evidence that the local utility is paying an excessive price for natural gas.

James M. Slattery.

James M. Slattery, commission chairman, said that the facts will be placed before Circuit Judge Stanley H. Klarkowski tomorrow when the commission will resume its fight to prevent an increase in household gas rates in Chicago.

Seek to Reopen Case.

Judge Klarkowski last Wednesday issued an injunction restraining the commission from interfering with a higher rate schedule proposed by the company. Harry R. Booth, commission attorney, said the state will ask Judge Klarkowski to reopen the case for the taking of new testimony.

Judge Klarkowski held that the present rate structure of the company does no' produce a fair return. His order opened the way for a rate increase which would add an estimated 3 million dollars a year 'o the company's gross revenues by increasing minimum bills from 60 to 90 cents and adding 32 cents to all other household bills. Approximately 800,000 customers are affected.

The commission last May 22, after an extended rate hearing, refused to allow the company to raise its rates in conformity with a petition filed by the company in June, 1936. The company appealed from the commission decision.

Get Authority from Court.

The investigation of pipeline company finances was begun last month after the commission obtained authority from the United States Supreme court to examine the records of the Natural Gas Pipeline Company of America.

An affidavit of Fred Kleinman, commission chief accountant, alleges that earnings of the Natural Gas Pipeline company of America and Texoma Natural Gas company are equivalent to a return of more than 13 per cent on a combined investment of $66,700,000 of the two companies. These earnings, he asserts, are more than 4 million dollars in excess of a 7 per cent return on the properties. It charges that earnings of a third concern, the Chicago District Pipeline company, are excessive also.

CONTROL OF ERIE, NICKEL PLATE PASSES TO C. & O.

New York, Jan. 29.—[Special.]—Direct control of the Erie Railroad company and the New York, Chicago and St. Louis [Nickel Plate] railroad passed today to the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad.

The deal was effected through the purchase by the C. & O. of capital stock of the two roads from the Alleghany corporation, top holding company of the Van Sweringen system.

The Erie is in bankruptcy and, although the C. & O. has a $45,000,000 equity in the road, it is questionable how much of this control will survive the coming Erie reorganization.

The C. & O. paid the Alleghany corporation $5,065,475 for 167,000 shares of Nickel Plate common and 215,000 shares of Erie common. All except $550,000 had been paid, and this was arranged today through the cancelation of a debt which Alleghany owes the C. & O. These holdings represent 49.58 per cent of Nickel Plate and 10 per cent of Erie.

BUSINESS JOINS IN PROGRAM TO AID MEAT TRADE

Representatives of many lines of business, including railroad presidents and bankers, will meet at the Palmer house Tuesday for a conference called by the Institute of American Meat Packers as a part of a nation-wide campaign to improve the market for meat products and aid the live stock industry.

Invitations to the meeting have been accepted by heads of twenty railroads, high officials of twelve other roads, and representatives of trade and agricultural publications, hotel and restaurant associations, retail groups, and manufacturers.

Sewell Avery, president of Montgomery Ward & Co., and Ralph Budd, president of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad, will be speakers. Increased advertising of meat is proposed, and the aid of 150,000 stores is being sought.

Chicago Trade Rises in 1937 Despite Slump Late in Year

Chicago business and industrial activity in 1937 showed an improvement over 1936 despite the sharp recession in the latter part of last year, the Chicago Association of Commerce reported yesterday. With figures complete for the year the survey made public by the association disclosed that seventeen out of twenty-four indices were higher in 1937 than in 1936.

One of the largest gains in the indices was in factory pay rolls, for which the comparisons were 72.1 last year and 56.6 in 1936. Pig iron production in the Chicago area also was considerably larger than in 1936, the gross tonnages being 7,192,920 and 6,143,848, respectively.

Other Indices Decline.

The 1937 indices which declined were those covering building contracts, real estate transfers, sales of stocks and bonds on the Chicago Stock exchange, airplane passenger departures, and live stock slaughtering.

The business recession was sharply reflected in the December indices, of which nineteen declined from the 1936 levels. The index of department store sales, which earlier in 1937 had been far ahead of the preceding year's figures, tumbled to 148.3 in December compared with 157.2 in the corresponding 1936 month. Pig iron production and live stock slaughtering were among the other indices showing the most severe December declines.

Factory personnel and pay roll indices declined slightly in December, the employé average slipping to 79.2 compared to 81.3 a year earlier and pay rolls standing at 64.3 compared to 65 in December, 1936.

Automobile Registrations.

A decline of nearly 50 per cent in the number of new automobile registrations in Cook county in December was reported, the number dropping to 6,861, compared with 13,070 in December, 1936. For the entire year, however, there was an increase, the 1937 total being 122,312, compared with 118,001 in 1936.

BILL TO LICENSE CORPORATIONS IS DENOUNCED

Business Skeptical on Wage Proposal.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 29.—(AP)—A major section of business denounced the proposed federal licensing of corporations today and expressed skepticism about industry's ability to comply with President Roosevelt's call for low prices without wage reductions. Both statements were made public by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Regarding the bill to place interstate corporations under a federal licensing system, which the President discussed yesterday with Senator Borah [R., Idaho], the chamber's committee on manufacture advised its board of directors:

"It is not a proper function of the federal government, through a licensing act, to control conditions of employment. Enactment of the legislation would bring more serious inequities to stockholders than would be corrected by its passage.

View on Compliance.

"To the extent that federal regulatory legislation is appropriate, the administration of each act should be the sole responsibility of the federal agency specified in the act, and that compliance should not be exacted through the requirement of a federal license."

Federal control of hours and wages "is neither feasible nor desirable," the committee said. Business men have been "greatly disconcerted over the suggestion from the White House that prices should be reduced at the same time wages are maintained or increased." By and large business demonstrates its desire to keep prices down so as to increase sales, it said.

Wages Are Main Factor.

"But in many industries wages constitute the most important single factor in the cost of production," it added. "Such industries cannot substantially reduce prices without lowering wages."

In a formal statement issued at a recent press conference, President Roosevelt said:

"Industrialists kill the goose that lays the golden egg when they keep prices up at the expense of employment and purchasing power. Industrialists kill the goose that lays the golden egg when they cut wages and thereby reduce purchasing power. Either policy is self-defeating and suicidal."

FIGHT NEW SCHEMES.

The Associated Chambers of Commerce yesterday adopted a series of resolutions opposing legislation that would increase the power of the federal government and take away state authority. The action by the organization, which is composed of officials of 32 state and regional chambers of commerce, was taken at a special meeting in the Palmer house yesterday.

The resolutions opposed the passage of the Borah-O'Mahoney federal licensing bill, wages and hours legislation, and Roosevelt's plan to reorganize the executive branch of the government.

The chambers also voted for the repeal or modification of the excess profits tax and the capital gains tax, and for a "thorough congressional investigation" of the Tennessee Valley authority before action is taken to create additional TVAs.

RAIL VALUATIONS FOR TAX LEVIES CUT IN ILLINOIS

Assessment 6 Per Cent Lower for 1937.

Railroad valuations for property taxation purposes in Illinois declined $23,856,708, or about 6 per cent, last year, it was shown yesterday by the 1937 railroad assessment list for the state released by the state tax commission.

The 1936 assessments of $393,708,125 were reduced to $369,851,417 for 1937. Under the Illinois tax laws there are four classes of railroad property, two assessed by the tax commission and two by local assessors.

How Taxes Are Levied.

The bulk of the assessments are those on roadbed and real estate used for railroad purposes, and rolling stock, assessed by the commission. Local assessors appraise tangible personal property, such as shop equipment, and real estate not used for railroad purposes.

Largest taxpayer among Illinois railroads is the Burlington, which extends into 45 of the state's 101 counties. The Illinois Central, under its charter and the state constitution, pays a percentage of its earnings on its original main line from Chicago to Cairo, in lieu of taxes, but pays property taxes on its other lines.

Assessments Are Compared.

Fully Paid and Nonassessable.

Most stocks, and all bonds, are fully paid and nonassessable. This means that the buyer, once he has paid for them in full, never will be forced to put up more money to retain his interest in the company unless there should be a bankruptcy reorganization. If a company merely goes out of business, voluntarily or because of bankruptcy, the stockholder may lose the money he has invested, but that ends the matter.

All stocks, however, are not of this kind. Some certificates provide that assessments may be levied against the stockholder without limitation. This sort of stock has been issued frequently by mining companies so that they will not be forced to go out of business because of lack of funds when prospects appear favorable with expenditure of more money to develop their properties. If the stockholder does not pay his assessments, his stock is canceled. In some cases a maximum limit is placed on the amount which may be assessed per share. The assessability or nonassessability of a stock is stated on the stock certificate.

In reorganizations under provisions of present federal bankruptcy laws, stockholders may be subjected to a form of assessment if they wish to retain an interest in the company. The law provides that a company being so reorganized may be declared bankrupt and its stock worthless, in which event stockholders have no voice in determining terms of the reorganization. And the terms might provide only "rights" for stockholders—such rights permitting them to obtain stock in the reorganized company on payment of a specified amount of money for each old share held or for each new share to be received.

MONTHLY MEAT BILL FAR BELOW LAST SUMMER

Saving 100 Million Due to Drop in Prices.

The same quantity of meat that was consumed when prices were at the high point last summer can be bought by the public now at a saving of well over 100 million dollars monthly, it was conservatively estimated at the stockyards yesterday.

However, consumption data indicates that not all of the saving in meat is being used for other things. Most families are eating considerably more meat than they ate during the summer. The per capita consumption for this month over the entire country is expected to be the largest since December, 1936.

The public is gradually going back to meat eating after numerous strikes and boycotts in the last three years, and the reduction in prices has done more to bring about the change than anything else, live stock men said.

Price Declines Recorded.

According to the department of agriculture retail butcher shops in Chicago charged an average of 40 cents per pound for good grade porterhouse steak the first half of January, comparable to the cuts sold by butchers at 58 cents last August. The department found an average price of 32 cents for sirloin steak in the first half of January, compared with 37 in the last half of December and 49 cents in August. Round steak averaged 29 cents, off 3 cents for the first half of this month, and 14 cents lower than five months ago.

Center cut pork chops went to the public at an average of 29 cents, compared with 45 in August. Sliced bacon came down from 48 cents to 41 cents in the five months.

Whole hams dropped from 32 to 26; lard from 17 to 13; veal cutlets from 43 to 39; veal chops [loin], from 34 to 33; veal stew from 16 to 15; lamb legs from 31 to 26; lamb chops [loin] from 48 to 38, and lamb stew from 17 to 15.

Steer Prices Decline.

The week's average prices of steers sank to $8.10, the lowest since August, 1936. This price was $6.30 under the summer's high week, a drop of 77 per cent. The steer average was 5 cents under the hog average, the first time bovine stock has sold for less than swine in fifteen months.

Most fat steers and yearlings closed 50 cents to $1 lower than ten days ago. Heavy hefers were off 15 to 25 cents for the week and 50 to 75 cents lower for two weeks. Plain quality hefers advanced 25 cents and beef cows closed up 10 to 15 cents. Canner and cutter cows advanced 10 to 25 cents. Calves gained $1 in value.

Hogs finished unevenly, 5 to 25 cents higher than a week earlier, heavy butchers showing most gain. The week's average rose 30 cents to $8.15.

Lambs were steady to 25 cents lower at the close, with the six day average off 40 cents at $7.85, the lowest weekly price since June, 1935.

RAILROAD BONDS RALLY; REST OF LIST STEADIER

New York, Jan. 29.—(AP)—A month of steady decline in rail liens culminated today in a sizable rally which had a steadying effect on the general run of corporate bonds. Some utility issues met further pressure.

A few inactive carrier issues sold off sharply in belated adjustment to the January slump, but many of the popular trading classifications moved up fractions to 2 or more points. Improved support for rails was associated with comment of several leading transportation executives indicating confidence business would soon show definite recovery.

United States government loans showed narrow swings with the exception of treasury 3s, which finished 5-32ds higher.

CANADIAN FREIGHT TRAFIC.

Freight car loadings by Canadian railroads during the week ended Jan. 22 totaled 45,905 cars, against 45,471 in the preceding week and 45,612 in the like week of 1937.

Bonds—I.

Investors' Guide has in recent weeks received more than the usual number of inquiries on bonds. This is not surprising. The break in stock prices last fall convinced many persons that a steady, although small, income from a good bond may be larger in the long run than income from stock market profits.

Inquiries received by Investors' Guide has shown that many readers would like to know more about how to select bonds. The subject is broad and no infallible rules can be given, but a few fundamental suggestions may prove invaluable.

This discussion will be confined to corporation bonds. Municipal and government bonds will be discussed in a later article.

Before making a purchase a person should consider an investment from the standpoint of the industry, the specific company, the security behind the obligation, and the yield or income — possibly in that order. Many successful investors place selection of the company ahead of the industry.

Security behind a certain obligation also may not be so important at the time the commitment is made as the earnings record of the company. For an example, a debenture—an unsecured obligation — of the American Telephone and Telegraph company may be a sounder investment than the first mortgage bond of some other company.

However, the best obligation generally is a bond secured by a limited or restricted first mortgage on property that both earns more than is needed to pay bond interest and that in case of forced sale would bring more than the value of the bonds.

A first mortgage is important because a first mortgage is a first claim against the assets and their earning power. A limited or restricted mortgage is important because such a mortgage prevents more than a certain amount of bonds being issued with the specific property as security.

Amply secured closed first mortgage bonds usually command a premium in the bond market. The Union Pacific first mortgage railroad and land grant 4s of July 1, 1947, are an example. Although they mature in only about nine years, they are selling around $1,100 per $1,000 bond. The bonds are secured by a closed first mortgage on 2,091 miles of main line, including some of the most important sections of the road. Moreover, the railroad has a good record of earnings.

Another article on bonds will appear next Sunday.

COPPER PRICES WEAKEN; OTHER STAPLES VARY

Commodity Futures Index Declines for Week.

Copper futures yesterday closed steady to 0.07 cent lower, making losses for the week from 0.38 to 0.48 cent a pound. The decline was in sympathy with the cut in the price of electrolytic spot copper during the week to 10 cents a pound by producers and smelters.

Previously, smelters had been offering 10¼ cents and producers had placed their selling price at 10½ cents. Buying in the cash market yesterday was practically at a standstill in spite of the lower prices.

Other Metals Irregular.

Other metals were steady to lower yesterday and for the week. Tin futures were down 1 cent a pound for the week, and lead and zinc prices held unchanged.

The Dow-Jones commodity futures index closed yesterday at 52.53, down 0.29 from the previous close and off 0.82 from the preceding Saturday.

Rubber futures yesterday dropped 0.15 to 0.17 cent, with the March contract closing at 14.57 cents. Rubber has been under selling pressure since Tuesday, when prices advanced 0.31 to 0.38 cent on news that rubber export quotas had been cut by 10 per cent to 60 per cent of production.

Cocoa Futures Higher.

Cocoa futures closed 0.05 to 0.09 cent higher on sales of 118 lots. They climbed 0.15 to 0.18 cent at one time during the day on heavy orders from foreign houses in the face of light offerings.

Sugar futures were irregular yesterday, with the domestic contract closing unchanged to 0.01 cent higher and world contracts off 0.01 cent up to 0.00½ cent. Coffee contracts were 0.02 to 0.05 cent lower. Hides were 0.01 lower to 0.04 cent higher, and cottonseed oil closed 0.06 to 0.07 cent higher.

MOTORS—TRAFIC—HIGHWAYS

Neither Auto Nor Plane

This strange craft, a cross between an airplane and an automobile, is on display at the International Air show in the International Amphitheater, 43d and Halsted streets, this week. The wings are detachable. The power from its Studebaker engine can be delivered to its propeller or to its two rear wheels. It's a Waterman Arrowbile designed by Waldo Waterman of Santa Monica, Cal.

COMMISSION TO HEAR FACTS ON TRUCKING LAWS

BY HAL FOUST.

A state legislative commission will meet on Thursday and Friday in Springfield to hear recommendations of organized labor and of farm organizations for the regulation of trucks and trucking. The two days' session will close an inquiry that has covered thirty public hearings in twelve cities, including thirteen in Chicago during the last two weeks.

The commission has heard from chambers of commerce, live stock shippers, coal operators, local cartage men, petroleum distributors, dairy groups, manufacturing industries, and a score of others with active interests in highway transportation. The testimony is to be summarized in a report to the next general assembly, probably a special session after the spring primary.

Laws Are Too Rigid.

Intrastate hauling for hire is now under the jurisdiction of the Illinois commerce commission, under laws that read like railroad legislation, so rigid that they are ineffective and virtually inoperative. Shippers and truckers alike agree that a few rules are needed for public protection against the irresponsible. There also has been testimony warning the legislators against too much regulation, such as might destroy the flexibility of this form of transportation.

This commercial use of the highways, which has become a main factor in the economic structure of modern society, is in a muddle. Of the quarter of a million trucks registered in Illinois, data is lacking on how many are in interstate and how many in intrastate service. No one knows how many are common carriers, contract carriers, or private operators, and the definitions of these terms have not been fixed by courts.

Seek to Bring About Orderliness.

The Illinois legislature is seeking to bring about orderliness in the intrastate for-hire trucking. The common carrier, loosely speaking, is one that operates over a prescribed route offering service to the general public like that performed by railroads. Business men have testified that the cost of such service to all customers should be uniform.

The second class of for-hire vehicle is a contract carrier, which hauls for one or more customers but is not offering its service to every one. This class is more numerous and more varied in its operations. To avoid an empty return trip, owners accept whatever business they can get at whatever pay they can get. Some are without financial responsibility or insurance. It's cut-throat competition.

Urge Regulatory Body.

Legislators have been urged to place all contract carriers under the jurisdiction of a regulatory body, requiring permits to operate. Minimum rates would be filed with this body.

The Chicago Association of Commerce has joined with the Illinois Territory Industrial Trafic league in a written statement of recommendations. It points out that there is a fundamental difference between public control of the monopolistic railroads and rules for the highly competitive trucking industry.

The North Shore Property Owners association, representing suburbs north of Chicago, has been concerned during these deliberations with any threat by a new state truck law against the authority of municipalities to ban commercial trafic from residential districts. The statement presented to the commission by the Illinois Territory Industrial Trafic league includes a paragraph showing a basis for the property owners' apprehension.

"Local authorities," reads this paragraph, "should have the right to route trucks and buses traveling through cities and using local streets but should not be permitted to restrict, prevent, nor hinder the operation of vehicles through such communities nor should they have authority over the operation of vehicles upon state highways located within municipal limits."

Makeup of Commission.

Much of the boulevard system in Chicago is part of the state highway system. Sheridan road, residential in character, is a state highway through the north shore towns. The purpose of this paragraph, it was explained, is to prevent towns from prohibiting trucks from their corporate limits where there is no convenient alternate route.

The commission, created by the legislature last year, has Senator Louis J. Menges [D., East St. Louis] as chairman and Representative George J. Bauer [D., Effingham] as vice chairman. Lieut. Gov. John Stelle [D., McLeansboro] and Speaker of the House Louie E. Louis [D., Christopher] are members. Other members are: Senators George M. Maypole [D., Chicago], Harold G. Ward [D., Chicago], John W. Fribley [D., Pana], and Simon E. Lantz [R., Congerville], and Representatives James P. Boyle [D., Chicago], Thomas A. Brennan [D., Rock Island], David Hunter [R., Rockford], and F. W. Lewis [D., Robinson].

VOICE OF TRAFIC

KEEP TO RIGHT.

Chicago, Jan. 22.—A great many persons have the impression that if they consider themselves "fast moving trafic" they become thus entitled to drive their automobiles well toward the center of the roadway. What happens when another car moving more rapidly seeks to go by is at once apparent. Add slippery pavements and slower trafic over on the right and a truly dangerous situation is presented. Cutting in and out or weaving [sometimes called "whipping trafic" in the auto court]—reckless driving under the Illinois statute, is the result. And the cause of same is the machine slow or fast moving—in the center.

The uniform trafic code for the city of Chicago provides: Sec. 50 ". . . and all vehicles . . . must be operated as close to the right hand side of the roadway as conditions of trafic permit."

Sub-sec. [a] says: "Machines shall pass one another on the left and after having done so shall pull over to the right." [Doesn't that mean to stay over to the right even though moving rapidly?]

Sub-sec. [b] says: "Overtaken vehicles shall give way to the right in favor of the overtaking vehicle. . . ." [And it doesn't say anything about fast moving trafic.]

Isn't the upshot of the whole thing—"Keep to the right"? The law on the matter is clear—if some one is trying to pass you he is entitled to go by your left. Why not let him?

Isn't it about time, since a violation of a very clearly enunciated law, that arrests were made for such reckless driving? JAY TRUDE KERN.

ANOTHER TRAILERITE SPEAKS.

Metropolis, Ill., Jan. 22.—The trailer controversy has been pretty well covered by THE TRIBUNE except from the viewpoint of the people who actually live in trailers. I have lived in a trailer for the last year from necessity, for my work requires frequent change of location and hotel life is not to my liking or within my means. Trailer life is not the rosy spectacle pictured by the trailer industry, but when all factors are considered it is far more satisfactory than existence in small hotels or boarding houses.

The rather drastic trailer ordinances recently adopted by Chicago and a few other municipalities are one-sided, unfair, and discriminate against trailer occupants as a class. Look down your own alleys first and find out about living conditions in your slums and shanties before squawking about trailers.

I bought my trailer to be independent, and I can get along without Chicago about as easily as Chicago can get along without me, so for the present I have no intention of changing my mode of living. HERMAN L. MOOR.

ON NARROW SIDE STREET.

Chicago, Jan. 28.—Can't anything be done about the congested trafic on Surf street, especially between Sheridan road and Pine Grove? All day and all night parking is permitted on both sides of the street, although the street is so narrow it ought to be a one-way street. Moreover, just to make it worse, car owners now double park on the street for hours at a time so that trafic is completely snarled up, with drivers trying to pass each other on the street as if they were on a narrow mountain pass.

The horrible screaming of horns is constant, and yelling and swearing of angry motorists is the usual thing on Surf street. The sound of them cursing each other can be heard on the third floor of any apartment along Surf street. Can't anything be done about it by the city of Chicago? RESIDENT.

WEST SIDE TRAFIC LIGHTS.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—Can any one tell me why the trafic lights on Central avenue at Augusta, Washington, and Jackson boulevards have not the amber light on all posts? A motorist, whose vision of the light on the right side of the street is blocked, will see the light on the left curb change without warning from green to red. He either goes through the intersection on the red, at risk of a collision with cross trafic, or stops suddenly with the risk of being bumped by the car behind. L. N.

A FEW TIPS FOR THOSE WHO PLAN TRIP BY TRAILER

BY HAL FOUST.

The vast majority of automobile owners have contemplated a trailer tour without having taken one. For those planning to take their first trip, here are some practical tips as learned in five weeks of trailer travel covering 5,241 miles. You won't receive some of this information from the sales or rental agencies because they fear it might discourage patronage.

Brakes on the trailer are essential. Even with this equipment in good condition, you can't stop quickly and must hold down your speeds accordingly. If you're going to schedule your trip, make it an easy one.

Install an auxiliary spring on the rear of your automobile to relieve the stress of the overload.

Publish Camp Directories.

The Trailer Travel Magazine and the American Automobile association publish directories of camps. They are helpful although uncertain guides to finding night parking space.

You'll probably break any dishes and glasses that won't withstand a fall to the floor when the folding table collapses or a cupboard door springs open on a rough detour.

You'll be using public showers and toilets, some of them dirty. Rubber beach shoes protect the feet while bathing. On the market is a tissue cover for toilet seats.

There are no sidewalks to your trailer in camps. Much dirt is tracked in. A folding mat to place on the ground in front of your door is helpful. Pillows, sheets, and blankets stowed under folding beds need bags to protect them from dirt.

Gasoline Stove Explodes.

Most city housewives fear gasoline cook stoves. One exploded in the Sarasota, Fla., camp while we were there and the volunteer firemen said there had been several such accidents. We carried a two burner electric grill.

Most of the camps charge an extra fee of 25 cents if you use electricity for cooking. They have light fuses to prevent cooking without paying this fee. Some lack a heavy fuse. Carry a heavy fuse with you if you are going to cook with electricity.

Almost all of the veteran trailerites spending the winter in Florida had awnings to keep out the sun on hot days.

You'll Need Water Kettle.

You'll want a water kettle. There are few places where hot water is furnished. Of course you'll need a bucket. Water in trailer tanks becomes stale.

As emergency equipment, we carried tire chains, a tow chain, a fire extinguisher, flares for any emergency stop on the pavement, and a battery lantern.

These foregoing paragraphs with their bare statements of trailer problems may discourage some readers from experimenting with this form of travel. Those so easily discouraged wouldn't like trailer life, anyway. There are lots of folks who like it.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Chevrolet tells how Miss Cyretta Morford, president of the Michigan Association of Teachers of Speech, and three companies recently completed a tour through six countries in western Europe in one of its cars at a total cost for the automobile of $425, divided $106.25 each. The car cost included transportation from Detroit to Quebec, boat passage for car, foreign license plates, three drivers' licenses, foreign insurance, garage rent nearly every night, gasoline and oil, and transportation from Montreal to Detroit on return trip. Much of the car expense offset train, bus, and taxi fares that would have been necessary for travel without the car.

Lincoln-Zephyr will exhibit three V-12 models at the motor salon which is to be held in the Edgewater Beach hotel from Feb. 12 to 20.

Chrysler engineers explain how the power of the engines in the 95 horse power Royal and the 110 horse power Imperial have been increased in the 1938 models so that it has been made most effective at the moderate driving speeds at which most travel. The new added power is felt at between 20 and 50 miles an hour in the Royal and at between 10 and 50 miles in the Imperial. This was achieved by lengthening the stroke of the Royal engine ¼ of 1 inch and that of the Imperial by ⅜ of 1 inch, thereby increasing the displacement. A new camshaft for the Royal was designed.

CLOSED STATE BANK TO REFUND $125,000 MORE

Four Others Repay $299,400 Total.

Depositors of closed state banks on the south and southwest sides, received $299,400 in the final quarter of 1937, and will probably get an additional $125,000 during the present quarter.

This is shown in the new quarterly statement of State Auditor Edward J. Barrett, showing the financial condition of 40 of the 139 state banks that are still in receivership. Barrett's report was based mainly on that of Charles H. Albers, general receiver for 137 of the closed banks.

The southern banks that paid new instalments on their debts to their depositors, and the percentage of the payments to the total debt were: Brainerd State bank, 7½ per cent; Auburn Park Trust and Savings bank, 7½ per cent, and Bank of Harvey, Citizens Trust and Savings bank and Commercial Bank of Chicago Heights, 5 per cent each.

Plan Five Per Cent Refund.

The Central Manufacturing district bank is expected to make a new 5 per cent repayment this quarter. It will total about $125,000. This repayment had been predicted for the December quarter, but was slowed by business recession.

Below are listed the analysis and the future refund prospects of the ten southwest side bank for which the state auditor released figures last week:

Auburn Park Trust and Savings bank—Total receipts, $615,110. Paid on prior claims, $162,980. Paid depositors, $224,886, or 42½ per cent. Costs—Receivers, $5,985; legal, $22,123; clerical, $41,793; interest, $350; advanced to protect assets, $147,958, with $146,097 refunded. Cash, $9,021. The 7½ per cent refund made last quarter was the bank's fifth. Future payments depend somewhat on the outcome of a suit to recover assets pledged to secure a deposit.

Bank of Harvey—Total receipts, $909,802. Paid on prior claims, $244,101. Paid depositors, $501,065, or 80 per cent. Costs—Receivers, $7,024; legal, $23,174; clerical, $44,302; interest, $4,217; advanced to protect assets, $66,957, with $65,329 refunded. Cash, $18,939. Last quarter's 5 per cent liquidating dividend was the ninth. Depositors may eventually receive 90 per cent.

Brainerd State bank—Total receipts, $177,237. Paid on prior claims, $52,110. Paid depositors, $66,126, or 31 per cent. Costs—Receivers, $4,096; legal, $8,520; clerical, $23,298; interest, $217; advanced to protect assets, $15,592, with $11,680 refunded. Cash, $3,774. The fourth repayment, made in the quarter just closed, was 7½ per cent of deposits. Future returns are expected to be small.

Brighton Park State bank—Total receipts, $524,352. Paid on prior claims, $235,750. Paid depositors, $140,927, or 40 per cent. Costs—Receivers, $5,240; legal, $26,457; clerical, $31,494; interest, $10,075; advanced to protect assets, $68,094, with $58,162 refunded. Cash, $6,311. Depositors of this bank can reasonably expect another 10 or 15 per cent.

Bryn Mawr State bank—Total receipts, $379,699. Paid on prior claims, $131,716. Paid depositors, $133,865, or 27 per cent. Costs—Receivers, $6,058; legal, $19,192; clerical, $38,912; interest, $537; advanced to protect assets, $40,713, with $35,187 refunded. Cash, $8,702. Apparently no new refunds can be made soon.

Central Manufacturing District bank—Total receipts, $4,069,340. Paid on prior claims, $1,685,546. Paid depositors, $874,281, or 35 per cent. Costs—Receivers, $11,357; legal, $81,850; clerical, $177,694; interest, $11,802; advanced to protect assets, $753,934, with $642,576 refunded. Cash, $184,885. The receiver foresees that, after the new 5 per cent repayment to be made soon, there will be 15 or 20 per cent for depositors.

Chicago Lawn State bank—Total receipts, $981,133. Paid on prior claims, $260,800. Paid nothing to depositors. Costs—Receivers, $14,873; legal, $49,314; clerical, $94,055; interest, $2,151; advanced to protect assets, $352,475, with $355,942 refunded. Cash, $207,462. This bank can make no returns until pending suits by preferred creditors are settled. The eventual payout will probably be small.

Citizens Trust and Savings bank—Total receipts, $980,188. Paid on prior claims, $477,223. Paid depositors, $311,029, or 30 per cent. Costs—Receivers, $19,121; legal, $45,252; clerical, $82,270; interest, $1,554; advanced to protect assets, $40,805, with $34,134 refunded. Cash, $12,928. The 5 per cent repaid in December was the third division for general creditors.

Commercial Bank of Chicago Heights—Total receipts, $670,364. Paid on prior claims, $162,179. Paid depositors, $340,258, or 75 per cent. Costs—Receivers, $8,237; legal, $17,205; clerical, $41,475; interest, $84; advanced to protect assets, $85,906, with $82,270 refunded. Cash, $15,017.

Figures showing the state of several more banks for this section of the city will be published in these columns in the near future.

Smart Salute to Winter Winds

The smart girl saves her money and looks as if she spends it. She balances her budget with bargains and dresses with unlimited good taste. Starting the new year out right, she takes financial and fashionable advantage of the January fur sales. Junior club women of the 6th district, Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, are of this ilk. To make money and to show how to spend it, they will hold a fur fashion review and card party Friday evening, Feb. 11, in the Cameo room of the Morrison hotel.

The young miss with a thought of the season's winds and styles will choose a lustrous gray Persian lamb coat made on simple lines and will top it with a warm bonnet touched with matching skins. Miss Betty King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. King of Bedford Park and vice president of the Bedford Park Junior Woman's club, will model such an outfit at the junior clubwomen's style show.

Miss Madelyn Marshall of the Argo-Summit Junior Woman's club, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Marshall of Summit, will be general chairman of the event and will walk the runway in the height of elegance and smartness with an ermine wrap, more silver fox than ermine.

As educational chairman of the Argo-Summit Junior Woman's club, Miss Geraldyne Marshall, also a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Marshall, will give a fashion lesson in brown safari seal skin as a model for the style review. Her high crowned, brown fur-felt hat will be misted in the largest and newest of veils.

JUNIOR COLLEGE HEADS GRANTED NEW AUTHORITY

Will Select Stafs and Regulate Pay.

Further details of his newly approved plan for reorganization of the Chicago public school system's three junior colleges—Herzl, Wilson, and Wright—were outlined by Superintendent William H. Johnson last week.

Dr. Johnson's recommendations, which were accepted by the board of education, were based on the conclusions of a committee of three members of the staf of the University of Illinois which worked with a group from the education department of the school board.

Main features of the new plan are freedom of the junior college heads to select their staf members and salary increases based on ability. Previously faculty choices were limited to the school system, and pay increases came automatically, on the basis of length of service.

Under the new plan when a new faculty member is to be chosen, the department head will make his recommendations to the junior college dean.

Dean to Recommend Choice.

The dean will determine the fitness and ability of the persons nominated, and will recommend his choice of candidates, and the starting salary, to the president of the junior college system, who is the superintendent of schools.

Salaries of faculty members will range from $2,600 to $4,000 a year. Department heads are to receive annual bonuses of from $100 to $400 on recommendation of their dean and approval by the president.

Raises are to be recommended by the department head to the dean on the basis of excellence in teaching, creative scholarship, and productive research. The president will weigh the dean's salary recommendations against the financial condition of the schools.

Newcomers to the junior college faculty will receive temporary college certificates. After a probationary period of two years they are eligible for the regular college certificate examination. They do not attain their full rights until they serve for three years on their regular college certificates.

Gives Dean New Rights.

The new plan broadens each junior college dean's functions by permitting him and his department heads to choose textbooks and laboratory supplies, and by allowing him, with presidential approval, to shape the curriculum of his school to the specific needs of the students.

The three University of Illinois men who helped frame the new plan are members of that institution's committee on admissions from higher institutions. They are G. P. Tuttle, registrar of the university; C. R. Griffith, director of institutional research, and A. W. Clevenger, high school visitor.

Superintendent Johnson headed the public school group that coöperated with the visiting committee. Other members of the group were Assistant Superintendent George F. Cassell, Acting Dean Homer J. Coppock of Herzl Junior college, Dean Verne O. Graham of Wilson Junior college, Dean William H. Conley of Wright Junior college, and Henry S. Crane and Harry Baker, members of the school system's board of examiners.

Mrs. Van der Vries, who resides at 968 Pine street, Winnetka, was first chosen as one of the three representatives from the district in 1934 and was reëlected in 1936. The district embraces most of Cook county outside Chicago, Evanston, Oak Park, and Cicero.

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

HARPER High school's checker enthusiast, Charles Walker Espey, who coached the checker team to two south section championships, retired from teaching with the close of the first semester. A physics instructor at Harper since 1934, "Charlie" will sail Feb. 9 on the S. S. Washington for Italy and the British Isles. His purpose in visiting the former country is to see how people live under the rule of a dictator.

Mr. Espey returned to teaching in 1922 after many years as a cowboy, lawyer, and social worker. He taught five years at Tuley High school and four years at Lindblom High before going to Harper. According to his friends, he will be devoting the years ahead to the writing of poetry.

Miss Marjorie Robbins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Robbins, 2231 East 67th street, took the part of Margaret Crawshaw in A. A. Milne's comedy, "Wurzel-Flummery," which recently was given by Alpha Delta Kappa, dramatic club of the Principia Upper school in St. Louis, where she is a senior.

CARD experts claim the chances are one in 500,000, but it happened the other day on the southwest side. In a three-handed game of pinochle at the home of John Magic, 11825 Lowe avenue, his son, John Magic Jr., was dealt 12 clubs. The third player was Andrew Huser. Maybe the Magic are magicians.

"King of the Freshman Frolics" was the title conferred upon James B. Estaver Jr., 7300 South Shore drive, who recently was named the best looking and most outstanding member of the first year class at the University of Illinois. A graduate of Hirsch High school, where he rereceived letters in basketball and baseball, young Estaver is a Beta Sigma Psi pledge and a student in the college of engineering.

Charles Chow, a Chinese student who is a member of the 3A class at Fenger High school, won the recent essay contest sponsored by the Fenger Junior Citizen's club. Charles, who received the $5 prize at the honors day assembly, wrote on the present crisis in the far east. Winner of second place was Betty Baer of the 4B class. Both recently were elected to the National Honor society.

Good citizenship medals were awarded recently by the South Shore Fellowship club to the following pupils of schools in the community: Louise Russell and William Chickering, Bryn Mawr; Virginia Pearce and William Pinkerton, Parkside; Joye Schoff and Andrew Ivy, Horace Mann; June Kluegge and William Milne, Bradwell, and Doris Bakowski and John Galgan, Sullivan.

Stanley F. ## COUNCIL TO HEAR PLEA TOMORROW FOR SANCTUARY

Plans Also Include Small Park.

BY RITA FITZPATRICK.

Chicago, the great hog butcher, steel caldron, and railroad center, is bird shy. Only its silhouette looks skyward. Tomorrow, however, the legal action will be started to set aside a camp for feathered tourists.

Ald. A. G. Lindell. [9th]

When the city council convenes in its chambers tomorrow Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th] and Ald. William A. Rowan [10th] will introduce a measure advocating that Lake Calumet, north of 125th street, be made into a wild life refuge. This action follows a recommendation proposed recently by the Chicago Conservation council, composed of more than ninety national, state and local organizations interested in the outdoors for beauty and recreation.

Where Whitman Walked.

Lake Calumet, now thought of only as a "mud hole," once mirrored the flight of countless birds and was the retreat of hundreds of hunters and fishermen. Three other lakes in the district, Wolf lake, Hyde lake and Lake George, the latter two of which have been drained and filled, vied with it as game resorts. Walt Whitman, famed American poet and in 1875 publisher of the South Chicago Times, walked by its banks and perhaps gleaned many of his poetic inspirations.

Because of its opening into the serene waters of Calumet river, named Callimink by the Indians for their pipe of peace, the lake was the object of military interest in 1836. At that time newly commissioned Lieut. Jefferson Davis, later president of the Confederate States of America, urgently recommended that a harbor be established on the Calumet river and that the lake, because of "its ample facilities be set aside as a hiding place and refuge for the American navy."

Its possibilities, however, as the years and times changed, became shadowed by the industrial plants which sprang up about it.

Good Food Sowed.

The north part of Lake Calumet today, according to Dr. Alfred Lewy, 2051 East 72d place, a director of the Illinois Audubon society and instigator of the Lake Calumet Wild Life Refuge project, is an excellent natural cover and food source for waterfowl, thousands of which are seen during migration and many of which breed in the neighborhood. It is shallow and grown to cattails and other marsh vegetation.

Last summer many mallard and blue winged teal families were observed there as well as American egrets and little blue herons. The season before, twenty-three whistling swans, rarely seen in this section of the country, stopped at Lake Calumet on their way south. The canvas back ducks, however, for which the lake was famous as a haven, have diminished, although protected by the government regulation.

The south end of Lake Calumet, 125th to 130th streets, has been dredged by the federal government as a barge-ship transfer, and directly north the water is deep enough for fishing. The proposed wild life refuge would be protected, therefore, only in the northern area.

Small Park Proposed.

The tip of the lake at 103d street has been suggested by Aldermen Lindell and Rowan for a small park 1,000 by 1,500 feet. This section, called the Plaza, was designated for recreation purposes twenty-five years ago by the Van Vlissingen plan for the development of Lake Calumet as an industrial harbor. The park project will be referred by both aldermen next spring to the city forestry division of small parks, trees, and shrubs or the state conservation department.

It was pointed out by the committee of the conservation council as indicative of community interest in bird life that Bowen High school, 2710 East 89th street, lists the largest Junior Audubon society membership in the city and that the Sunday tours to the small twenty-two acre bird sanctuary in Jackson park are surprisingly popular.

The co-chairmen of the conservation council committee for the Lake Calumet wild life refuge are F. B. Locke of Evanston, conservation director of the Izaak Walton league, and Dr. R. M. Strong, 5840 Stony Island avenue.

Others Aiding Project.

Others taking an active part are Dr. George Fuller, professor of botany at the University of Chicago and president of the Ecological society; Mrs. C. A. Mitchell of Riverside, secretary of the council, and Mrs. Robert J. Lawrie, 9732 Vanderpoel avenue, treasurer of the council.

Now more than ever Mellquist trained masseuses are in demand! In our own salons during the past year 50 girls were added. At our present rate of expansion there should be room for 100 more in 1938! Other salons, too, are constantly on the look-out for Mellquist trained masseuses. This is an interesting, clean and remunerative profession to learn. If you are already a masseuse a knowledge of our method will increase your income. To date we have placed in steady jobs every one of our graduates regardless of whether or not they had previous knowledge of massage.

LOOK WHAT OUR GRADUATES SAY!
My training in massage was received in Stockholm, and I had worked in the U. S. for many years before taking the Mellquist course. Thanks to this training my income is now greater than it has ever been in twenty years of previous experience as a masseuse. I have worked both for doctors and in private homes. No wonder I think Mellquist is the best school!
MISS MILLIE CARLSON, 7641 S. Laflin
Ever since my graduation from High School I was interested in a course in massage. I left my steady job as a salesgirl and took your course. I have never regretted the step, for my income has been doubled. It is interesting work and certainly pays well.
MISS EVA RAMME, 3453 W. 65th St.

TEACHERS FIND DANGERS LURK IN CLASSROOMS

Physical hazards of the teaching profession may not be many, but they are none the less real. For this you have the word of thirteen public school teachers injured while at work, whose medical bills the Chicago board of education recently voted to pay. Five of the thirteen are from south and southwest side schools.

One of these is Harry Yates, an instructor in Kershaw branch of Tilden Technical High. While he was conducting a woodworking class on Oct. 22 the board he was holding caught in a circular saw and drew two fingers into the saw, lacerating them severely.

Another is Irene Rooney, a teacher in the Sawyer avenue school. She was giving a chemistry demonstration in school and accidentally dropped some nitric acid on her left hand. Finger injuries were also suffered by Mary C. Mangan of the Wentworth school when she caught her hand in a sliding door in a classroom.

The other two south side teachers were injured in falls. Nora Pearl Horning of the A. O. Sexton school fell on the balcony stairs in her school and cut her left cheek. Mary D. Rogers of Morgan Park High school slipped on a classroom floor and fell.

ITALIAN LEAGUE SEEKS FUND FOR SCHOLARSHIPS

A drive will be launched tomorrow for funds to provide college scholarships for high school boys of Italian origin by the nine Chicago chapters of the National Italian American Civic league. The drive will end March 15. Charles V. Pagano, 1708 Larrabee street, is chairman of the committee arranging the city-wide appeal for funds. Other members of the committee are John Filpi, Rose Artagio, Marie Pagano, Margie Rocco, Mike Perciabosco, Dr. Francis La Piana, Carmen Viviano, and Joseph Izzo.

NEW CATHOLIC CLUB TO SPONSOR DANCE EACH SUNDAY NIGHT

Formation of the South Side Catholic club, composed of young persons interested in the promotion of a program of social, educational and philantropic work, was announced recently by Richard D. Callahan, president. The organization will make its headquarters in the Southmoor hotel, 67th street and Stony Island avenue, where a dance will be given every Sunday evening. Other officers are Walter B. Krause, vice president; Miss Helen Marie Stack, secretary, and Miss Irene Cosgrove, treasurer. The club also plans to sponsor tours, movies, parties and forums.

Richard D. Callahan.

Forthcoming Marriage Announced

Miss Evelyn Harriett Kahn, daughter of Mrs. Rena C. Brown, 2714 North Sawyer avenue, will become the bride of Adolph S. Frankfort, son of Mrs. Sadie Frankfort, 6318 Blackstone avenue, on Sunday, Feb. 13. The ceremony will be held at 8 o'clock in Temple Beth-el, 3230 Palmer street. Miss Kahn formerly was women's editor of three Chicago community newspapers.

R. O. T. C. YOUTHS WIN HONORS FOR ACHIEVEMENTS

Many Tribune Medals Go to the Cadets.

For their achievements during the semester the thirty-one outstanding R. O. T. C. cadets of Morgan Park, Joliet, and the three Gary high schools —Emerson, Horace Mann, and Lew Wallace—received medals last week in public assemblies.

Philip Maxwell presented the Chicago Tribune medals at all the schools and Col. William F. Morrison, head of the public high schools' R. O. T. C., and Maj. Henry J. Beggins, military intelligence reserve, 11637 Hale avenue, awarded the R. O. T. C. department and Reserve Officers' association medals, respectively, at Morgan Park High school. Only Tribune decorations were given at Joliet and Gary.

Awarded 387 Medals.

With these ceremonies cadets of thirty-two Chicagoland schools have received 378 medals during the last four weeks. Presentations will be made at 1:45 o'clock Thursday at St. Mel High school and at 9:30 o'clock in the evening Feb. 11 at the Evanston Township High school to conclude the series this semester.

The Tribune then will have decorated 21. cadets chosen by their military instructors as ranking the highest in all phases of their R. O. T. C. training. The winners of the medals last week are:

Also to Morgan Park went these awards:

Duties of Girl Scout Committees to Be Told

The duties of troop committees and their members will be described at a meeting of Girl Scout Troop committees of the Southwest district Tuesday afternoon in Ridge park fieldhouse, 96th street and Longwood drive. Mrs. Bryant Parrott, 9110 Hoyne avenue,

DR. HOWARD THURMAN ADDRESSES SUNDAY EVENING CLUB TONIGHT

Dr. Howard Thurman, dean of the chapel at Howard university, Washington, D. C., will address the Sunday Evening club tonight in Orchestra hall. His topic will be "What Shall I Do with My Life?" This will be Dr. Thurman's first appearance before the club, from whose platform Booker T. Washington and Robert R. Moton, both notable Negro educators, have spoken in the past.

Dr. Howard Thurman.

The Metropolitan church choir, 100 mixed voices, will give a special program at the 7 o'clock service under the direction of J. Wesley Jones. These singers of spirituals and deep south folk songs sing every Sunday morning in the People's church, 4100 South Park way, and have been heard at music festivals in Chicago and Cleveland.

A special tour by the WPA free education group will be made tonight for both services. These visitors, arriving early for a preliminary meeting, will be informed of the history and work of the Sunday Evening club. Clifford W. Barnes will preside at the main service and, emphasizing the musical note of the previous service, the club's choir will sing "Deep River," by Burleigh.

TEACHERS SEEK NAME CHANGES IN BOARD FILES

Twenty holders of teacher's certificates, only six of whom are regularly assigned, have just asked the Chicago board of education to change their names on the records by reason of marriage.

For two of the assigned teachers the request was several years tardy. Agnes Jackson Dean of Edwards elementary and Mary McCooey Rohan of Irving elementary [their names before and after marriage appearing in that order] were married in 1934.

One Keeps Her Name.

Ann Kerrigan Larkin of Park Manor elementary was wed last September, Amy Ives Thueringer last October, and Bernice O'Leary Casey of Beale elementary and Mary Wall Thomas of Marquette elementary last November. Dorothy Novak, formerly of Pickard elementary, has, with Cupid's aid, changed her last name to Radke.

Other Normal school graduates recently listed as married are Ann Cooley Fanning, Marie Davis Franklin, Mildred Essig Koehler, Rita Graham Dubbs, Lettie Harnew Hyink, Caroline Leckey Clark, Margaret Mehigan O'Rourke, Catharine Murphy O'Malley, Alice Oberman Hershfield, Bernice Sward Richardson, Gertrude Taylor Hunt, and Nada White Caswell.

SUBURBAN TOWN POLICE TO HAVE TRAFIC SCHOOL

N. U. Offers Course in Accident Diagnosis.

How to "diagnose" accidents in the making is to be taught police officers in Chicago's suburbs in a special ten day course sponsored by the Suburban Safety council, it was announced last week by Charles F. Scheel, chairman.

The accident diagnosis courses will be held in March at the trafic officers' training school at Northwestern university. More than half of the 23 towns contacted by the council, according to Mr. Scheel, have promised to send their police officers to the school.

"The training courses," Mr. Scheel said, "will teach policemen to size up an accident in the making. Under our proposal officers would stop motorists who, though driving within the speed limit, weave in and out of trafic."

Work on the safety council's proposed draft of model trafic ordinances for suburban towns got under way last week. These ordinances would be uniform, designed to fit the needs of each suburban town and still contain the same rules throughout the area.

Subcommittees were selected for 1938 by Chairman Scheel. Among the committees are:

Engineering—George R. Young, Kendrick Harger, H. L. Woolniser, Z. A. Faulkner, Harold Johnson, and E. H. Drexler.

Education—George W. Barton, John Gansen, Andy Renzas, Norman Beggs, Hugh Dunning, A. L. McElhose, J. J. Spevacek, and W. E. St. Bernard.

Enforcement—A. C. Stollberg, Thomas J. Mahoney, Richard Bailey, Frank Rice, A. L. Wolff, R. H. Techen, Henry Wleklinski, Charles E. Woods, George E. Shiffer, and Robert Wigglesworth.

Towns represented in the council include Berwyn, Blue Island, Brookfield, Calumet City, Des Plaines, Elmwood Park, Evanston, Forest Park, Glencoe, La Grange, Melrose Park, Oak Park, Park Ridge, Riverside, Winnetka, Chicago Heights, Arlington Heights, Bellwood, Cicero, Harvey, Niles Center, River Forest, Summit, and Wilmette.

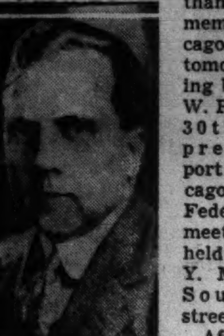
CHURCH GROWTH IN YEAR CITED BY FEDERATION

Dr. Palmer Will Deliver Report Tomorrow.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Reports on all fields of coöperative service of more than 19 denominations with more than one million members in Chicago will be read tomorrow morning by Dr. Albert W. Palmer in the 30th annual president's report to the Chicago Church of Federation. The meeting will be held at Central Y. M. C. A., 19 South La Salle street.



Walter R. Mee.

After a review of the thirty years from the founding of the federation in 1907 by Prof. Benjamin H. Hobson of McCormick [now Presbyterian] Theological seminary, and his associates, Dr. Palmer's report will pay tribute to 19 years of leadership of Walter R. Mee, executive secretary of the organization. He will designate the schools of Christian living throughout the city as the most significant coöperative movement among the churches during the year.

Tells of Importance.

"The schools," the federation president's report will state, "were important not because they were spectacular, nor because they blanketed a great city or brought together a distinguished faculty. They were important because these schools brought Christianity into an actual functional relation to the vital issues of current life."

Dr. Palmer's report will recall the organization of the federation's new department, that of social service, which was set up with Frank D. Finley as secretary, during the last year.

"Specific example of the close relationship of the federation's new department with the social and medical agencies of the city was afforded when, under the leadership of Wilfred Reynolds, a course of four lectures for ministers and laymen on the question of personality problems in the light of psychiatry and religion were given," the report will state. "These lectures were given in coöperation with the Chicago Council of Social Agencies."

Education Is Studied.

The report will cite the organization of a federation committee on public education during the last year. This committee acts as a clearing house for churches which are interested in the public schools and their general problems. Dr. Douglas Horton, pastor of Hyde Park United church, and newly elected executive of the Congregational-Christian denomination, is the chairman of this committee.

Reports of the 9 permanent committees and commissions will be read at tomorrow's meeting. In addition to those of public education and social service, the other commissions and their leaders follow:

The comity commission, which deals with interdenominational relationships and Protestant strategy generally, Charles McElroy, chairman. Inter-racial relations, Dr. Shailer Mathews, chairman. Evangelism, the Rev. Dr. John M. Schneider, chairman. This commission sponsors the annual noon day lenten services.

Others on Commissions.

The commission on church and industry, the Rev. Dr. Warren N. Clark, chairman. The commission on civic relations. The Rev. Philip Yarrow, chairman, finance committee; Rockwell F. Clancy, chairman.

In addition to the standing committees and commissions, the federation maintains two general departments; the woman's department, under the leadership of Mrs. Silvester Schiele, and the department of Christian education, which until Jan. 19, was led by Prof. W. C. Bower of the University of Chicago. Dr. Bower was succeeded by the Rev. Dr. Albert B. Coe of Oak Park.

The seventh annual ministers' week at the Chicago Theological seminary opens tomorrow afternoon with a service under the auspices of the Chicago Congregational ministers union, the Rev. John G. Hindley, president, in Graham Taylor hall. Prof. Samuel C. Kinchloe will speak on "What Cities Do to Churches and What Churches Do for Cities." The forum on public issues will follow immediately, in the Oriental institute, led by Dr. Walter H. C. Laves.

The Alden-Tuthill lectures for 1938 will be given Wednesday evening and Thursday afternoon and evening, by Dr. Willard L. Sperry, dean of Harvard divinity school on the subject: "The Public Prayers of the Church."

Other speakers include Paul H. Douglas, Dr. Paul Hutchinson, Arthur E. Holt, the Rev. Wynn C. Fairfield, Edward E. Aubrey, Dean Shirley J. Case, Clarence McCall, Homer C. McEwen, Henry N. Wieman, Fred Eastman, and Mrs. Albert W. Palmer, who will discuss the responsibilities of the minister's wife in the course of the round table of ministers' wives to be held in the common room of Woodlawn house.

A mid-winter institute for youth from every Methodist church within the metropolitan area is being sponsored, on Tuesday evenings until March 1, by the Chicago western district of Epworth leagues at Olivet Methodist Episcopal church, Adams street and Keeler avenue. From 1929 to 1936 Dr. Palmer was executive secretary for the states of Colorado and Wyoming. He then retired from secretarial activities, continuing only as director of promotion for both these states.

JONES SCHOOL TO FIT YOUTHS FOR BUSINESS

Idea New; Only 500 Will Be Selected.

Corridors of the old school building at 615 Plymouth court, which has stood vacant since 1932, will echo with eager voices again tomorrow, the opening day for the new Jones Commercial High school, a departure in preparing young folk for business careers.

Out of the many hundreds of applicants for enrollment only about 500 who have had at least two years of high school will be selected, for that is the present capacity of the building, according to William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools. Two years from now most of these 500 will have finished the courses, and then they will be ready to step into business positions that school authorities will help them find.

When registration is complete and classes start, later in the week, sixteen teachers will begin instructing the young men and women in the latest commercial theories and practices, with the aid of business machinery and other equipment that is up to the minute, school officials say.

Have Few Precedents.

Because the commercial high school idea is new, particularly for Chicago, Supt. Johnson and Benjamin J. Knauss, director of commercial studies for the school board, have had little precedent to guide them in the arrangement of the courses.

The state law requires that the school offer a year of English, a year of United States history and civics, and physical and health education. Aside from these courses, which represent only a small part of school time, the faculty is free to choose its subjects and to direct special emphasis as it sees fit.

Four major pursuits are offered. These are shorthand and typewriting, bookkeeping, selling and merchandising, and clerical practice. The student will choose a major, and then will have his choice of several elective studies.

Offer Guidance.

School authorities recommend that students who decide at the outset of their high school careers that they will go to commercial high school instead of college take both commercial geography and elementary business training in the first two years of high school.

Besides compulsory English, physical education and history and civics, each of the four major pursuits requires the study of typewriting in the first year of commercial high. and commercial law and business economics in the second year.

The other first year studies for the stenography course are shorthand, selling and mechandising, and business organization, with either bookkeeping or business mathematics. The second year studies are shorthand, typewriting, transcription, and machine calculating and clerical practice.

Studies Are Prescribed.

Additional studies required in the bookkeeping course for the first year are bookkeeping, business organization and business mathematics, and machine calculating. Second year studies in this department include bookkeeping, the operation of bookkeeping and billing machinery, selling and merchandising, and one elective course.

Veterinarian corrects diarrhea, nervousness—feeds Swift's Pard

SAYS MOST AILMENTS DUE TO WRONG DIET

It is for this reason that Dr. A. W. L........ and many other veterinarians are constantly pointing out the danger of incorrect food and particularly of nutritionally deficient dog rations.

It is for this reason, also, that leading veterinarians have welcomed Swift's Pard. Back of Pard stand years of experiment in Swift & Company's own biological laboratories. And feeding tests through four generations of dogs in the Pard Kennels have conclusively shown its worth.

In this scientific feeding formula, fresh beef meat food products are combined with seven other choice ingredients in correct proportions. To build up and protect your dog's health, feed Swift's Pard. Swift & Company, Chicago.

HERE'S PLUG FOR WRITERS, RADIO'S FORGOTTEN MEN

Don Quinn Gives Lowdown on Comedy Scripters.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Bach, Beethoven, Brahms — and even Berlin—get credit when their compositions are broadcast. Shakespeare and Shaw are given their full due when their works go out on the air. But the people who really write for radio—what a tough time they have ever getting a mention. The fans whoop and cheer for Jack Benny, Bing Crosby, Bob Burns, Fibber McGee and Molly, Vic and Sade, Lights Out, and 101 other features. But who recognizes the names of Bill Morrow and Ed Beloi, Carroll Carroll, Don Quinn, Paul Rhymer, Arch Oboler or the many others who keep punching the typewriters while the stars take the bows and wallow in fan mail?

Don Quinn.

In Hollywood writers get credit lines in pictures, live in mansions with several swimming pools attached and report incomes on speaking terms with those of Gable and Garbo. But in radio writers are the forgotten men.

Pondering this matter the other day it seemed like a good idea to track down one of these lads and find out what they are like, how they do their work, what are their rewards and anything else that might be of interest or shed some light on this very dark subject.

Tracking Down a Writer.

We wondered about the Fibber McGee show. On the air for three years without a rest it has climbed steadily in public favor so that today it is one of the top evening network shows. Vaguely we recalled that one Don Quinn was the author. A look into the phone book disclosed no telephone number. A call to NBC was of no aid. They didn't have it, either.

Well, ultimately he was located and arrangements made to meet him on his one day a week off—Tuesday. That's the day after the Fibber show.

Each show, Quinn disclosed over our oysters, is pitched up in the immediate week preceding presentation.

While wrestling with their steaks they criticize the show just given and hash over ideas for the following week's offering. The theme of last Monday's show—Fibber as a baby tender—was actually suggested at a previous session. But it was at this clambake that the "payoff" was suggested—that of having Fibber accept a job as lion tamer to get away from the baby.

"Every one puts in his oar at these sessions," Don explained. "We kick various ideas around until they get into a shape meeting general approval."

[Fibber and Molly, that is Jim and Marion Jordan, who happens to be convalescing from illness just now; Harlow Wilcox, Hugh Studebaker, who plays Silly Watson; Bill Thompson, who plays Nick De Populus, and other characters; Harold Peary, Betty Winkler, Clarke Dennis, Ted Weems, Billy Mills are likely all to be in on these sessions. Also Cecil Underwood, production director, and Paul Henning, a former Kansas City lad who is now a full time assistant to Quinn.]

How He Does It.

Around Wednesday noon Quinn locks up the house, shuts off the phone, gets out his typewriter, dictionary, encyclopedia, Roget's Thesaurus—but no gag books—and he is ready for work. Unlike many another comedy writer Don has no library of comic writings, no file of puns and jokes, no card index of sure fire comic situations. And he doesn't refer to old scripts. He doesn't even keep an old one in his house, preferring to rely entirely on whatever mental resources he can command.

In addition to the rough plot which has been outlined on Monday, Quinn has also the musical cues, the commercial copy which is to be gagged into the script, and possibly some material that Henning has contributed. He starts writing the show from the beginning and takes every thing in order to the end. And he sticks with it—one long session which runs, if he is lucky, ten hours but may stretch to sixteen or longer. Only interruptions he permits himself are for a bite—or possibly a brief stroll with Skippy, a terrier Betty Eckersall gave the Quinns.

Quinn credits much of the success of the show to Jack Lewis, advertising executive, who thought up the Fibber McGee idea and supervises the show; to Jim and Marion Jordan and to Cecil Underwood, the director, who gives it that brisk tempo which has given it the reputation of the shortest half hour on the air.

The inspiration for Fibber McGee came from Jim and Marion Jordan themselves through their former Smackout performances. Lewis listened to this drama via his auto radio when he drove to work each morning. He liked them and saw in them potentialities for a great evening show.

He outlined his ideas to them. It sounded good to the Jordans and to Quinn who had been writing Smackout for them. [He had also written for Olsen and Johnson when they were on CBS.]

After the script is finished on Thursday the cast assembles at Needham, Louis & Brorby agency, sponsor's representatives, to listen to a recording of last week's show. Then Jim Jordan reads the new script, taking all the parts himself. And the rest of the cast are agreed that he gives them something to shoot at in the way of a potent reading of the lines.

At this session the script may be modified. In fact it is brushed up, revamped, polished until the moment it reaches the air. And then sometimes lines may be ad libbed giving an extra lift or laugh.

During the actual airing Author Quinn may be found in the sponsor's booth if vacant, or on the floor of the control booth, lending a keen ear. There he frets and stews over all the things that might happen—but never do. His greatest fear is that one of the key performers will fail to show some evening. But—as usual—they are all present and in top form. Under such circumstances Fibber McGee has no more appreciative listener than Don Quinn.

Ready for Kampus Klass

Dr. Kay Kyser, professor of music, and his assistant, Virginia Sims, all ready to conduct the first session of "Kay Kyser's Kampus Klass" on W-G-N and the Mutual network next Tuesday evening. The "Kampus Klass" will meet at 7 p. m. each Tuesday in W-G-N's audience studio.

KYSER KAMPUS KLASS STARTS ON MBS TUESDAY

Sylvia Froos Guest on Stokes' Hour.

Kay Kyser's orchestra and singing stars will make their bow to W-G-N and Mutual network listeners in a new series of commercial programs to be known as "Kay Kyser's Kampus Klass" at 7 p. m. Tuesday.

"Kay Kyser's Kampus Klass" will originate in the W-G-N audience studio with 600 guests attending each performance. The program is the prototype of the old "Kay Kyser's Kollege of Musical Knowledge" which W-G-N carried as a sustaining broadcast each Monday evening for 16 weeks.

The audience is invited to participate in the broadcast each week. Kyser, before each program, draws eight numbers corresponding to ticket numbers held by those who attend the show and invites the lucky ticket holders to come to the platform and answer questions.

Cash prizes totaling $100 will be distributed to the contestants, the grand prize being $50.

Virginia Sims, Kyser's beautiful soloist, will be heard each week as will Harry Babbitt, tenor, Lyman Gandee, pianist, Merwyn "Ish Kaibble" Bogue and Sully Mason, and Bobby Guy, the hot trumpeter.

Sylvia Froos, diminutive song stylist, will be the guest of Harold Stokes on his "On a Sunday Afternoon" show at 2 p. m. on W-G-N-Mutual.

Miss Froos will sing "Who Knows" and "I've got My Heart Set On You" in which she will be accompanied by the W-G-N vocal ensemble, and the new novelty selection "Cuban Cabby."

Arthur Wright, W-G-N tenor, will be heard in solo selections. The two young singers who will be heard on the weekly "Opportunity Knocks" portion of the show are Marjorie Hazelwood and Douglas Mareschal. As the feature "Famous Voices A Million People Have Heard But Never On The Radio." Mr. Stokes will present Harold Rath, who daily calls the trains at the Chicago and Northwestern terminal.

Curtain Time on Friday will present one of three shows auditioned for the studio and listening audience last friday. These were "Only Yesterday," a fantasy; "They Never Come Back," a sports story, and "Red Jade and Ivory," a mystery. And the one receiving the most ballots from the listeners will be presented at 9:30 p. m. Friday with Joan Winters and David Gothard in the leading rôles.

9:30 p. m. Monday—The Pageant of Melody with the W-G-N concert orchestra and chorus, directed by Joe Johnson and starring Attilio Baggiore, tenor.

9:30 p. m. Tuesday—The Northerners, with Margery Maxwell, soprano.

9:30 p. m. Wednesday—Melodies from the Sky with Harold Stokes, the W-G-N Dance orchestra and glee club, Edna O'Dell, Lou Holzer, winner of the Opportunity Knocks contest, Kirk Douglas, and Three Men and a Maid.

9:30 p. m.—Thursday. The Concert Revue with the W-G-N Concert orchestra and chorus, Kathryn Witwer, soprano, William Miller, tenor.

Stepmother

Sunda Love doesn't look much like the picture conjured up by the word "Stepmother." She plays that role in the serial by that name on WBBM-CBS at 4:30 p. m. weekdays.

M'CARTHY FACES BORIS KARLOFF ON AIR TONIGHT

Nelson Eddy to Introduce New Tenor.

Charlie McCarthy's self-assurance in the presence of celebrities will be put to a blood-curdling test at 7 p. m. over WMAQ-NBC.

At that time, the overshadowing guest will be Boris Karloff, player of "monster" rôles in the movies. Charlie has heard that he is on his way and plans to do his best to frighten the terrifying Karloff.

The program will be Nelson Eddy's last until next August. He will introduce John Carter, new tenor of the program, by singing a duet with him. Eddy's solos will include "Hills of Home" and "Evening Star" from 'Tannhäuser."

Jack Benny will lead his cast in a modern hula chant based on the popular song, "Vieni Vieni," his gigantic production of Samuel Goldwyn's "The Hurricane," during his program over WMAQ-NBC at 6 p. m. today.

Jack's highly original version of "Hurricane" will have all the action taking place on the Island of Manacura just before and during the tremendous wind storm. Jack will play Le Farge, the hard bitten governor of the island; Mary Livingstone will play the rôle of Le Farge's wife, and Don Wilson and Andy Devine will play the part of beachcombers who got into the play by accident.

Ida Lupino will apear as guest of Tyrone Power for the second time in Hollywood Playhouse at 8 p. m. over WENR-NBC. The two stars will present an original play based on Rupert Brookes' well known poem, "Forever England."

BOARD OF TRADE MEN TO DEBATE 6 STEWARDESSES

"True or False," the quiz program with a different twist, presented by Dr. Harry Hagen over Mutual, will be heard from W-G-N's studios at 9 p. m. tomorrow.

The rival teams who will be competing for the cash prizes offered for the correct answers will be composed of six members of the Chicago Board of Trade, and six air stewardesses. The members of the Board of Trade team will be Sidney Landis, Edwin A. Boerner, James M. R. Glaser, Charles M. Walker, Henry J. Koehl, and William H. Weinress. They have been coached for the last week by John D. McDougall, who has been a Chicago grain merchant for fifty-two years.

The stewardesses will lineup with Alice Severance as captain, and Helen Huntley, Selma Tilker, Mary Louise Wilson, "Pat" Morgan, and Clara Hagg as her assistants.

COURT OF HUMAN RELATIONS AIRS LOVE TALE TODAY

"The Court of Human Relations," heard from coast to coast over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system every Sunday from 3 to 3:30 p. m., features each week a cast of well-known radio players.

Heard regularly each week are such actors and actresses as Wilmer Walter, Wilfred Lytell, Edith Spence, Barbara Weeks, James Meighan, Andy Donnelly, Erik Rolf, Adelaide Klein, Betty Worth, and Elizabeth Day.

Ella Logan, little Scotch singer who has been heard as guest of such personalities as Rudy Vallee and Bing Crosby and who appeared with Henry Busse on a broadcast from the Chez Paree in Chicago last Sunday, will again be heard with him during his broadcast over WMAQ-NBC at 10:30 p. m.

JACK RUSSELL'S ORCHESTRA ON W-G-N MUTUAL

Russell and his orchestra are heard over W-G-N and the MBS network every Wednesday, Saturday, and Sunday night at various hours. The orchestra features eleven men, including the leader, who is also the top vocalist with the outfit. In addition to Russell the orchestra consists of Harold Jones, guitar, sax, and flute; Bill Schoening, sax; Ches Smith, sax, trumpet, and vocalist; Art Gettler, trumpet and vocalist; Bob Lipsky, sax and clarinet; Frank Pichel, drummer; Harry Hynda, pianist; Eddy Slechta, trumpet; Jules Fastoff, trombone, and Harold Emily, bass.

WAY DOWN EAST SERIAL WILL BE BACK TOMORROW

Way Down East, well known dramatic serial, will return to W-G-N and twelve others stations beginning tomorrow. The show will be heard on W-G-N at 10:45 a. m. Monday through Friday.

This continuation of the famous stage play of the same title, Way Down East, is produced by Frank and Anne Hummert. The serial dramatizes the lives of a homely and colorful group of people centered around David Bartlett and his wife, Anna. The cast, featuring some of radio's ablest actors and actresses, includes Agnes Moorehead as Anna, Karl Swenson as David Bartlett, and Wilmer Walter as Squire Bartlett.

PINZA, ITURBI TO BE GUESTS ON MAGIC KEY

A 6,000 mile interview between Linton Wells, Magic Key commentator, and John W. White, correspondent in Buenos Aires, will be a feature of the Magic Key of RCA program at 1 p. m. over WENR-NBC. The Magic Key also will present Ezio Pinza, celebrated Metropolitan opera basso; José Iturbi, eminent Spanish conductor-pianist; Carol Weyman, young soprano, and Dr. Frank Black conducting the Magic Key orchestra.

MOON MULLINS
by Frank Willard
I KNOW WHERE I COULD GET US TWO TAFFY APPLES FOR A NICKEL, IF YOU GOT A NICKEL, KITTY.
GEE! TIMES ARE SO TOUGH I HAD TO KISS THREE AUNTS AND MY MOTHER'S COUSIN CLEM TO GET FIFTEEN CENTS LAST WEEK. BUT EVEN THEY'RE GONE NOW
FUNNY I NEVER THOUGHT OF THAT RACKET MYSELF. AND WE'VE GOT SOME FOLKS VISITIN' US.
HELLO, MRS. BUSTLE.

NAW- THEY AIN'T ANY MONEY IN HAVIN' VISITORS ANY MORE.
OH PIFFLE! I SHOULDN'T HAVE PUSHED KAYO AWAY LIKE THAT— I THINK THE LITTLE DEAR WANTED TO TELL ME SOMETHING.
YOU WOULDN'T THINK FOLKS LIKE THEM WOULD BE SUCH TIGHTWADS, KITTY.
NAW- LADY PLUSHBOTTOM TOLD MAMA MR. BUSTLE MUST BE A VERY RICH MAN IF HE CAN PAY TH' GROCERY BILLS FOR A WOMAN THAT PACKS THEM AWAY LIKE HIS WIFE CAN.
YEH- BUT MR. BUSTLE'S A BIGAMIST. HE TOLD MOON HE FEELS LIKE ONE—HIS WIFE'S GETTIN' SO BIG AND FAT.
GEE! DID SHE SLAM THAT DOOR! I WONDER IF SHE HEARD WHAT WE SAID—
SHE MUSTA FROM TH' WAY SHE'S SLAMMIN' MR. BUSTLE! OH, BOY!
WHY, MY DEAR, YOU'RE NOT LEAVING?
AH-ER-YES- YOU MUST COME VISIT US SOME TIME.
YES, DO. I'D LIKE TO GET MY REVENGE ON YOU.
WELL, MY STARS! I'D GIVE A PURTY TO KNOW WHAT SHE FLEW OFF AND GOT HUFFY ABOUT.
MAKE IT A NICKEL AND I'LL TELL YA.
WHAT, NO NICKEL?
NO- DOGGONE IT! AFTER THIS I'M GONNA MAKE 'EM PAY IN ADVANCE. IT'S GIVIN' CREDIT TO PEOPLE LIKE LADY PLUSHBOTTOM THAT KEEPS ME BROKE.

KITTY HIGGINS
OLD LADY PLUSHBOTTOM WAS PLENTY MAD ABOUT WHAT HAPPENED UP THERE.
SHE HOLLERED THAT SHE WAS GOING TO SPANK KAYO WHEN HE COMES HOME TO NIGHT.
BUT WE FIXED IT SO SHE WON'T GIVE HIM BUT A LICK OR TWO— I PUT SOME TACKS IN HIS PANTS.
OW!
PLEASE TIP KAYO OFF BEFORE HE GETS HOME THAT I MADE A MISTAKE AND PUT THOSE TACKS POINTING THE WRONG WAY.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

Good Things to Eat.

Jan. 30, 1938.

COLD weather on the experimental farms always brings a number of changes. The workers make sure that they do not go out to work without caps equipped with warm earmuffs . . . every man wears a pair of warm, woolen mittens . . . the sheep stay inside the barn instead of resting in the sun in the yard . . . plowed fields show a thin covering of clean snow . . . and Ginger, the pet cocker spaniel, doesn't stay outside so long, preferring his warm place behind the big coal-burning stove in the kitchen.

When we were on the farm the other day there was one significant sign of midwinter—the fresh meat which had just been put into storage and the new lard which was standing in the huge crocks. When the men finished their annual job of butchering pigs each of the farm families was well supplied with pork chops, spare ribs, and other fresh pork delicacies. Hams and bacon are being cured for later use. We went into the smokehouse to see the meat supply of one of the farm families. A chilly winter wind was blowing strong when we poked our head inside of the little smokehouse, which, although not used recently, still has the rich fragrance of hickory smoke clinging to its walls.

Appetizing Display.

One look at the appetizing display of meat hanging from the racks in the smokehouse, and any city dweller would want to stay on the farm the balance of the winter. Inside the building were whole sides of delicious bacon; several hams, which now are but soon will be smoked; two pork jowls which will be smoked and then moved to the kitchen stove, where they are to be cooked with potatoes and spareribs destined to be a part of the team of "spareribs and sauerkraut."

As if this array of meat were not enough to make one want to linger on the farm for a home cooked dinner, one of the workers announced that another job ahead was the making of headcheese. The women already have made sausage, which has been placed in big crocks and is being stored in the basement.

We saw twenty pounds of this fresh sausage in one basement. After being ground it was forced into casings, twisted into convenient lengths, cut, fried, and then poured into the crocks with its own fat. On cold winter mornings the women will put some of this sausage into skillets to be warmed with pancakes. And on cold nights the men will occasionally get fried sausage with boiled potatoes and cream gravy—a tempting menu for the farmer or the city dweller.

Pies from Blackberries.

The farm families are now enjoying the benefits of their job of picking wild blackberries last summer. In one of the farm kitchens we noticed two large blackberry pies which were to be served that day. They were made from berries picked last summer and canned in the farm kitchens. Some of the farm women are planning more trips to the woods to pick up wild crabs which are frozen on the ground. One batch of wild crab jelly has already been made from this frozen fruit.

Mrs Edward Frey,
5815 N. Whipple St.

"SHORTLY after our marriage we began to think about owning our own home. We were convinced that it is a much happier way to live, even though there are just the two of us.

"At first we wanted a bungalow. We looked at several, found through reading the Tribune want ads, and finally we came upon one advertised by James M. Cassidy, a real estate dealer at 2540 Peterson avenue.

Analyzes Needs

"When we called at Mr. Cassidy's office he told us the price of the bungalow. In the course of the conversation we mentioned that there were just the two of us in our family. He said, 'Well, in that case, I think a two-flat would suit you better. I have one which is a wonderful buy.' We went with him, looked at the two-flat and bought it on sight.

"Each flat has six exceptionally large rooms. Each has a large and very modern tile bath and tile kitchen with electrical refrigeration. There is a finished recreation room in the basement, oil heat, a 2-car garage and a tile roof over the octagon sun parlors. In every respect the building is most attractive.

Almost Half Price

"It was built in 1929 and cost the builders $23,500. We were able to get it for $13,000. The other flat rents for $75 a month and has never been vacant. It pays the taxes, heat and interest on the loan. We thoroughly enjoy living here and are grateful to Tribune want ads for helping us to find it."

* * *

Real Estate,
2540 Peterson Ave.

"Recently Mr. and Mrs. Edward Frey came to my office in response to a want ad I ran in the Chicago Tribune. I showed them the two flat at 5815 N. Whipple St., and they were sold at first sight.

"I have been selling property in the Devon-Western section for the past sixteen years, and during that time I have tried out many different methods of advertising. I learned that only the Chicago Tribune brings me the kind of prospects who buy these high class properties.

"All of our advertising now goes into the Tribune."

EXCITING MIDSEASON CLOTHES MAKING HIGH FASHION NEWS

At right: Two piece outfit with narrow band of dull black to contrast vivid greens, blues and saffron yellows of printed silk. High around the neckline is a circumspectly tied black bow to match the black buttons down the front. ● Below: Navy blue soft wool with fitted top and plaited short skirt. Flapped pockets and fitted sleeves achieve a tailored swank. Crisp candy box frills of snow white embroidery at neckline and wrists, and streamered bonnet complete the outfit.

Below: The best of the equator prints. It comes in coral red, copper, Wedgwood blue, and gray striped in dull white. The high bodice is shirred softly to a deep vee neckline, the sleeves are short and the skirt is straight and slim.

Vivid Tropic Color Combinations Dominate Newest Prints

By RHEA SEEGER

THE BEST BETS that make the printed excitement and high fashion news are midseason clothes, whether you buy them for immediate decoration or pack them carefully in resort bound luggage. Each year fashion sleuths solemnly vote and firmly decide that the prints of the hour have taken all records for originality, colorfulness and even whimsies. Each new season they, one and all, stutter and stammer over the surprise patterns and amusing motifs as well as new color combines.

These printed fancies are taken out of circulation with a frenzied speed, after too many weeks of dark dull clothes and utilitarian crêpes of equally somber hue. All shoppers descend on newly unpacked collections and comes February first, a good snappy print is as hard to find as sunflowers in midwinter. It's a neglected winter coat that doesn't hide a giddily printed dress these days!

Fan plaited dresses of printed silks are the pets of the passing shows. From their skimpily fashioned short sleeved bodices to definitly snappy and young wide, short skirts they're irresistible. You'll find them in blazing color contrasts against vivid backgrounds, white for resort wear, and equally alluring splashed against black for the crowd that stays at home. Black and white prints never fail to charm. When they're accented with vivid belts or bows of vermilion, jade green or bright blue, they'll go with everything

Printed silk dinner and dance dresses also appear early in January. Capricious ladies, weary of one color affairs, blossom out in tropic color combines and certainly give a good account of themselves among the less colorful costumes at any gala event. These festive prints are made in long sheath lines to accent the glory of the pattern and color combine. Sometimes a velvet sash is tied around the slender waistline, sometimes the shoulder straps are of velvet, otherwise, the print speaks persuasively for itself.

Destined for a bright, successful future are stripe and band prints. These printed bands alternate with plain contrasting color

If you can't join the enthusiastic shoppers out for the fan or sunburst plaited daytime dresses, you'll find all kinds of straight, simple skirts, softly shirred bodice tops, with unusual but very flattering necklines, neat, smooth waistlines and elbow length sleeves, the sort of daytime models that slide under lavishly furred or untrimmed winter coats with equal charm and effect.

From one large collection we've sketched five new ideas, decided upon after a hectic hour of indecision over a goodly display of bewildering new creations that were exceedingly hard to resist. Price tags are merciful to the limits of small budgets and all the color and snap of 1938 prints are yours, just for the shopping.

Avoid Excess Attention; it Spoils Child

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

Children adore having the center of the stage if they are either given an excess of unwise admiration and attention highly "personalized"; or if they are ignored, pushed aside, or starved for affectionate interest.

An excess of adoration, attention, watching, talking about, and sometimes obvious worry and scolding will often result in behavior that you wouldn't connect with the cause. Refusing to eat, not learning to play happily alone, impudence, staying awake at bedtime, these and other habits have an odd way of getting started under a lot of misguided attentiveness to everything a child says and does. This is usually unintentional on the part of grownups.

These adults probably notice everything the children say, their quaint turns of speech, their graduating into full fledged sentences, their mastery of some "big" word, their ability to express their thoughts, all draw the attention of those around them. Often their remarks or doings are repeated in their presence, and what child would not be entranced at hearing herself talked of as the leading character in a story? And I assure you that people otherwise highly intelligent and with good common sense do all this; only recently I've seen it happen again and again. And these parents and relatives truly don't sense what they are doing.

Then there is this matter of the child being entertained too much, being played with, read to, talked to, never given a chance to be alone and to do alone.

Parents concern themselves with the way in which each routine is or is not accomplished. Her nap and her bath, her eating and her dressing, her going to sleep at night are all noticed more or less audibly, but not so much in praise if they're well done as in blame or worry if they're not.

What happens as a result? It is this: that all the development of the child, which should go forward almost unconsciously, is highly personalized. She's looked at so much that other people's personalities are obtruded upon her and all this interferes with her absorption, her concentration.

Rather amazing and satisfactory changes will follow a program of ignoring of the right sort; of neglect of the right kind; or as I call it when I prescribe it, of "wholesome neglect."

It is not real neglect and it is not a withdrawal of interest; these would be fatal to the child's sense of security and her sureness of affection. A child must be sure of her place in the sun, the sun of family life, but not limelight.

• • •

What "wholesome neglect" does consist of is avoiding most of those ways we've so far mentioned and that would mean:

1. Avoid looking at your child all the time. Just watch yourself and the other adults and you will see exactly what I mean, if you've never suspected yourself of this habit before.

2. Avoid above all things talking about what your child does and says; telling each other or visitors in the child's hearing of her antics, or her amusing sayings, or her "bright" remarks, or her naughtiness.

3. Show real interest in her play, in her achievement with blocks or crayon or dust cloth, but don't keep breaking in on her concentration.

4. And when praise is in order don't make it always personal. It's better to say, "That barn you've built for the cows, Betty, looks like a cozy, warm place for them to be in in the winter," than to say, "Well, Betty, you are a good builder," because your interest should be chiefly in the result, not in the smartness of the child.

5. Avoid constantly offering entertainment and diversion. This fosters lack of concentration and makes a child exacting. But provide variety in play and, if possible, association with other children. Sometimes where it is not possible to control other adults, a few hours a day in a nursery school of kindergarten breaks up the undesirable behavior habits.

If mealtimes are a "horror" in your family, write for our leaflet, "Desirable Eating Habits." It will be necessary to send a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address Mrs. Gladys Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

Mrs. Bevans' column also appears each weekday in The Chicago Tribune.

Nutmeg Is Tasty Touch in Sauce for Vegetables

Add one-fourth teaspoon of nutmeg to a cup of vegetable white sauce and use for covering cooked turnips, cabbage, onions, or cauliflower. It will make a pleasing flavor contrast.

One-fourth cup cooked crisp bacon added to corn sticks or bread batter when baked gives a delicious flavor which goes well with a breakfast or luncheon main dish.

Sprinkle chopped dates, raisins, chocolate shot, or grated sweet chocolate, nuts, coconut, or candied fruit over the top of cake batter just before putting it into the oven. It will give the cake a tasty coating. Use half a cup of coating for the average size cake.

Clotilde Children's Fashions

From time to time in this column we offer duo-patterns. That is, we like the idea of dressing brother and sister alike if they are twins or nearly the same age. The pattern today provides party togs for youngsters from 2 to 8 years old. If you prefer hardy play clothes at the moment, this same pattern will serve. Simply use sturdier fabrics.

The girl's dress is fashioned of cocoa brown and white cotton sheer, and the blouse of brother's outfit is the same. The frock has princess lines and puffed sleeves, which have tight bands trimmed with the same bias binding that beautifies the Peter Pan collar. Brother's blouse follows this description in every detail, except that the sleeves are not puffed.

The trousers of the boy's suit were made, in the original, of plain cocoa brown cotton to harmonize with the blouse.

You may use any color scheme and fabric combinations which you deem wise and practical. Youngsters wear almost any colors these days, and bright shades are popular in the present season.

Style No. 2644 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6, and 8 years. Size 4 requires 1⅛ yards of 39 inch material, with 3⅛ yards of binding for the dress. The boy's suit requires 1⅛ yards of 35 inch material for the blouse, with 3⅝ yards of binding and five-eighths yard of 39 inch material for the trousers.

Pattern includes both models in the same size. If different sizes are desired, you must order two patterns, each costing 10 cents.

Colored Tweed Yarn Used in Single Button Jacket

By Ellen Bruce.

Groundhog day will tell us whether spring is just around the corner or whether we shall have to wear our heavies six weeks longer. If he stays out we had better get busy on our new spring wardrobes because it won't be long until Easter, and nice bright sunshiny days.

The crochet jacket illustrated today is a perfect example of what spring jackets will be. Single button models are equally as popular as the double breasted type and it is purely a matter of individual taste which shall be worn. This one button garment is done in a gaily colored tweed yarn of two shades of green and gray which matches the green skirt and gray sweater which completes the ensemble. Solid colors are extremely popular and a new notion is that of using two shades of yarn in contrast, such as French blue and raspberry red.

The yarns for this double feature must necessarily be of the fine type such as chiffon or French zephyrs, fine saxonies, crêpes, and featherweight wools. Imported Irish linen and dull surfaced crochet cotton may also be used. The solid stitch used in the jacket is one of the easy to do patterns which work up quickly. The raglan sleeve is a comfortable and popular style point. The two buttons may be crocheted or of composition and may match or contrast.

If you wish instructions for crocheting the single button jacket with raglan sleeves illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Ellen Bruce, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

Through the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

Here's one way to evade time's cruel efforts to coarsen your skin and line your face: The professional treatment! Taken regularly, it forestalls disasters. It should be included in the beauty routine of every woman over thirty.

We for one are cheered to see that women are gradually wising up to the fact that the professional face treatment pays excellent beauty dividends. It supplements intelligent home care and, if it possibly can be afforded, should be included in the beauty routine of every woman over 30 who wants to save her skin and her facial contour.

We aren't referring to the corrective treatment. That's something else again. It's the "maintenance" treatment that we think more important. Think of it as a preventive measure. Remember that the skin that is given regular professional attention won't get out of repair. Neither will the contour go to pieces. The maintenance face treatment forestalls the difficulties which send so many women in frantic search of corrective measures, a search that isn't always successful.

One of the most popular of such treatments given in Chicago takes forty minutes. This makes its practical for the business women who must make the most of a lunch hour. It is not expensive. And the back, as well as the face and neck, is included in the beautifying cleansing and creaming.

This forty minute facial includes three rituals: Cleansing, toning, and soothing. The cleansing, of course, is elaborate and far more efficient than that achieved by home methods. The toning is vitally important. The skin that is kept in good tone retains its elasticity and its general health. The soothing is the gentle process by which the precious oils are restored to the skin. At its conclusion there is the "chilled tie-up," during which the face is masked with cotton saturated with skin tonic. Over this ice is rubbed. It is just enough to be stimulating and not enough to be shocking.

This face treatment has an immediate result. The skin is clarified, radiant, and you yourself feel like a million dollar dream girl a-walking. You've had a wonderful beauty treatment and the glorification shows. What doesn't show is the more important benefit, the staving off of time's touch on your cheek.

Too Heavy Duties Impair Efficiency of Pet Food Mixer

If you have a choice food mixer that you treasure highly, don't impair its efficiency by giving it too heavy work to do. Or—

Don't risk or expose your porcelain or glass bowl to any sudden change in temperature . . . don't immerse the motor casing in water, but use a damp cloth to clean it . . . and remember to use a rubber scraper to mix down the batters, as ordinary spoons can get caught in the beaters and do damage.

As for oil, food mixers should be oiled sparingly and frequently, with a good grade of graphite oil, and once every ten or twelve months the gears can be packed with a heavy grease. As recommended by the manufacturers—no one else.

Working Girl Must Budget Beauty Care

How housewives may avoid water-marked hands is one of the beauty problems Antoinette Donnelly discusses in her booklet, "Handmade Hand Beauty." On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 5 cents. Postpaid, 7 cents.

"The working girl" rarely has the leisure or the money to pamper herself to her heart's content. Rarely does she have those extra hours each week for beauty naps, for luxuriating in bubble baths, under sun lamps, on a massage table, for combing the shops, for dawdling in beauty salons for facials, scalp treatments, and pedicures.

The more energetic of our toiling misses, therefore, help themselves to beauty on a limited time schedule.

An example of a realistic approach to this problem is that of the 32 young women who compose the Phil Spitalny All-Girl orchestra. Their working schedule of rehersing from early in the morning until late in the afternoon, of coaching, of making personal appearance tours, is a heavy one. Yet the appearance of no one of these girls, slim, lithe figures, warm, suntinted skins, tasteful clothes, smart coiffures, and innumerable fastidious details of good grooming, is sacrificed because of a meagre margin of time.

But their energy and time are spent only upon those activities which pay gilt-edged dividends in good grooming, physical well-being, charm, and that essential extra fillip, glamor. They all have agreed that the first "must" on the list is relaxation; but, because of time limitations, exercise is chosen for relaxation, instead of the movies or bridge games.

"We go to an exercise salon evenings after work," says Evelyn Kaye, young violinist and concert mistress of the group. "Some of the girls go in for badminton and tennis, others join a basketball squad, some like swimming best of all, and others enroll for tap and folk dancing courses."

She explains that this recreational form of exercise yields them dividends on three counts: it relaxes them and makes them better musicians next day; it keeps their figures slim and it develops a proficiency in sports which comes in handy for summer vacations.

Their exercises over, if the budget allows, the remainder of the evening will be given over to extracurricular boons to beauty, a 15 minute sunning under ultra-violet rays, to counteract midwinter pallor, a 45 minute massage and a hydraulic pressure shower as an antidote for waistlines and hips which may be getting out of bounds.

Most of these girls are agreed that a weekly facial is as important to the spirit as it is to the skin, and try to make a place for it on their budget. That slashing on of creams and astringents, that patting and massaging of a tired face are squeezed into the one and one-half hour period a week allotted to hairdressing and manicure.

Then there are those time-saving rites which they do for themselves at home while they are dressing for dinner. Two favorites with these girls are those "facial cocktails," which may range from almond meal paste to the most glorified muds from the cosmeticians' shelves, smoothed on before the bath and left on until the last minute, leaving the face ready for the evening makeup, pink-skinned, clear, and fresh, and miraculously freed of tired lines and taut muscles.

Millions Thrill at New Beauty Amazing Shampoo Gives Hair

Laboratory tests reveal this amazing discovery gives hair thrilling new beauty and lustre with complete safety to hair

IF you would have a beautiful, healthy head of hair, then by all means choose the shampoo you use with utmost care.

For science has found that most shampoos in common use form a "lime-scum" when mixed with the minerals in water. This "lime-scum", or film, clings to the hair shafts and scalp. When this happens the true color of the hair is clouded. The hair often has an objectionable "stale" odor. And, in many cases, the scalp becomes so encrusted that the oil glands cannot function and feed the hair in a normal way.

The great laboratories of Procter & Gamble have developed a new shampoo which overcomes all of these objections. It is totally different in formula and results from any shampoo you have ever used—neutral in action and as safe as water on hair. For Drene is not a soap—so it can not form a "lime-scum" to dull the natural color and lustre of the hair. Yet it actually makes five times more lather than soap in hardest water—mild, safe lather that removes all beauty-clouding dirt and film with gentle thoroughness. Removes loose dandruff flakes. Leaves the hair and scalp scrupulously clean, sweet-smelling, gleaming and glistening with beautiful highlights.

Drene is not an oil—as you can tell by its rich lather. It can not deposit a greasy film on the hair to catch dust and dirt. It does not "varnish" the hair, or make it stiff and brittle. It contains no strong medicates—no parching bleaches.

And Drene is amazingly easy to use. You simply wet the hair, pour on a few drops, and rub briskly. Instantly you get a glorious, billowy lather. You rinse thoroughly in clear water and you're through. Yes, a single sudsing, a thorough rinsing, and the hair is left cleaner than it ever has been. Even special after-rinses are not needed, for Drene leaves no sticky film which has to be removed with after-rinses.

What a thrilling difference you will see and feel after your first Drene shampoo. Your scalp will tingle with a healthy glow. Embarrassing dandruff flakes will have disappeared. Dazzling highlights will sparkle. And the hair will be so clean that when a permanent is given, the wave solution can take hold evenly—thus making a softer, more beautiful, more natural looking wave. Even dull, bleached or dyed hair looks more natural, more brilliant.

Remember this! Healthy hair demands a safe shampoo. And there is no milder, safer, or more beautifying way to shampoo the hair than with Drene's gentle, neutral lather. Procter & Gamble make this marvel. Good Housekeeping has approved it. Get Drene from your drug, department or ten cent store. Or, for the next 7 days only, you can send your name and address to Drene, Dept. 188, Box 629, Cincinnati, Ohio, and the makers will send you a bottle of Drene (enough for 2 shampoos) absolutely Free to try.

New Summer Cardigans Have Lapels and Collar

By Jean Macdonald.

The most comfortable of all hand knitted garments for either active or spectator sports is a hand knitted cardigan or sweater jacket. For ship or shore these comfortable garments rate an important place in every wardrobe and are prime favorites among the sports minded feminine gentry who follow the little white ball around the course or bat the bouncing red one across the courts. Cardigans have gone a long way since they were first knitted as a simple loose fitting garment which buttoned up the front regardless of fit or styles.

The white soft wool sweater jacket illustrated today is a radical change from those models of twenty years ago. It is perfectly fitted with a band of ribbing at the waist which forms a smart bloused effect. The garter stitch around the bottom, on the sleeves, up the fronts, around the lapels and collar, form the only trimming. The lapels and collar are a distinct new note for summer cardigans. The fine wool from which this jacket is knitted works up eight stitches to the inch of a No. 3 needle. Worn with a knitted skirt of the same material the cardigan may be worn without any under sweater for warm days, and it may be worn as a three piece ensemble for the chilly days of spring.

No. 5225—The Paris pattern for this dress is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measurement.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—One of the current rages is the bolero. One clever couturier in the Rue had the good sense to create a style that would look well on matronly as well as svelte, youthful figures. We can't all be streamline, he figured, and proceeded to consider the problems of the overweight silhouette, giving this frock slenderizing lines and a smart bolero jacket.

The original of this model was made of soft crêpe in blush shade, with just a trace of seaspray silk in the blouse. When you make this dress for yourself you can use your favorite color scheme, whether it includes a print or not. You may combine light and dark shades in a number of ways, one of the smartest of which is to have the jacket and the skirt in the pastel and the top of the frock in the darker color.

There is an interesting detail in the skirt of this pattern, No. 5225. If you like, you may have a simulated redingote effect, with the inserted panel designed to match the bodice. Otherwise the seam may be sewed down flat, as shown in the larger sketch.

Earl Beatty Is Elected as Joint Master of Quorn

A new and coveted honor recently fell to the young Earl Beatty. He has been elected joint master of the Quorn with Sir Harold Nutting. LONDON

Many great men have said they would rather be a M. F. H. than prime minister, and to be M. F. H. to the Quorn is, in its way, the top of the ladder.

The Quorn probably is the most aristocratic hunt in England. It hunts the best of four counties, its dues are the highest, the hunting "boxes" are among the most elaborate houses in the country, and it always has enjoyed the membership of members of the royal family. All four of the former king's sons were "blooded" by the Quorn. Each, as his turn came to hunt, went first with the Quorn and at the first kill had his hands baptized in the fox's blood.

The former Earl Beatty hunted with the Quorn, and, although he was unfortunate in accidents, he continued hunting until his death. His countess, the former Ethel Field, was not keen on hunting, but her son's bride has hunted in Virginia and thoroughly enjoys the sport with her husband.

Shrimp Popular in Appetizers for the Buffet Table

Shrimp appetizers usually are popular on the buffet table. Select firm, uniform shrimps; then clean and chill. Arrange them "hanging" on a small bowl in which is placed chili sauce, mayonnaise, or any other relish. Serve wood picks for spearing the shrimps.

Spring Styles Put Surprises Into Waistline

By Bettina Bedwell.

Paris is announcing the birth of spring fashions. In the suave salons of the dressmaking big shots they're being born a hundred a minute, all this week. These little strangers who're waiting to be welcomed into your clothes closets in April and May resemble the bigger members of the style family, who were born in the midseason in a general family way.

The skirts are neither much longer or shorter. The waistline territory continues to be the region of dramatic surprises, playing a star part. Alabaster throats and the chest just below get the air in afternoon dresses, but most of the practical dresses ride high along the Adam's apple.

Spring wraps are gonna be versatile. The shortest yet bolero which ends at or just below the bosom, born during the midseason shows, has a lot of little sisters in the new Paris displays. There are a lot of moderately short, boxy jackets, minus collars or collared in an insignificant way and there are long, loose coats with Watteau flares sprouting from between the shoulder blades. Triple capelets around the shoulders of postillon coats make street drama in coats. Redingote coats in sparkling printed, striped, and other patterned materials are slipped over one color dresses.

Long and medium romantic capes are important new wraps. Short jackets that look very different from those of last spring because they are soft and drapy come in gay, light colors that are enchanting over dark dresses. You will have a lot of leeway in choosing your spring wrap, so go to it and use your personal taste.

Suits come in big editions of varying types. Two fabric suits will be very smart for runabout wear, combining patterned and plain wool jacket and skirt, or two color suits of plain material, with the jacket the gay member. Such suits have very tailored jackets with squared shoulders and plain sleeves, but the length varies from bolero to fingertip and the longer ones tend to be boxy.

With longer jackets bright, sporty waistcoats may be worn. Soft detail in rippled revers, draped sleeves, novel collarless necklines, and pockets give the afternoon suit newness.

Snapshot of fashion's favorite child hiking along the avenues this spring will be something like this: Smooth wool suit with jacket, dress, or skirt pared down to slim lines and with color contrast in jacket, blouse, or dress topped by the gayest of flower hats, or an impudent straw sailor harboring flowers or birds, or both; very warm, light stockings and supple fitted slippers that lace or have straps riding around the ankles and are otherwise very low cut; longish handsome gloves with light colors and short gay ones with dark suits.

Later in the day the same girl may appear as another creature in a soft dress and long cape and a wide brimmed hat with a flower crown or soft feather toque. Or she may wear dramatic black in a draped dress over which is a vivid pink short jacket or one of green, or violet, or intense blue. Or she will step into the spotlight of attention with a hurricane printed redingote and a stark, dark dress.

Use Leftover Sweets in Sauce, Frosting, Dessert

Use bits of left-over candied fruit, fruit peel, citron, or nuts in sauces, frostings, cookie or cake batters, or in baked or gelatin desserts.

Simple Method "Crisps" Wafers Before Serving

Remember, only crisp crackers or wafers should be served with soups, salads, or cheese. Often crackers in a fresh box need reheating for five minutes in a moderate oven.

Foods that build up the body include milk, butter, eggs, green and leafy vegetables, and fruits. Serve them once a day.

CAMAY THE SOAP OF BEAUTIFUL WOMEN

Debut Success Does Not Mean Gold to Singer

By Edward Barry.

A trembling young soprano is making her debut at the opera. She quiets a set of fluttering nerves in time for the first aria. At its conclusion the audience breaks into cordial and long continued applause. These salvos continue at intervals all evening, with curtain calls aplenty and enough flowers to start a shop.

The papers next day are friendly. Their music columns sparkle with many a quotable bit about the singer's voice, style, and stage manner.

This young woman, you say, is much to be envied. She has made a success of her profession and the long grind of preparatory training lies safely behind her. To the naked eye it looks as if the future path of any one so blessed by fortune must of necessity be straight and smooth.

But if you have a steady job, even a humble and glamorless steady job, do not start envying this young soprano until you have meditated for at least five minutes on the following fact. The recipient of these plaudits, these flowers, these favorable reviews is still faced with a very serious problem—the problem of how to make a living!

A few months ago this column described the plight of composers. Creative musicians find that their principal talent is not readily exchangeable for bread and butter and they are compelled in most cases to earn their living in other and sometimes grotesquely foreign types of work.

The condition of performers [interpretative musicians] is not so bad as this. It offers, however, another striking proof of the fact that a portmanteau phrase like "rich and successful" has an ironic rather than a literal meaning in the musical profession. One may be successful and even famous, yet be harried continually by economic problems which are unknown in their most severe form to those office and industrial workers who are inclined to envy the apparently easy life of a musician.

But to return to our soprano of the first paragraph. Suppose that her pleasant reception betokens genuine ability. Suppose, also, that her debut was made in an opera company whose name carries national prestige. Even with all this taken for granted, just what has she to expect of her profession in the way of an immediate adequate, and steady income?

Alas, very little! She may sing twice in San Francisco, twice in Chicago, twice during the spring season of New York's Metropolitan opera. For a newcomer fees are small, and transportation expenses over such vast distances do much to eat them up.

In the spring she can count on one profitable recital in her home city, where proud relatives, friends, and fellow citizens will dutifully pack the house. And she may be able to arrange for a few appearances of a much less profitable nature by persuading church or charitable organizations in other towns to sponsor her recitals. The singer will get some club dates, too.

Successful appearances in the opera house must be followed up by carefully planned advertising and publicity. The country cannot be allowed to forget a name that has once achieved a little fame. All of this costs money.

Barring a sensational piece of luck [a radio or mocie contract, for instance] a singer must be willing to see outgo approach, equal, or even exceed income for some years after the first success. There will come a day, of course, when a famous name will begin to attract audiences automatically and when the owner of that name can at last contemplate a balance sheet with satisfaction. Ability, luck, and buildup will then have achieved their proper end.

But comparatively few singers find themselver in such a sunny position. The others, if they are faced with the necessity of earning their keep, must teach music or find some other type of supplementary work.

Also astonishingly low is the percentage of pianists and violinists—even successful pianists and violinists—who actually make a living by their playing. In the majority of cases these people cheerfully accept deficits after their recitals. Each such event, if artistically successful, is valuable to them because of the publicity and the pupils it is likely to bring.

Conductors, of course, make a living in their craft if they happen to have a steady position with a major orchestra. The guest directors who go tirelessly about the world, taking two or three engagements here, two or three there, are sometimes driven forth by something even more compelling than the desire to acquire a wide musical view. That something is the realization of their shaky economic position. And they often have to write or teach to eke out a livelihood.

To interpreters and creators both music is a stern mistress. She is chary of favors and seldom lays herself open to the change of overindulgence. But to win her rare smiles people gladly put up with a type of life which must fill with horror [as well as with unconquerable envy!] the hearts of all sound economists.

Campus Modes by a Co-ed

You're doing one of two things these days—staying in the north or planning a sojourn in the south. In either case you can consider one of your wardrobe problems solved, because the dress I'm offering today is grand for your campus dates, dinner with your favorite beau in town, or for informal dancing in Florida. We spent one inspired hour in our dormitory after "lights out" concocting this confection for you, so don't pass it up!

Full shirred skirts, sashes, square necklines and fitted, revealing bodices all are important in the fashion world this season, and this dress has every one of them. You must be young to wear it because, although it's simple, this frock is frivolous. I made a version for myself in a bright print, as illustrated. The background is black and the wide leaf design is green, with a spot of bright red here and there. I've added a detail that's very fetching, the pockets. Many of the smartest gowns have pockets this year, even evening dresses.

Use printed silks for this model if you're staying up north. For wear down south I recommend gay cottons and sheers.

Washing Machines Need Respect and Careful Use

Washing machines are about as big a lift as we have in the way of household helper, but they need respectful and careful attention to keep them functioning in healthy fashion. For instance, be sure to wash no heavier a load than the manufacturer recommends. You won't do as good a job of washing if you put too many clothes in the machine and you also put a strain on the motor.

Heed the water level mark and keep the water level there when the machine is loaded. You can actually damage a machine by having too much water in it. Too little water and your clothes drag and "overload" the machine. Remove wringer roll tension when you aren't using it so it won't stick, and when cleaning the rolls use a soapy cloth or a noninflammable cleaning fluid.

To eliminate any danger of a blown fuse be careful not to plug in washer when the spinner, wringer, or agitator is in gear or when the pump is engaged. And one last point: Don't overlook the task of oiling motor and mechanism about once every three months—according to the directions of the manufacturer.

Here Are Tips for Peace in the Household

By Doris Blake.

A few reflections on what makes trouble in domestic relationships are offered today. You have the best part of a new year ahead of you in which to apply any little lessons you may extract from the following hints.

If you are among the newlyweds, you have discovered that you must adjust certain of your own fixed little ways to another's habits. You, the wife, who are more likely to make mountains out of molehills because you have more time to think about the little irritations, must try to remember that your man also has been doing some readjusting and maybe with much less complaint.

You may be one of those orderly individuals whose clothes are put away as soon as they are taken off, whose dresser drawers are an object lesson in neatness, and you have on your hands a mate who scatters things all over the place. Don't expect quick reform. If you feel like breaking out in anger, try to remember that there may be some habit of yours that is equally irritating, although of an entirely different nature.

If the other's irritating habits get you to the breaking point, don't burst out the truth in bitter, challenging terms. There are gentler, kinder, and more effective ways of getting a person to see his or her faults. There are moments to express your dislike when you are not in a temper, when you can make a gentle plea instead of a biting comment.

Remember that those stinging blasts, spoken in a fit of anger, stay with the victim a long time, even after a reconciliation.

You, the wife, may irk your man by some simple irritant such as the way you leave grounds in the coffee pot. So, when he tosses the bath towels in a sopping mess in a corner, try to think about something that you do that you know yourself isn't right.

Some wise person has suggested that couples should have a yearly or semi-annual checkup on the faults that get under the skin. The check-up is recommended for an occasion when frankness may be the order, but frankness without bitterness. If you can present your irritation with a laugh and receive his likewise, you are a lucky pair.

Personal upkeep is important in maintaining the respect that is essential to continued happiness. Indeed, your virtues may be lost sight of should you go about with them wrapped in untidy apparel, and this goes for men as well as women. The man of the house can't maintain the same level of respect if he goes about unshaved, uncollared, and dishevelled as if he looked neat.

Money difficulties rank high in marital discord causes. A plan is best established right away with the new home set-up. Don't trust to luck that either of you always will do the right thing by the other. Be businesslike in this regard. Draw up your agreement, so much to save each month, so much to spend according to your own idea of smart budgeting. None can decide the budget arrangement better than you two.

Then, there is the question of quarrels. They seem bound to happen in the best tempered relationships. One of you is fed up on having to make the compromise every time. So it seems to you that you are doing it. But maybe you are not. It may only seem that way. Creating scenes, as you probably have found out by now, may result in your getting your way, but at a cost you hadn't reckoned on. So, the plan recommended is to make no scene. Certainly make no scene while your temper is boiling. Take it out to cool somewhere, if you have to walk around the block ten times.

Contract According to Culbertson

Difficult Type of Bidding Is Explained

By Ely Culbertson

(Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.)

A letter received from a bewildered beginner so neatly sums up the difficulties that must be surmounted before a player can enter the upper ranks that I shall reproduce it here and use it as the basis of a discussion.

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: Although I am going to sign myself 'A Bewildered Beginner,' I have in reality been playing contract for more than a year. I have followed your newspaper articles as a hound follows a fox and, although I have undoubtedly improved my game, the distance I still have to travel in order to be even a fair player discourages me no end.

"This is the greatest obstacle with which I have had to contend: That every time I learn a so-called rule, or principle, I find, later, that another rule, presumably more important, supplants the first. For instance, I was taught very early to return my partner's lead. I have since found that sometimes you do and sometimes you don't! I was taught that one must bid only his own cards and not attempt to bid the cards that are apparently in his partner's hand. Yet, particularly in slam bidding, it often becomes necessary to base your own bid on the cards which you know, or hope, to be in partner's hand. If you don't do this you will miss slams, and even games. I am particularly at a loss to know how to proceed in the following situation:

"My right hand opponent [let us call him North] deals and bids one spade. I pass, and the bidder's partner [South] also passes. Now, my partner, West, bids two hearts, which is passed by the opening bidder. I hold a hand with adequate heart support, something like three to a queen, and two outside aces. What am I supposed to do? Should I raise just as I would if my partner had overcalled, or should I pass on the principle that partner is merely reopening the bidding and is expecting me to deliver certain tricks, even without my mentioning them?

"Incidentally, I raised with a hand very much like the one shown, except that I lacked the adequate support. The result was terrible! The entire group with which I play has equal difficulty in the situation outlined, and I am appealing to you to give us an article on this point. I am sure that thousands of other players want instruction in this particular phase of bidding.

"A Bewildered Beginner,
"St. Louis, Mo."

I am glad to accede to this request. The situation described is one of the phases of bidding that has not been too well covered in the past by any writer. Before I can intelligently discuss the problem of the response in the situation such as the one stated there must be clear understanding as to the meaning and scope of the reopening bid itself.

The answers I received to certain questions of my recent national examination proved that there is considerable misunderstanding abroad anent the question of reopening the bidding. Many players confuse this proposition with the one of ordinary overcalling. Thus, they look upon the two following bidding sequences in very much the same way:

| | North | East | South | West |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| A— | 1 spade | Pass | Pass | 2 hearts |
| B— | 1 spade | 2 hearts | Pass | |

I cannot be too emphatic in pointing out that West's bid in sequence A is nothing like East's bid in sequence B, which means, of course, that the requirements for the two bids vary widely. East, in sequence B, is making a direct overcall and since he may well be caught between two fires [the opening bidder's partner has not yet spoken], East's bid must be based on at least five playing tricks not vulnerable, or six vulnerable. West's two heart bid in sequence A is quite a different matter. In this case West's bid may well be influenced by the knowledge that South, the opening bidder's partner, did not think enough of his hand to keep the bidding open. Since North did not start with a two bid, the presumption is that whatever honor strength is outstanding, or at least the greater part of it, is in East's hand. Thus, West can make his two heart bid with considerably less than the requirements for a direct overcall. This is one of the rare cases in bridge where one player can logically base his bids not only on what he sees in his own hand but on what he knows to be in partner's hand. If West, counting only his own values, meekly passes and closes the bidding, he will on innumerable occasions permit the enemy to play a measly one contract and, perhaps, make it when his own side could make two or three, or perhaps a game. Thus it often becomes necessary for the player in fourth position to overcall the opening bid, although he may hold less than the requirements for an ordinary overcall. But it must be noted that I have said "necessary to overcall" only for want of a better term; in the final analysis, West's bid is not technically an overcall, but an instance of reopening the bidding.

Now that we have established that West in sequence A requires no great strength in order to reopen the bidding we can take the problem of East's response, assuming West does indulge in such reopening. Let us lay out an actual hand and analyze it from the point of view of reopening, and responding to the reopening.

NORTH.
♠ K Q 10 3 2
♥ K J 5
♦ A J
♣ K 9 7

WEST
♠ J 8
♥ A Q 9 8 2
♦ K Q 6
♣ J 10 5

EAST
♦ 8 7 5 4

SOUTH
♠ 9 6 5
♥ 7 4
♣ Q 8 6 4

We will assume that both sides are vulnerable and that North deals and bids one spade. East and South obviously must pass. Should West also pass? Definitely not! West has a good major suit, a total honor trick holding of two and a half tricks, not to mention two minor honors in the club suit. Moreover, as explained above, West has every reason to believe that East, his partner, holds the balance of strength; that is, most of the high cards that North, the opening bidder, does not hold. I do not think that any one will disagree about West's proper action—namely: to bid two hearts. If North passes this bid, which he is more or less forced to do despite his profusion of honors, it is now up to East to decide whether to pass or raise. And here we have reached the point brought up by my correspondent.

East, it is quite true, holds two aces and almost adequate trump support. Nevertheless, East must not dream of raising! The reasons demanding a pass on East's part have already been brought out in my discussion of West's bid. West was entitled to expect about two playing tricks in East's hand and, since East can deliver no more than those two, he must not bid his own cards because his partner has already bid them for him! As a matter of fact, even though West's two heart bid could not be called bad, and even though East supplies two aces to the partnership fund, the two heart contract is doomed to a two trick defeat. It will be observed that West must lose one spade trick, two hearts, two diamonds, and two clubs, unless he plays the hand in virtually double-dummy fashion. East's beautiful aces turn out to be no better than a couple of well placed minor honors would be. East could exchange his spade ace for North's jack of hearts and his club ace for South's queen and still deliver as many playing tricks to the contract.

Now that we have discussed a hand in which East must not raise his partner's reopening bid, the question naturally arises: "How much does East require to raise a similar two heart bid?"

It is difficult to give an answer in terms of honor tricks. The only sensible method by which East can figure is to set aside about two playing tricks which he knows his partner has already assumed, and to base his raise on the overage, if any. Thus it will be found that for East to have a sound raise he must be able to supply at least three sure playing tricks to the contract. With the unfertile 4-3-3-3 distribution, even this minimum is questionable. But the difference between East's actual hand, as shown above, and a hand containing the same two aces with the addition of, let us say, the heart king, is considerable. Add the heart king to East's hand, as above, and instead of West going down two tricks on his two heart contract, it will be found that a play for three odd develops. Thus the absence or presence of the heart king in East's hand may create a swing of three tricks.

Hide-a-Way Room Helps Keep Family Circle Contented

You might consider the modern trend toward a hide-a-way room in hour home as a practical means of making the home livable and keeping the family members contented.

This type of room is precisely what its name indicates, only it is a hide-a-way for family members—not for discarded pieces of furniture, old pictures, trunks and boxes.

Sensible economy of space is putting storage areas in the wall, and in this way salvaging an extra room for living purposes. Such a room can be a cross between a den, a study, a library, a music or sewing room—and always, of course, an extra bedroom if the need for it arises.

If it is a little remote from the rest of the house it offers a retreat for different family members when the living room is given over to entertaining, and the dining room and kitchen centers of busy activity.

It can have a desk for dad when he brings home papers and work from the office, and adequate shelves for books, with a small radio neatly tucked away somewhere in their midst. It also should have storage space for games and a place for phonograph and records.

And of course, some type of couch or day bed so that when the bedrooms overflow, there's always a place for one added person to sleep.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Jan. 31.

Those who grow cacti in pots will find it convenient and easy to dip an old toothbrush in denatured alcohol to remove scale insects. A small atomizer also may be used. It isn't necessary to bathe the plant in the solution; apply as a mist and the insects will be killed. Mealy bugs should never be allowed to form great clusters of cottony masses on plants. The red spider is probably the most difficult insect to control. Syringe the plants occasionally to remove this pest or spray with any recommended concoction.

Tuesday, Feb. 1.

The pruning of grape vines should be completed this month, certainly not later than March. Palms may be repotted now. Use a heavy soil and see that the drainage is perfectly arranged by placing a couple of inches of broken pot over the hole in the bottom. If the plant isn't in need of transplanting, work some bonemeal into the soil, or remove about two inches of the top soil and replace it with rich soil.—It is an excellent time to paint and repair all hotbed sash. Sow canna seed now, but before sowing take a file and gently cut through the hard, outer coat. Give the plants a rich soil and plenty of water and they will make an amazing growth. The tubers should be started now if one has access to a conservatory.

Wednesday, Feb. 2.

Liquid manure is good for all growing plants, but foods should not be given unless the plants are in active growth. House plants should not be neglected at any time for the roots occupy restricted quarters and the food supply is quickly depleted and must be replaced. Many brands of commercial foods are for sale; the percentage of elements in a bag of fertilizer is printed on the outside. Use foods intelligently and good results may be expected.

Thursday, Feb. 3.

Bulbous pot plants now are offered for home use. Be sure to keep the plants well watered. At night, place each plant in a cool part of the house, replacing it wherever wanted in the morning. The dry and hot rooms of modern apartments make it difficult to grow plants, but flowering bulbous plants are kept only while in bloom and then discarded or the bulbs ripened for outdoor use the following season. Try a pot or two of the hyacinth, for its sweet fragrance is incomparable.

Friday, Feb. 4.

Test old seeds before depending on them for planting. Try to grow a plant that you have never attempted before. Variety makes the window more interesting. The old time tricolor geranium, has highly colored leaves and is well worth growing. Examine the geranium plants that were stored in the fall. If stored in the dry atmosphere of the average basement, they are likely to become so dry the stems will shrivel up.

Saturday, Feb. 5.

It soon will be time to start tuberous-rooted begonias. Send for catalogs and order the best varieties. Start the tubers in sand and transplant into pots when well rooted and after a few leaves are formed. These plants are well adapted for use in shady spots where other things fail to do well. They also may be flowered in pots, if desired. Order seeds for early sowing. When ordering shrubs remember that only a few choice kinds are needed. Too many kinds will give a spotty effect. It is much better to order a few dependable kinds and repeat them in the border than to make a collection of shrubs.

Maybe the rough clay roads of Kentucky in its early period never were to be forgotten, and the story of the rutted, sticky roads has passed from generation to generation. The design is one of our most beautiful patterns, and was pieced prior to 1842. The quaint charm of the quilt is carried out today as it was then, by using a dainty printed material for a background with red and white forming the crossroads. The finished square measures 16 inches, and there are twenty blocks required for a coverlet. These are set together with 4 inch bands of printed material and surrounded by a 6 inch matching border and a ½ inch bias binding of plain material.

February Gives Hostess Many Party Themes

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune.]

The two-faced god Janus has but one more day to do his peering back into the old year and forward into the new. The month dedicated to him is almost over. We are entering a month sacred to St. Valentine, who lost his head one fourteenth of February, and two wood-chopping American Presidents, one a splitter of rails, the other a hacker of cherry trees.

February always has been a party month. Three holidays give a hostess plenty of leeway in planning food and decorations. The party may be patriotic or sentimental, or it may be a little of one and a little more of the other. In any case, there must be red food, for red is the color of patriotism, and also the color of the "bleeding heart."

Hot or Jellied Consommè
Individual Chicken Shortcakes
Baked Stuffed Potatoes
Rail Fence Salad
Buttered Whole Kernel Corn
Cherry Muffins
Patriotic Cake
[Decorated in Red, White, Blue]
Cranberry Punch

The rail fence salad is a composition of asparagus tips. They are marinated for an hour or so in French dressing, then arranged log cabin fashion on individual salad plates to form a box shape. Strips of pimiento may form the top rails. The dressing may be placed in the center of the arrangement. Mayonnaise or chili sauce dressing is appropriate.

VALENTINE BUFFET SUPPER

Pineapple and Cherry Juice Cocktail
Bleeding Heart [Large heart-shaped mold of Spanish rice with thick tomato sauce over it]
Relish Tray of Caviar-Stuffed Olives, Radishes, Celery
Stuffed Rose Apple Salad
Buttered Heart Shaped Baking Powder Biscuits
Currant Jelly
Raspberry Mousse
Heart Shaped Cakes
Coffee

The rose apple salad is made by peeling and coring apples, then cooking them gently in red colored sirup until tender. They are chilled and the centers are stuffed with cream cheese, celery and raisins.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY LUNCHEON

Celery Stuffed with Beet Relish
Baked Ham with Sweet Potatoes
Buttered Brussels Sprouts
Jellied Cherry Salad
Cornbread Sticks
Washington Cream Pie
Coffee
Red, White and Blue Fondant Coated Nuts

This department has two booklets with ideas about Valentine parties. One of them is called "Heart Shaped Parties for Valentine's Day," and includes menus and recipes for a Cupid tea, a comic Valentine buffet, a children's Valentine party, a pink and white luncheon, and a red and white dinner. The price is 3 cents [stamps] by mail, 2 cents if the pamphlet is picked up at Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

The second booklet is our "Holidays and Holiday Meals," which contains material about all the holidays of the year and will be helpful when it comes to planning affairs with a St. Patrick's theme, too. The latter book, being much larger and more complete than the first, sells for 23 cents in stamps by mail, 20 cents if called for. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

Oil Your Vacuum Cleaner, but Don't Give It Too Much

If you have a vacuum cleaner you cherish, don't forget to give it a dose of oil according to instructions. Not too much, for a surfeit of oil is as bad as a lack. In case you haven't any instructions you can locate the oil holes and insert 2 drops of electric motor oil in each hole every two to four weeks. Once a week isn't too often to empty your dust bag and once a month turn the bag inside out and give it a good brushing.

And speaking of brushes and brushing—keep your vacuum brushes free from threads and lint.

Empty the vacuum cleaner into a large paper sack [saved from groceries]. The sack can be discarded easily and the dust won't fly.

W. C. T. U. Directs New Movement in Education Program

Education for temperance, directed through channels undreamed of in the lifetime of Frances Willard, will, figuratively, be the monument which the Women's Christian Temperance union will rear to the memory of Miss Willard on the centenary of her birth in 1939.

By motion pictures, radio, exhibits, road signs and by field service that education has been launched through the availability of the fund which has been accruing in the last three years with a definite goal of $1,000,000.

It is a memorial to the woman who pioneered in the cause of equal suffrage only that women might use the ballot "to win protection against the evils of drink."

George Rector

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune.]

The Rector restaurants of Chicago and New York specialized in shell fish and other sea food. We conceived a great many ways of preparing oysters. Raw oysters on the half shell, served with a cocktail sauce, was probably the most popular; and while we are on the subject of oysters, I am reminded of the great love "Diamond Jim" Brady had for oysters—the bigger the better.

Our oyster shipper in Virginia included in our weekly shipment one barrel of the largest Lynnhavens that could be procured. They measured easily six inches from tip to tail, if an oyster has either. This barrel was reserved for "Diamond Jim." Lynnhaven oysters contain oyster crabs, and among epicureans they were considered a delicacy eaten raw, right out of the oysters.

Many a time I have seen Mr. Brady tackle a dozen or two of these Lynnhavens and with his oyster fork always on the alert for the little crab that would come up from under the oyster. These little crabs could travel pretty fast, and when four or five got loose and started across the table, Jim did some neat spearing to bring them home.

When the edges curl up then oyster is done.

They used to say that cooked oysters were hard to digest. Well, that's all wrong. The only time you will have difficulty in digesting an oyster is when it is eaten raw and the beverage is whisky. Of course, there is such a thing as overcooking an oyster, so please remember that it is cooked when you see the edges curl and the body part is puffed up.

Bulk oysters, which are available in the food stores and sold by the quart or by the dozen, are, of course, fresh oysters carefully shipped in tubs packed in ice or in refrigerator cars.

One of the nicest ways to cook oysters is known as pan roast. This title is a misnomer, as they are cooked on top of the stove. It's a mighty tasty dish, to be sure. Purchase a dozen medium sized oysters—they are usually poured into a carton with the oyster liquor. Put into a sauce pan one tablespoon of butter; while it is melting add one-half teaspoon of paprika, one-eighth teaspoon of white pepper, and one-half teaspoon of celery salt.

To the melted butter add one dozen oysters and one-third cup of oyster liquor. Bring to a boil and let boil another four or five minutes. Then add one-third cup chili sauce, one-half teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, and one-half cup cream. Stir gently, bring to boiling point, and serve on piece of freshly made toast. A soup plate is the ideal dish to serve a pan roast in.

Many years ago there was a famous oyster house in Philadelphia called Finelli's. Their specialty was oysters. I want you to try them prepared this way sometime. Here's how they are cooked. These oysters are pan fried with butter:

Philadelphia recipe for pan fried oysters.

Drain one dozen medium sized oysters and season them with salt and pepper. Prepare a light batter as follows: One-half cup of flour, one-fourth teaspoon of salt, one teaspoon of baking powder, one-half cup of milk, and one egg. Mix and sift the dry ingredients, add milk gradually, and egg which has been well beaten.

Now mix three-quarters cup of finely chopped crab meat and three-quarters cup of bread crums. Dip oysters one at a time in the batter and then roll them in the crab meat and crum mixture and then again in the batter, and once more in the crum mixture. In a large skillet melt two or three tablespoons of butter and carefully lay the oysters in the pan. Cook them on one side until nicely browned and then turn them over with a spatula to cook and brown on the other side.

A very nice sauce to serve with these pan fried oysters is tartare sauce. It's easy to make. To one-half cup of mayonnaise add one teaspoon each of finely chopped green peppers, pimientos, sweet pickles, and onions. Mix well, and there you have a sauce which goes nicely with most any fried shell fish or fried fish.

I have another tasty oyster dish that we did in Rector's and that made a big hit. It is called creamed oysters. Here are the ingredients, and then I will give you the directions how to cook them:

2 small white onions, minced
½ cup of chopped mushrooms
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup cream
½ teaspoon salt
Few grains of cayenne pepper
1 dozen medium sized oysters
1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley
2 tablespoons sherry

Cook the onions and mushrooms a few minutes in butter or in the fat, which you prefer. Sprinkle in the flour and mix well. Add the cream and cook until it comes to a boil, stirring constantly. Now add the sherry, salt, and cayenne pepper. In another sauce pan cook the oysters in their own liquor. Do not overcook them. When you notice the edges curl up and the body part puff up, you will know they are cooked. Now add the oysters to the sauce, also the parsley. Stir well and serve in patty shells with an overflowing amount of sauce.

Rector tells how to cook crabmeat.

It took me a long time to become friendly with canned crabmeat. In my travels around the country I was more than surprised to see it served in so many fine restaurants and in well managed homes, too. Last evening I opened a can and fixed up one of those hurry up affairs when unexpected guests arrived. It's a good idea to have a few cans of crabmeat in the pantry. Well, this is what I did:

First I removed the bones—that's easy to do—and then I cut it in medium sized pieces to make a cupful. Then I opened a can of condensed mushroom soup which I heated, but I did not dilute it. To the hot soup I added the crabmeat. I again opened a can of, this time it was pimientos. I was thinking, when I opened these cans, that you will regard me as one who lives from "can to mouth."

I chopped finely a tablespoon of pimientos and a tablespoon of green peppers; the latter I parboiled for a few minutes and added them to the crabmeat mixture and stirred well. A light pinch of cayenne pepper and one-half teaspoon of salt sufficed for the seasoning. When the mixture was thoroughly heated I added two tablespoons of dry sherry and stirred.

In using this recipe have prepared on the side a half dozen round pieces of toast about four inches in diameter. Spread the crabmeat mixture neatly on the toast, sprinkle with bread crums, dot with butter, and brown in the oven or under the broiler flame. And there you have canope of crabmeat a la Rector.

Keeping Spices Ready Mixed in Shaker Is Handy

MIX your spices to save time in cooking. Add four tablespoonsful of cinnamon to two tablespoonsful each of cloves, nutmeg, ginger, and mace Place them in a large salt shaker and keep it handy.

Dip canned pear halves into mayonnaise, then broil them until they are light brown. Serve them with roasts, chops, fish or fowl.

Best Remedy for Coughs is Easily Mixed at Home

Needs No Cooking. Big Saving.

To get the quickest relief from coughs due to colds, mix your own remedy at home. Once tried, you'll never use any other kind of cough medicine, and it's so simple and easy.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. A child could do it. No cooking needed.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a concentrated compound of Norway Pine, famous for its prompt action on throat and bronchial membranes.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make a full pint of really better medicine than you could buy ready-made for four times the money. It never spoils, and children love its pleasant taste.

And for quick, blessed relief, it has no equal. You can feel it penetrating the air passages in a way that means business. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the inflamed membranes, and eases the soreness. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.

Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

Budget Kitchen Color Scheme Adds Sparkle

Do you want help when choosing a color scheme for your home? Dozens of practical, helpful suggestions are given in the inexpensive booklet, "Color Magic in Your Rooms," by Claire Winslow, Tribune stylist in interior decorating. By Claire Winslow.

You can create a sparkling, lovely kitchen if you follow a color scheme and equipment we saw in a budget house the other day. The theme was coral, black, white and gray.

On the walls was a simple, good looking plaid paper in these tones. The linoleum floor was in a mottled effect, all the colors appearing in it in flecks. And in the center, marking off a large square in a wavy, ribbon line was an inch wide strip of plain coral.

The work top surfaces on cabinets and tables were plain black linoleum and the edges were concealed under bands of stainless steel. All the utility cabinets, streamlined in style, were in gleaming white, as were the stunning electric stove and the electric refrigerator.

• • •

There was a window above the sink and it was charmingly hung in thin white marquisette curtains having a design of little flower pots in black. Black stitching ornamented the sides and bottom hems.

Other touches of color were furnished by a gay array of vari-toned pottery mixing bowls and plates on the china cupboard shelves, and by a huge, painted wooden salad bowl near the sink.

At the right of the sink, which was of stainless steel, was a cabinet containing an electric dish washer. These inventions are marvels and make for complete sanitation, as streams of boiling hot water [hotter than you'd ever use when doing the dishes by hand] are forced over the dishes.

• • •

Nearby was another modern miracle-worker, a white enamel electric mixer that beats, whips and stirs for you, saving much time and elbow-grease. And just beyond it stood a clever little column-like affair that grinds your coffee for you. You just turn the switch; it does the work.

A set of decorative cannisters and bread box in white and coral completed this up to the minute kitchen.

Keep Soap Under the Fingernails to Protect Them

Pack soap and cold cream under the finger nails when doing housework. It will protect the nails from stains.

Your refrigerator will work better and cost you less to maintain if you don't pack it so full that cold air cannot circulate around the various containers. As for foods, keep them covered, and fill ice traps to within a fourth of an inch of top. Keep inside of refrigerator sweet and clean with a mild solution of soda and water or borax and water and if you spill anything wipe it up immediately. If the exterior is of lacker a good waxing every five or six months will keep up its finish beautifully.

Broom holders, small hooks, and screws help to keep the household cleaning equipment in good working order. Hang up brooms, mops, dusters, and cleaning brushes by attaching screws to the handle.

It's a Help to Me, Says—

Mrs. B. D. of Chicago: The biggest help I ever had has come through a tool room I gave my husband as a present last Christmas. Now there's no little job around the house he won't do for me and, better still, I never have to go hunting all over the place to find his tools for him.

A. H. of Rockford: To keep on hand a solution of 60 grains of oxalic acid and 2 ounces of rose water to remove housework stains from my nails and fingers.

Marjorie M. of Chicago: I've discovered that if I mix cornmeal with paint before applying it I can get a nice imitation of a sanded finish on a wall. I did this to our den last fall, first sifting out the finer particles and using only the coarser grains of the meal.

• • •

Mrs. K. W. of Cicero: To do away with lime deposits in my tea kettle from hard water I boil a weak solution of vinegar. This softens the deposits and speeds up heating the water.

• • •

Helen S. A. of Chicago: I find that plain camphor is the best little stain remover. I keep it on hand in my laundry and use it to remove stains from all sorts of washable garments, rubbing it on the stain before I put the garment into water.

Nora K. of Mason City: Here's a tip for Margaret J. of Milwaukee, who asked in "Why Won't They" for some one to market portable scissors' sharpeners. When my scissors get dull I draw them back and forth across the neck of an old glass bottle. Cutting sandpaper will do the trick, too, if you happen to have sandpaper handy.

Marriage Gains Place as Career for Alumnae

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J.—Marriage appears to be of new importance as a career for young graduates in an unprecedented situation reported by the personnel bureau of New Jersey College for Women. Through an occupational survey of last year's graduates the bureau found that of the 150 alumnae who answered a questionnaire not one of the ten who are married holds a job. This is the first instance recorded by the bureau when no married member of the preceding graduating class has been employed.

By Helen Bartlett.

After the article last week on table setting the natural followup is a similar discussion of table service. One is as important to a charming dinner as the other. Since the service of a formal dinner is less common and of much less general interest, we will confine the column to the routine of informal dinner parties.

Since we set the table last week we'll go on from there. And to facilitate matter, let's plan an imaginery menu. A dinner of ordinary proportions might consist of a cream soup with crackers or Melba toast, broiled lamb chops, parsley potatoes, fresh green peas in a carrot mold, lettuce and orange salad with cheese straws, dessert and coffee.

The guests, when they are seated, will find that the water glasses have been filled, the butter squares placed, the candles lighted, and the service plates placed at each cover. The soup then may be served [when the first course is soup it always is served after the guests are seated, in order that it may be piping hot—a fruit cocktail first course, for instance, may be placed at each cover beforehand]. The maid or the hostess will carry in two soup cups at a time, placing the one in the left hand from the left of the individual, then transferring the cup in the right hand to the left hand and placing it in the same way, before the next guest seated to the right.

If the hostess does the serving herself she serves first the individual sitting at her right and then each one consecutively to the right. If a maid serves, the hostess is served first, then each one in order to the right. The crackers or Melba toast should be passed to the hostess or the person on her right, as the case may be, with the suggestion that she help herself and pass them on around the table.

At the completion of that course the plate of crackers is first removed, then, beginning again with the hostess or the person on her right, the soup cup and service plate on which it rests are removed with the left hand from the left, changed to the right hand, and the soup service of the next person to the right is removed with the left hand. These two services are taken to the kitchen at one time.

For the main course the hot dinner plates are placed, with the left hand from the left, directly in front of the host, and serving spoons are placed at his right. The lamb chop platter is placed with the serving silver in front of the host, with the serving dish containing the potato balls at either his right or left. The host serves the meat and potatoes. He also may serve the vegetable at this same time, or, if there is a maid to assist, the vegetable may be offered to each individual after all the dinner plates have been served and placed. The first filled plate is either passed along by the guests to the hostess or is placed in front of the hostess by the maid. The second plate goes to the person seated at the hostess' right. And so on. The host serves himself last.

Relishes, butter, and rolls should be passed just as the crackers were passed.

At the end of the meat course the hostess or maid removes serving dishes, serving silver, relishes; then removes dinner plates from the left with the left hand, just as the soup cups were removed. She serves salads just as the soup was served, or places a filled salad bowl and plates in front of the host to be served and passed as in the meat course. The cheese straws are served just as the crackers accompanying the soup. The salad course is removed as previous courses, and then the salt and peppers and unused silver.

The dessert, whatever it may be, is arranged on the dessert plates with whatever silver is required on each plate, and is served just as the first course. If coffee is poured in the kitchen it, too, is served in the same way, with the coffee spoon on the saucer. The only exception here is that coffee is served from the right. The coffee may, of course, be poured by the hostess at the table. In that case the tray with coffee cups, saucers and spoons, and cream and sugar is placed before the hostess from the left. The hostess pours and serves coffee to the person at her right, and so on around the table, adding cream and sugar according to the individuals' taste.

By Clotilde.

Designed especially to slenderize, these two dresses are easy for the home dressmaker to create. The lines are simple, but subtly styled to make the most of the best features of your figure.

At the left is No. 3401, available in sizes up to 50. It has a softly draped bodice, a simple V neckline, and a plain skirt. The infinite chic of this frock is found in its simplicity. It's an ideal model to use as a "basic" dress, varying accessories according to the time of day and one's mood. If you wish, fashion the frock with a rever collar and shorter sleeves, as shown in the little sketch at the lower left. Plain shades and prints make up equally well.

The dress at the right has much the same type of charm. Shirring plays an important rôle, originating in the shoulder seams and side seams. The sleeves are cut dolman fashion. The V neckline has a narrow vestee and a clip, both of which may be varied from time to time. No belt is needed, since the shirring creates a beautiful waistline. Indeed, the addition of a sash would break the lovely long line from shoulder to hem. The dress is paneled with a seam down the center front and another down the back. Prints make up beautifully in this simple model, but soft pastels in crêpe are lovely for spring, too.

Style No. 3401 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 4¼ yards of 39 inch material.

Style No. 3154 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inch bust measurement. Size 36 requires 4½ yards of 39 inch material, with one-quarter yard of 39 inch contrasting for vestee.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

The Kitchen Range Should Be Treated Right to Serve Best

We all have numerous efficient maids-of-all-work around our homes and apartments, but if we want them to stand by us and deliver to us the best they have in them we have to treat them right! Take the kitchen range. We have no helper that helps us more. Yet we must—

Watch out that we don't set down heavy utensils with a rough hand or we will chip the enamel. Guard that same enamel zealously, clean it only when it is cold, and then with mild soap and water, for porcelain enamel after all is glass!

Take a small wire, not a toothpick that will sliver, when we clean clogged burners in gas ranges, and use a soft brush, not a harsh fork, when we clean the open units of electric ranges. Keep our oven immaculately clean, so that spattered foods won't burn into its surface.

And last but not least, form the habit of turning the heat low after a dish has started to boil. Once we have formed this habit we'll eliminate such things as "boil-overs."

IS YOUR skin clear, smooth and young looking? It SHOULD be and it CAN be. Let Mercolized Wax Cream show you how. Just apply Mercolized Wax like cold cream nightly before retiring. Eagerly and deftly Mercolized Wax Cream goes about its task of flaking off the superficially discolored outer layer of skin, revealing the young, fresh looking underskin. It really helps the skin to beautify itself. Your skin emerges from a series of Mercolized Wax applications looking more like its radiant, natural beautiful self than it has looked in many a day. Start tonight to bring out the hidden beauty of your skin with Mercolized Wax Cream.

Use Saxolite Astringent Daily

War Veteran Asks Help to Learn a Trade

By Sally Joy Brown.

Illness is one form of disaster which may descend suddenly and break the best of us. A life's savings and a carefully planned future can be swept swiftly away when strength and vitality suddenly disappear. If and when health returns, life must be started anew, often with an added burden of accumulated debts.

The writer of the following letter must find a new profession and start from the beginning, and although it seems very difficult, perhaps some reader can help him.

"Dear Miss Brown: I am wondering if, through your kind offices, I might appeal to some one in the city of Chicago who might help me in my plight. I'm an ex-service man who receives neither compensation nor a pension, with which situation I have no quarrel, but for the last two years illness has wrecked me financially and caused me to seek a new vocation in order to support my family.

"My physician believes that I could do radio repair work, and because I have no funds to purchase a course, I thought that perhaps, through your column, you could locate some person who has completed one and would be glad to pass the books on to me. I would be glad to pay the postage on them.

"This may not seem a very appealing missive, but the situation is nonetheless serious, because I am at present 45 years old and must find some way out for my family.—H. E.

Training in many trades is difficult to locate in small towns. Perhaps this man con reëducate himself with the assistance of a reader.

An instructor in physical education in one of the south side parks has asked for assistance for some of his young pupils. Nearly all healthy youngsters enjoy "gym" classes, but many of them cannot take full advantage of the activities offered because they lack tennis shoes and are unable to participate in many games only in stocking feet. They come of poor families and have no opportunity of obtaining shoes unless readers can provide them. If you have gym shoes which your own youngsters have outgrown, won't you let me know about them so that these children may have them? Almost any size can be used, since the children range in age from 4 to 16. If the shoes cannot be mailed or delivered, the instructor will be glad to call for them.

From a caseworker: "We have an interesting boy, 13, who longs to study violin, but he has no instrument and his parents are unable to buy one. Can you, through your column, find one for him? He is one of two children. The father is a seasonal farm laborer, and during periods of unemployment the mother helps to support the family. The boy is ambitious and studious, and free instruction could be arranged for him, if only he had an instrument. He has no opportunity of obtaining one except through the kindness of a reader.—Mrs. S."

The worker will arrange to call for the violin if some one has a discarded one.

The Soviet Claims First Woman Dirigible Pilot

The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning value. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Postage Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

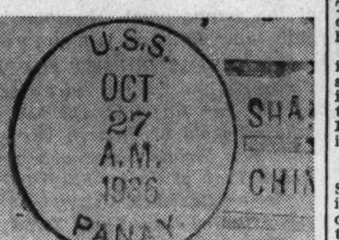
This cover from Cameroun, the French section of the mandated territory of the German protectorate known as Kamerun before the world war, shows the stamps issued in connection with the Paris International exposition of 1937. It is printed through the courtesy of Dr. S. C. Stanton of Hinsdale.

Frequent letters to this department indicate that some collectors need an optimistic forecast on the future of the hobby in order to maintain their interest at full throttle. And quaintly enough such a forecast must indicate that there will be a profit in dollars and cents or the reader does not think it is an optimistic outlook which he faces.

It is not sufficient for the individual collector to state that the hobby is receiving new recruits in much greater numbers than it is losing them, and that each new devotee gains much in knowledge, or recreation, or peace of mind while he is fiddling with his stamps. Hobbies were invented by people who were too smart to spend their idle time twiddling their thumbs, or worrying over what might turn up on the morrow, and not as a money making scheme as may be believed by some.

There are recreational hobbies, handicraft hobbies, collecting hobbies, and many others which people turn to for relaxation without asking that the hobby be profitable or even self-supporting. Does an angler for trout ever expect to pay for tackle and trips to the secret pool, to say nothing of showing a profit? Of course not, nor do the followers of any hobby excepting only stamp collecting. Here, there are many who expect to buy stamps at face value this year and make a handsome profit next year. When they have trouble marketing their stamps at cost they believe that the hobby is on the toboggan.



John Goossens of Chicago has furnished this example of the postmark used aboard the U. S. S. Panay on Navy day, Oct. 27, 1936. The Panay recently was sunk in Chinese waters by Japanese bombing planes.

Such a period of recession in prices is under way at the moment in the case of very recent issues and older stamps of average condition. These periods come at intervals and are usually the result of some great stamp boom such as was engendered in the United States by the Columbian issue of 1893. The letdown after that boom allowed some stamp issues such as the Trans-Mississippi, Pan-American, and Louisiana Purchase sets, to pass into history with little speculation, with the result that they are difficult to obtain today.

The present lull is the result of several factors, such as the British Silver Jubilee and Coronation issues and probably most of all of the intensive advertising of the philatelic agency at Washington through the Washington Bicentennial, National Parks, Farley Favors, Tipex sheets, and others of like character.

Withdrawal of the money necessary to buy all of these issues in quantity, in the hope of future profit, has cramped the style of the speculative collector in that every one has stamps for sale, but not the wherewithal to buy, and forced sales are sometimes made below the intrinsic, that is the face value, of the stamps. Regular collectors maintain their placid course, buying only for their collection, and are not affected by the waves of inflation and recession in the hobby. Often they are able to fill hard spaces at a fraction of the usual price for they have not invested everything in one issue in the hope of quick profit.

When the speculators get out of the stamp market no one will lay aside sufficient stamps to supply the future collectors, whose demands will advance prices to such an extent that speculators will again flourish. Thus and forever.

Stamp Notes.

The two French stamps picturing the Winged Victory of Samothrace, which originally were sold only in postmarked condition on postcards at the Louvre in Paris, have now been made available in mint state. These latter also are sold at the Louvre only at 2.25 francs a set, the price which had been charged for the stamps and cards.

In response to numerous requests regarding the number of 25 cent blue trans-Pacific stamps which have been issued, this stamp is still on sale at the philatelic agency of the postoffice department at Washington, D. C., and therefore the information desired is not available.

The fifty subject plates of certain United States stamps which were mentioned recently in this column were prepared by the bureau of printing and engraving without the sanction of the postoffice department. These were to be used in printing stamps for framed government displays such as are furnished almost every large stamp exhibition. Since these are flat plates and the stamps which they purport to be are generally rotary press products, it is difficult to tell in what classification they will fall. They would not be plate proofs, but might be called a special printing from reprint plate. At present the plates are locked in a vault until a decision is reached regarding their ultimate disposition. It is the opinion of many collectors that these hybrids should be destroyed before some of the printings get into the hands of the public.

Adolf Gunesch, 159 North State street, Chicago, has published a new bureau print price list. This quotes actual market prices being asked for bureau print precancel stamps in singles, pairs and blocks. It is understood that Mr. Gunesch will furnish copies of this list to all serious collectors.

Weston Satterly, USCS, RCD 118, 1831 50th street, Brooklyn, N. Y., will sponsor a cachet to commemorate the battle of the Monitor and the Merrimac. Covers will be postmarked on board a United States naval vessel. Send self-addressed and stamped, standard 6¾ size envelopes. There is no forwarding fee.

Club Notes.

Carter Glass Jr., president of the American Philatelic society; James Waldo Fawcett, president of the Washington Philatelic society and philatelic editor of the Sunday Star; Herbert L. Schatz, president of the Associated Stamp Clubs of Southeastern Pennsylvania, and Harry M. Konwiser, philatelic writer of New York, will act as judges at ATEX, the national stamp exhibition at the Colton Manor hotel, Atlantic City, N. J., April 1, 2, and 3. Those desiring to show stamps should communicate with Bela Scholtz, 40 Newton avenue, Atlantic City, N. J.

A new national philatelic society underwent the first stage of its organization on Jan. 4, when a group of collectors met in Tacoma, Wash., adopted a constitution and selected American Stamp association as the society's name. The association will maintain sales and exchange departments with Frank M. Kellogg in charge of the former and H. S. Storrs of this city, the latter. Other sections will include precancels, postmarks, first day covers, plate blocks, etc. Two new features are included in the services which it is hoped may be made available to collectors. These are insurance on collections at nominal cost and loans or advances on stamps entered in the sales division. Charles E. Winegar, 816 S. Steele street, Tacoma, Wash., is the secretary.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

Part 7 Music Hollywood

JANUARY 30, 1938.

This handsome twosome are Alice Faye and Tyrone Power. They play the love interest in the screen spectacle, "In Old Chicago." It's unreeling at the Apollo theater.

Noel Coward's Cycle of Plays Opens Tonight

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

A COURSE of instruction for playgoers about Noel Coward's collection of one act plays and lyric sketches is in order. This unusual exhibition of drama in various forms, bearing the inclusive title, "Tonight at 8:30," will begin a two weeks' engagement in the Harris theater tonight at 8:30, and many prospective customers may feel in need of expert advice on the subject.

There are nine of these opuscules, and they are acted in three series; therefore one must spend three nights at the Harris if he wishes to keep up with the procession. The schedule of performances for this week is: First series, tonight and Monday; second series, Tuesday and Wednesday; third series, Thursday; "request bill" (two items from the first series, one from the third), Friday; first series, Saturday.

For the second week: Third series, Sunday; second series, Monday and Tuesday; third series, Wednesday; first series, Thursday; musical sketches from first, second, and third series, Friday; first series, Saturday.

All this is quite complicated, but theater goers seemed to be able to solve the problem to their satisfaction when the programs were given in the east last season, with another cast. The younger generation appears to take pride in keeping thoroughly informed about the works of Mr. Coward; this educative process is a fundamental qualification for the thirty-second degree of "sophistication."

• • •

The character and content of the nine plays call for preliminary explanation. They may be cataloged briefly, and without critical comment, as follows:

"Family Album" (first series): A comedy of Victorian manners and music. A family assembles after a funeral to talk reverently of the deceased. Mellowed by a few bottles of Madeira, they sing a little, dance a few steps, and speak their minds freely about the old reprobate who was their father.

"Fumed Oak" (first series): Mr. Coward calls it an unpleasant comedy, because its satire is bitter. It tells the story of a lower middle class family in a cheap cockney home, and contains a child to end all sentimentality about children. It is one of the most popular items in the cycle.

"Hands Across the Sea" (first series): An episode of satire placed in a London drawing room. The hostess cannot recall the names of some of her guests. Lady Maureen and her husband are targets for many shafts of biting wit.

"Red Peppers" (second series): This musical skit deals with a team of third rate vaudeville comedians on a merry rampage. A provincial theater is the scene.

"Ways and Means" (second series): This is a light farce with a bedroom trend. It deals with a penniless husband and wife who are house guests in an establishment on the French Riviera. Their chauffeur fills their empty purses by turning burglar.

• • •

"The Astonished Heart" (second series): Mr. Coward thinks that this is the best piece in the collection. It deals with a psychoanalyst who gets himself into a mental muddle by falling in love with his wife's best friend and commits suicide.

"We Were Dancing" (third series): An illustration of Mr. Coward's vein of light comedy in high life. The scene is the veranda of an English club, somewhere in the colonies. Louise Charteris falls in love during a romantic waltz, while her patient husband waits blandly until the dawn restores her to common sense.

"Still Life" (third series): The scene is a refreshment room in a small railway station. A man and woman, both married but not to each other, have been making this place the rendezvous for their future romance. The episode depicts their last meeting, a background of cockney humor.

Color Cartoon Called Disney's Grandest Film

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," the seven reel screen feature in which that genius of the animated cartoon, Walt Disney, has combined the Grimm brothers' fairy tale with a silly symphony technique, literally has this sprawling metropolis by the ears. An hour ago I passed the Radio City Music hall and there, before my eyes, was a line of adults and children three blocks long, marching four abreast along a roped-off alley guarded by police, waiting their turn to try getting into a theater that seats approximately 6,000 persons, and was already filled. This was Saturday noon.

The same thing has been happening all week. Here would seem to be an answer to the Rockefeller prayer that some attraction should be found that would save the Center theater, smaller sister of the Music hall, and keep it open profitably long enough to pay its tax assessments.

The reception of "Snow White" by the picture reviewers has been rapturous. A little too rapturous for the good of the picture, I fear, inasmuch as the expectations of prospective patrons has been so keenly whetted, some measure of disappointment is almost certain to follow. Even I, accustomed as I am to such adventures, found myself rather on the negative side after sitting through "Snow White." There are, incidentally, only two sides—positive and negative. No one has so far been heard to say that "Snow White" is pretty good. It is either the sensation of the century or it is just a refined and expanded silly symphony.

Well, there should be an in-between view. "Snow White" is the grandest show that has ever come from the Disney studios. But its acceptance as entertainment must certainly be affected by your individual reaction to cartoon comedy and romance, to fairy tales and gnomes, to the weird and the imaginative, to the comically distorted and the traditionally sentimental in screen fare.

I sat bug-eyed with wonder but emotionally quite disturbingly calm. Wouldn't have missed it for the world, but only want to see parts of it again. Some way physical distortion, even in cartoons, is never exactly pleasant to me, and two reels of "wham!" comedy satisfy me completely. Just another old softie, probably.

Billy Rose Show Devoid of Story.

Billy Rose thought to steal a march on his competitors by staging what he calls a "book show" in the reopened French Casino, now known as Billy Rose's Casa Manana, after his last season's frolic in Fort Worth. A "book show" is presumed to tell a story in musical comedy fashion; to have a hero and a heroine, a plot and at least a thread of interest. The Rose show is called "Let's Play Fair," and it has about as much story as could be engraved on the head of a pin with a steam drill.

However, it does have a beginning of sorts when Oscar Shaw is introduced as Grover Whalen, mustache and gardenia rampant, and Whalen starts Dr. Rockwell, the spine expert, on a world-wide search for the prettiest girls and the most astounding novelties that may be shown at the New York World's Fair in 1939.

The doctor, incidentally, tries to sell Mr. Whalen fifteen minutes of Sally Rand and her floating balloon. The lights are turned down and Sally obliges with the familiar traipsing about in the nude. It is not an encouraging start for the fair, because of an increase in Sally's weight.

Immediately following Miss Rand is another slim young princess with such perfect confidence and joy in the lines the gods have given her that she dispenses with bubbles, balloons, fans, and all such deceiving accessories, modernizing the recently widely publicized strip-tease performances by confining practically to the strip. Her name is Hinda Wassau and I suspect she may be seen at the fair unless Mr. Whalen sticks to his present determination to bar all such exhibits.

"Let's Play Fair," continues from 10:30 till 2, or thereabouts, and includes numerous showy ensemble numbers, staged by John Murray and Erson; an animal act in which a courageous young man named Proske irritates a half dozen Bengal tigers in a cage, and there are intermittent songs about love.

New Comedy Called "All That Glitters."

"All That Glitters" is a new comedy written by John Baragwanath and Kenneth Simpson and produced by George Abbott. The play is about a practical joker.

Muggy Williams, one of café society's richer playboys, is hurt because Mrs. E. Mortimer Townsend, leader of society, snubs his fiancée. To be even he introduces Elena, a party girl from Spain, to Mrs. Townsend as a Spanish countess. Mrs. Townsend is fascinated by the countess and introduces her to the inner circle. But just as Muggy is to have his revenge, full and complete, Elena hooks herself a society husband by marrying one of Muggy's best friends.

Thus is the exposure blocked until Elena overplays her hand. Likewise her profession. Then there is nothing for her to do but elope with another playboy and Muggy is revenged after all. An oldish plot that is only partly saved by the smart Abbott production. Allyn Joslin, first of "Boy Meets Girl," is the Muggy, Arlene Francis the Elena.

The stage program at the Palace theater includes the following acts: Jane Withers, child screen star; Schichtl's Royal Wonderettes, a marionette exhibition; Harry Burns, Italian comedian; Maidie and Ray, rope twirling and acrobatic duo; Bryant Rains and Young, adagio and ballroom dancers, and the Sinclair Sisters, tap dancers.

Earl Hines, colored dance band director, appears with his orchestra at the State-Lake theater. A Negro stage show called "The Grand Terrace Revue," is also on the bill, with about fifty entertainers, including Ada Brown, Mae Diggs, Ida James, Billy Adams, Sonny and Sonny, and Maze and Morrison.

The Chicago theater's current stage program is a production serving as a prolog to the motion picture "The Buccaneer." A cast of forty singers and dancers appears on the deck of a pirate ship. The featured player is William Hall, baritone. Next Friday the Chicago will offer Herbie Kay and his orchestra.

Bell's "Hawaiian Follies," with a troupe of Kanaka entertainers, provides the stage entertainment at the Oriental theater this week. The hula dancers, guitarists, ukulele artists and singers contain the Honolulu City trio, Kani Loki, Princess Lehi, Neki La Maka, John Ka Hookona, Baby Joy, and the Waikiki Beach steel guitar band.

Ballet Russe

Col. W. De Basil, director of the De Basil Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, announces a number of new ballets for the seasons of 1938-'39 and 1939-'40. In view of the enthusiatstic support given the Ballet Russe by American audiences, he has determined to give encouragement to works of American origin. Ballets by three American composers, Paul Frederic Bowles, Aaron Copland, and Vladimir Dukelsky [known to musical comedy fans as Vernon Duke] have already been commissioned. Miguel Covarrubias has been engaged to make the decors for one new composition. Col. De Basil is dickering with still other American musicians, authors, and artists for additional material. Works from sources outside America to be seen here for the first time next season include "The House Party" [music by Poulenc and costumes and scenery by Marie Laurencin]; "The Triumph of Neptune" [music by Lord Berners]; Stravinsky's "Pulcinella," and Prokofieff's "Chout."

Noel Coward Takes a Ride on His Cycle

Etymological footnote: According to the best authorities on the history of English surnames, it should not be inferred that Mr. Coward's ancestors were timorous wretches who fled like wild goats at the sight of a Norman lance. One must imagine them, rather, faithfully driving home the kine in the Saxon twilight. The name is occupational and comes from "cowherd."

Was Victoria's Husband Illegitimate?

The suggestion in "Victoria Regina" that Albert of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, prince consort of England and great-grandfather of George VI., was an illegitimate son stimulates research into the subject. The author of the play has conjured up the ghost of an old whispering campaign against Albert, based or tittle-tattle of the petty courts in Germany.

Bernhard, Prince von Buelow [1849-1929], imperial chancellor of Germany from 1900 to 1907, has touched upon the matter in his "Memoirs" [volume I., page 77], as follows:

"Scandal, especially in England, has spread the story that the real father of Ernest, duke of Coburg, and his brother, later prince consort in England, was not Ernest I., duke of Coburg, but a Jew called Simon Meyer. This scandal was made the occasion of many more or less bad jokes turning on the double significance of 'S. M.' [Seiner Majestaet]. There is, of course, admittedly a good deal to be said which rather tells against Ernest I. being their father. But at the Thuringian court, as a Thuringian prince once told me, they were convinced that there could be no question of a Simon Meyer, but at the worst there might be a question of a Herr von Ziegesar, and 'his,' said the Thuringian prince, soothingly, 'is a very respectable noble family.' I have never found anything more futile than this sort of research into paternity. Not only because such nosing about is thoroughly disgusting, but because, whatever our parentage, we are all equal in the sight of God, all poor mortals with human imperfections and weaknesses."

"The duchess [of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha] was a sprightly and beautiful woman, with fair hair and blue eyes; Albert was very like her and was her declared favorite. But in his fifth year he was parted from her forever. The ducal court was not noted for the strictness of its morals; the duke was a man of gallantry, and it was rumored that the duchess followed her husband's example. There were scandals; one of the court chamberlains, a charming and cultivated man of Jewish extraction, was talked of; at last there was a separation, followed by a divorce. The duchess retired to Paris, and died unhappily in 1831. Her memory was always very dear to Albert."

Five Changes of Bill for Irish Players.

The repertory of the Abbey theater company of Dublin for its approaching engagement at the Grand Opera house, opening on Feb. 7, will contain "The Far-Off Hills" and "Drama at Inish," by Lennox Robinson; "The New Gossoon," by George Shiels; "Juno and the Paycock," by Sean O'Casey; "The Playboy of the Western World," by J. M. Synge, and "Silver Jubilee," by Cormac O'Daly. The latter play will be new to Chicago audiences. Synge's one act classic, "Riders to the Sea," will serve as curtain raiser for one of these full length plays.

Most of the players will be familiar to Chicago audiences from the Abbey company's recent visits. The complete roster will be: Arthur Shields, Eileen Crowe, F. J. McCormick, P. J. Carolan, Maureen Delaney, May Craig, Ria Mooney, Frolie Mulhern, Aiden O'Connor, Michael J. Dolan, Udolphus Wright, Joseph Linnane, and Austin Meldon.

The tour is under the direction of F. R. Higgins, the Irish poet, managing director of the Abbey theater. The American management, formerly in the hands of the Shuberts, has been taken over by Sam H. Grisman, a New York impresario.

Maurice Evans will give a special matinée performance of "King Richard II." in the Grand Opera house on Tuesday, March 1, for the benefit of the Actors' Fund of America. This will be the first benefit of the Actors' Fund to be given in Chicago for more than a year.

A photograph of an actress of the 1890s costumed for the rôle of Rosalind in "As You Like It" was published in the rotogravure section of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE several weeks ago, incorrectly identified as Adelaide Neilson. Since then a number of readers have called attention to the error and given the correct identification—Helena Modjeska. Apologies are herewith made for the mistake, which came about through a chain of circumstances that would have caused Sherlock Holmes himself to lapse from his customary infallibility.

Kassel's Band to Appear in Walnut Room

Art Kassel's orchestra will begin an engagement in the Walnut room of the Bismarck hotel on Tuesday, Feb. 9. This will be his first Chicago appearance in three years. During the last 36 weeks he has been presenting his dance music in the Cosmopolitan hotel, Denver. The engagement will be in the nature of a homecoming for Kassel, for he was reared in Chicago and has played here often.

Eddie Varzos' American Gypsy orchestra will end its long stay in the Walnut room tonight. Until Kassel's arrival the dance music will be supplied by Lou Storey's Royal Ambassadors, with Lois Knight as soloist. A new floor show cast, with Sloane and Young as ballroom dancers, will begin performances next Tuesday.

● Hal Kemp's orchestra will begin an engagement in the Gold Coast room of the Drake hotel next Friday night. His featured entertainers will be Maxine Gray, soprano; Bob Allen, baritone; Saxie Dowell, comedian and saxophonist; Eddie Kusby, trombonist, and the Telegraphic Trumpeteers. Herbie Kay's stay as dance band leader will continue until next Thursday. Judy Starr, singer, is now appearing in the floor show.

● Sterling Young's orchestra from the Pacific coast made its Chicago debut in the New Boulevard room of the Stevens hotel last Friday night. He offers several soloists, including Donna Lee, Vic Francone, and Gil Dagonais. Don Julian and Marjorie are the ballroom dancers, and Gene Mervy is the master of ceremonies. The Byton dancing girls, led by Eleanore Christian, have been held over.

● Orrin Tucker's orchestra continues in the Marine room of the Edgewater Beach hotel. Harriet Smith's ballet appears in southern costumes. Janice Porter, opera prima donna, sings on Thursdays and Saturdays.

● A new team of ballroom dancers, Stadler and Rose, has joined the "Hollywood Revue" in the College inn, where Charles Rogers is band leader and master of ceremonies.

● The Terrace Casino of the Morrison hotel will be the scene of a fashion revue on Jan. 31, Feb. 3, and Feb. 8. Fifty models will parade in new styles of women's apparel.

● Kay Kyser, orchestra leader at the Blackhawk, has added two numbers from "The Vagabond King" to the floor show program. Loyanne and Renard are the ballroom dancers. Several of the musicians appear as soloists.

● Shep Fields' orchestra will continue in the Empire room of the Palmer house, with the present floor show, until Feb. 23. Bernie Cummins' band will follow for an eight weeks' engagement. Veloz and Yolanda will be the succeeding attraction, and their run will be followed by Guy Lombardo's band.

5 Symphonic Programs in Store for City

By Cecil Smith.

There will be no derth of orchestral music in Chicago this week. No less than five symphonic programs within the space of the next sennight is the pleasant forecast this morning.

On Monday evening in the foyer of Orchestra hall, Hans Lange, associate conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, embarks upon a new project. Directing a chamber ensemble of sixteen players from the parent orchestra, he will offer a program of musical rarities drawn from the literature of the classical and modern periods.

Tomorrow night's program by the still unnamed chamber orchestra will be played before an invited audience of 300.

The initial program is as follows:

Symphony....................Henri Jean Rigel
Concerto for piano and strings........
..................Johann Christian Bach
"Maria Theresa" symphony............
.....................Franz Joseph Haydn
Sinfonietta................Alexander Tansman
Chamber Music No. 1........Paul Hindemith

Another of Mr. Lange's musical charges, the Civic orchestra, gives its first public concert of the season in Orchestra hall next Sunday afternoon, Feb. 6.

The Chicago Symphony orchestra's Thursday-Friday concerts this week are likewise to be given under Mr. Lange's direction. Joseph Vito, harpist of the orchestra for the last ten years, is soloist. The program contains no novelties, although Gustav Holst's jolly "St. Paul's Suite" has been heard hereabouts only at Ravinia.

The program:

"St. Paul's Suite" for string orchestra
.................................... Holst
Symphony No. 1, E minor...........Sibelius
Chorale and Variations for harp and orchestra ..........................Widor
[Joseph Vito]
Fantasia and Fugue in G minor........Bach
[Transcribed by Frederick Stock.]

The Chicago Business Men's orchestra, for sixteen years one of our most successful bands of musical amateurs, opens its season in Orchestra hall this afternoon.

Agnes Conover, gifted Chicago pianist, is today's soloist in the following program:

Prelude, Chorale, and Fugue......Bach-Abert
Symphony, D minor....................Franck
Concerto, A minor, for piano and orchestra ......................Schumann
[Agnes Conover.]
Waltz, "Tales from the Vienna Woods"
.................................... Strauss

The concluding concert in the series of three given in the Auditorium theater by the Woman's Symphony orchestra will take place Tuesday evening. Erno Rapee, conductor of the orchestra at Radio City Music hall, New York, will make his first Chicago appearance as guest conductor. Poldi Mildner, until recently a pianistic prodigy, now claiming attention as an adult artist, will return to Chicago after an absence of several seasons. The concert is scheduled for 8:15, instead of the former hour of 8:30.

Bulgarian Rhapsody, "Vardar"..Wladigeroff
Overture, "Leonore," No. 3........Beethoven
Symphony No. 5, E-flat major.......Sibelius
Prelude to "The Afternon of a Faun"
.................................. Debussy
Burleske, for piano and orchestra....Strauss
[Poldi Mildner.]
Waltzes, from "Der Rosenkavalier"..Strauss

Vitya Vronsky and Victor Gabin, duo-pianists, will appear today at the Auditorium theater in the Northwestern university series. These Russian born artists, man and wife, will play the following program:

Variations on a Theme by Haydn..Brahms
Sonata ..............................Mozart
Fantasy ........................Rachmaninoff
Three Epigraphes Antiques...........Debussy
Three Studies ..........................Babin
Polovtsian Dances, from "Prince Igor"
.................................. Borodin

Eadic Shapiro, violinist, winner of a $1,000 prize awarded by the National Federation of Music Clubs last April, will play her first Chicago recital in the Studebaker theater this afternoon:

Two Romances: F major; G major. Beethoven
Sonata, A major.........................Reger
Sonata, D minor ......................Brahms
Concerto, E minor ....................Conus
Three Spanish Dances ............Sarasate

Through the generosity of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge the University of Chicago and its department of music will present four concerts by the Pro Arte String quartet in Mandel hall, Feb. 5, 7, 9, and 11.

Edith Mason, lyric soprano, of the Chicago City and Metropolitan Opera companies, will appear in song recital at the Auditorium theater tomorrow evening. Proceeds of the concert will be given to the Little Company of Mary hospital in Beverly Hills. Her program lists arias by Arne, Handel, and Gounod, and songs by Debussy, Brahms, Marx, and American composers. Frederick Schauwecker, her accompanist, will play solos by Brahms and Sibelius.

Civilization's Fate Placed in Lap of Ethics

By the Rev. John Evans.

Problems as to the future fate of civilization lie in the domain of ethics rather than in the exhaustion of the world's natural resources, Kirtley Fletcher Mather, professor of geology at Harvard university, recently told the student body at Knox college. He also discounted the alarmists' prediction that diminishing raw material was endangering man's immediate tenancy of the earth.

Dr. Mather pointed out that every time geologists get together to report on the state of nonrenewable resources—petroleum, coal, iron, copper, and other minerals—they find that for every nonrenewable resource [the known supply of which is less than 100 times the annual withdrawal] there exists already a known substitute. He concludes that nothing is likely so to change the earth as to make it unsuitable as an abode for man for ages yet to come.

The real danger, Dr. Mather stated, lay not in the exhaustion of minerals but in the province of human relationship because mankind has not yet learned how to live in peace and harmony. He said:

"We are living in a crowded neighborhood, as it were, in an international apartment house, with partition walls so thin that they transmit moans and groans no less than songs. There are just two ways to organize mankind for wise distribution of the store of goods which is unevenly distributed throughout the world. One way is to regiment everybody and the other is the way of democracy. Man is safe so far as his physical environment is concerned, but unless we learn how to get on together man is doomed to oblivion."

A symposium on mathematics will be held Feb. 11 and 12 at the University of Notre Dame. The general theme will be "The Algebra of Geometry and Related Subjects." Marshall H. Stone, professor of mathematics at Harvard university, will open the proceedings with a lecture on "Boolean Algebra," followed by John von Neumann of Princeton on "Continuous Geometry," a modern branch of geometry recently applied to quantum mechanics in physics. The University of Chicago will be represented by A. Adrian Albert, an algebraist, and J. K. Senior, a chemist, who will jointly discuss the applications of algebra to chemistry. A feature of the conference will be a popular lecture on "The Duplicity of Logic," delivered by Edward V. Huntington of Harvard.

A series of open lectures this week marks the beginning of the second semester of the 23d year of the La Salle School of Accounting, 9 West Washington street. The lecture tomorrow night at 6:30 o'clock will be given on "Accounting, Training for Business Leadership," by P. D. Lipscomb, and that on Tuesday evening by M. Vogel on "What's New in Accounting."

All Hollywood Turns Out for Hotel Birthday

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal. — [Special.] — Few Hollywood parties have mingled old fashioned sentiment with the more sophisticated merrymaking of the modern movie social set to the extent of that which celebrated the thirty-fifth anniversary of the famous old tree hidden Hollywood hotel here a few nights ago.

The old stucco, mission style structure was built in 1903. This was when Hollywood was a separate municipality and the locality was to pass eight more serene years before the city's first motion picture studio—Al Christie's—was to invade its stretch of orange groves and barley fields.

The anniversary party was marked by the outpouring of an evening clad crowd of 400 couples from the films. About half of these were old timers from the days between 1911 and 1927, when the movies were speechless and were still Hollywood, instead of a world matter.

The rest of the throng was composed of fashionable and glittering elements of the picture colony today and provided the unusual sight of young beauties such as Ann Sheridan, and Lana Turner buzzing around the stars of twenty years ago and asking for autographs.

Such other current personages from the screen and radio as Rudy Vallee, Olivia De Havilland, Lola Lane, Dick Powell, Wayne Morris, Bob Hope, and Beverly Roberts hovered along the sidelines.

Carrie Jacobs Bond Among Oldtimers.

The turnout of actual Hollywood pioneers included George S. Dunlap, who was the last mayor of the separate city of Hollywood [1911], and Carrie Jacobs-Bond, who composed several of her famous songs while a guest in the old hotel, and who introduced her world favorite, "End of a Perfect Day," while engaged by the hotel as a singer who played her own piano accompaniment and sang her own compositions for board and room in 1904.

Neither refreshments nor music managed for some time to break up the little groups in which the modern movie actresses had surrounded their own old time favorites. Bill Farnum, Ruth Renick, Flora Finch, Betty Blythe, Tom Ricketts, Helen Ferguson, Herbert Rawlinson, Bill Desmond, and Charles Murray found themselves in the midst of buzzing groups.

A trim blonde woman in a gray crêpe chiffon gown entered the hotel. H. L. Hovey, night clerk for twenty-four years, thought he recognized her. "Register here, miss," he said, pointing to a special red lether hotel signature book which, with the autographs of the night's famous, was later auctioned off for the benefit of Ted Healy's needy young widow and baby. The woman in the gray dress signed, and Clerk Hovey remembered. He had been on the desk of the Hollywood hotel the night of Nov. 5, 1919, when Jean Acker, then an important star of the silent films, came in and told the hotel management she had been married on the old Metro studio grounds that afternoon to a young actor named Rudolph Valentino. The clerk showed Miss Acker the famed old black lether register—then the signature: "Mr. Valentino and wife, room 264." Hovey says a tear dropped on the hotel desk.

Betty Blythe, Flora Finch Relate Anecdotes.

Other eyes grew moist during the hotel broadcast. This was when Edmund Goulding brought forward Betty Blythe, Vera Lewis, Flora Finch, Herbert Bosworth, and William Farnum. They all told brief anecdotes of the old days and their appearance placed the entire evening on a sentimental pitch.

Bill Farnum and Flora Finch featured in the fun that followed the program. They entered a ring of dancers formed by the young folks and showed Ann Sheridan, John Farrow, Olivia De Havilland, Mabel Todd, and Lola Lane how to dance the "Big Apple." Lee Middleton, tall blonde comedienne daughter of the old acting favorite, Charles Middleton, called the dance instructions. Wayne Morris and Priscilla Lane, Marie Wilson and Director Nick Grinde, Humphrey Bogart and Maye Methot danced variations of Miss Middleton's instructions.

Jim Cagney walked up the steps toward the front door. At the doorway he dropped back, permitting his brother and manager, Bill Cagney, to precede him. It was the first formal evening party in Hollywood history that Cagney had ever attended. "My sister-in-law wanted to attend a big party," Jim explained bashfully. Mrs. Bill Cagney is Boots Mallory professionally. She was dancing the "Big Apple" a little while later.

Betty Blythe caused a minor commotion in the hotel ballroom. As it subsided we learned that the famous exotic star had been pleading with attendants to set her table exactly under one of the large gold stars painted on the high ceiling of the room. Lettered in black over that gold star was the name "Betty Blythe." All the screen stars of twenty years ago were accustomed to dine in the Hollywood hotel. Every star had a favorite dining table which was marked by the gold star directly overhead.

Women Musicians.

Organized Women Musicians, an inner association of the Chicago Federation of Musicians, will hold a special meeting at 7:30 o'clock Thursday evening to induct members of the board who were not installed at the recent general installation. There will be a special musical program by members of the organization, of which Adela De Mars, 7926 Eberhart avenue, is president.

Good Morning!

Though carefully handled, this production from the pen of Jacques ["Tovarich"] Deval deviates sharply from the requirements of the American production code, which eschews the exploitation of subjects touching on sex perversion and underdressed femininity.

The world is full of dreamers. Most of the picture's action occurs in a Parisian girls' club, a hostelry endowed by a wealthy French woman whose dream had been to establish a manproof hostelry in the heart of the French capital. . . . Here, dreamed the dreamer, girls alone in Paris might find refuge from the pursuing and always evil intentioned male.

But, so the picture reveals, the "Club de Femmes" is a sinistery instead of a sanctuary. An evil, sweet faced telephone operator keeps a certain Maurice—procurer—informed as to attractive arrivals. . . . Greta, from Copenhagen, and Juliette, from I don't remember where, are his victims. . . .

Then there is Claire, who smuggles her young lover, dressed as a country cousin, into the club and ultimately becomes a mother. . . . And, lone and watchful, is Alice, who becomes infatuated with Juliette — and murders the telephone operator. . . .

It's a strange picture, stressing the stories of Claire and Alice, but bringing out in sharp relief incidental histories and characterizations.

In understanding and pitiful contact with all the girls is the club's woman physician, Dr. Aubry. And Valentine Tessier gives a remarkably fine portrayal of this quiet, keen, humorous, and sophisticated young woman who sees all, hears all, says little, and makes what she does say count.

Eve Francis is excellent as the good, sentimental, obtuse manager of the club. When somebody isn't pulling the wool over madame's eyes she's pulling it over her own. . . . Lovely little Danielle Darrieux—she had the lead in "Mayerling" — is an adorable Claire. . . . Else Argal [Mme. Deval] is arresting as the unhappy Alice. . . . Betty Stockfield is a believable Greta. The players all have a sure, deft way about them. . . . [Note: Only one male in the cast—the smuggled lover. And he wears dresses.]

Rosemary Bellamy-Pryce's Vicar Father Arrives and Refuses to Reveal How He Learned of Mystery Attack

THE STORY TO DATE

● A shot fired through the window of their London home barely misses Rosemary Bellamy-Pryce and her aunt, affectionately called Boggie. A nephew of Tommy Rostetter, a journalist, persuades him to investigate. Calling to question Rosemary's aunt about possible enemies, they find her bound and unconscious from a blow. Her assailant, she says, was small and shabby and wore black gloves. Tommy sees Boggie grow furious at finding her manuscript case has been searched and suspects her of knowing more than she tells. Rosemary tells Tommy that her uncle, Gavin Bellamy-Pryce, always wears black gloves. Boggie tells Tommy that Gavin would benefit by the death of herself, Rosemary, or Rosemary's vicar father. Gavin was a steerage passenger on a boat returning from India when Boggie's husband died of heart failure. Captain Argus, now in London, was also on the boat.

INSTALMENT IV.

(Copyright: 1938: By Alice Ormond Campbell.)

"No, you needn't say it," she whispered in despair. "It was Uncle Gav. O, how utterly awful!"

"She still insists she doesn't know," he explained, with a guarded glance at her companion. "Though personally I think there's little doubt as to who it was. I've got her consent to speak openly to the inspector, who is meeting me directly after lunch. It seems the only thing to do."

She had grasped the reason for his reticence. With a jerk of the head in Argus' direction she muttered, "O, he knows. Boggie's told him," and silently listened while Tommy supplied further details of his conversation. She glanced at him with a swift intake of breath when he mentioned the money part of it, but made no comment. There fell a strained silence, during which Tommy cogitated on the best means of getting rid of the third member of the party.

"Well," she said fatalistically, "there seems nothing for it but to just wait and see. I'll have to rush away now. Rank's waiting for me."

Tommy watched her lithe figure till a bank of flowering rhododendrons hid it from sight. Argus, not looking around, stood scowling down at the hot gravel. Presently he blurted out that it was a thundering good thing some one was at last making a move.

Tommy looked at him curiously.

"I'm going to Piccadilly," he said. "Can I offer you a lift?"

"Thanks," returned the Australian carelessly, "I'm heading that way myself, as it happens. Comic cut of a car you've got," he remarked. "It seems to go, doesn't it?"

"After a fashion. By the way, you're settling in London, are you?"

"Don't know," grunted Argus. "It's blasted hard to land jobs. So it is everywhere. I picked the wrong time to get de-mobbed."

"What sort of work is your choice?" asked Tommy, strongly suspecting that the ex-captain would be apt to find any routine tedious.

"Choice! That's a good one." The Australian gave a barking laugh. "My old governor," he continued, "wanted to take me on at his show. Building contractor he was, out in Sydney, but like a fool I shinned out. When I landed back the governor was gone, and so was the business. There was a small spot of cash. I tried hydraulic mining, selling cars. O, what you like. It was no good, the slump was always there before me."

He drew on the pipe he had lighted, and stole a sidelong glance.

"Well," he challenged, "and what's your notion about these affairs?"

"I rather wanted to ask you that same question," answered Tommy.

• • •

"On the boat, you mean?"

"That's as may be." Argus paused, eyes to the front, then demanded, "Just what has a certain party been telling you?"

"Only enough to rouse my curiosity about Judge Bellamy-Pryce's death. I wanted to inquire where you were at the time it happened. Can you recall?"

"Now, what the hell's that got to do with it?" blazed the captain.

"I was merely wondering if you or any one else was near enough to the judge's cabin to have overheard voices coming from it."

"O, so that's your idea!" the Australian grumbled scornfully. "Not so damned original, either. Well, then, I was nowhere about. In the bar, or on deck—according to when the seizure took him—which, of course, nobody knows. If he had a visitor, he wasn't able to say so. You may be sure it was gone into thoroughly, but nothing came of it. It's too late now, that's a dead cert."

"On account of the sea burial?" suggested Tommy blandly.

"Sea burial? What the hell! That's not the ticket. Don't you go running off with the idea that there was anything wrong about the death itself." As though realizing his vehemence was uncalled for, Argus took a quieter note. "What I mean is, it was a straight case of heart. The ship's doctor would have told me if there'd been any doubt. He and I were great pals. I had it from him the judge was unlikely to last the journey. He said he'd never seen a worse heart."

"Even a mild shock, then, would have done for it?"

"If he had a shock. We can't prove it now."

Struck by the tone, Tommy asked whether it was as impossible as Mrs. Bellamy-Pryce supposed for a steerage passenger to get to the upper decks after nightfall.

"So they'll tell you. I happen to know otherwise." The captain grinned and waxed confidential. "I berthed steerage on one voyage," he explained. "There chanced to be some one—of the other sex, I need hardly say that—with a cabin on Deck A. O, I soon found I could wangle it!"

"Have you any reason to think the judge's brother did that? In plain language, is there anything to suggest the knife Mrs. Bellamy-Pryce found was his?"

"O, so she's told you about that, has she?" Argus cocked a wary eye at his inquisitor and mused dispassionately. "Might have been his. Anyhow, it was damned silly to get rid of it; but you know what women are. What was the other thing you were asking? O, yes! It was all rather indefinite. It's just that I fancied I saw this brother that very evening, slinking behind one of the lifeboats. Directly we'd left off playing bridge it was. Maybe I was wrong. I certainly saw some dark, slimy little brute with much the look of him, but as I started after him to make sure a chap I knew stopped me for a light and said had I heard the news about the judge. I barged below to offer my services and what-not and clean forgot the brother till the question of shock came up."

They had reached Piccadilly circus.

"Then you can't swear," said Tommy as he drew up by the curb, "that this man you saw on deck was Gavin Bellamy-Pryce?"

"N—no. I couldn't take my oath on it. It was pitch dark, remember, and he slid away like an eel directly he saw me looking at him."

During the short drive Argus had expanded a trifle and lost some of his moroseness. Now, as he alighted, antagonism returned, and Tommy, meeting the hard gazing eyes, suddenly read the meaning of it. Jealousy!

• • •

MEANWHILE, in Tommy's empty flat, the telephone was ringing its head off.

Although it was still early for her rendezvous with Rank, Rosemary had to escape and be alone in order to think—think desperately, against time. When she had reached a green space in the very middle of the park she sank down, breathless.

There must be a way out of this horrid impass! Her uncle, the rather peculiar idol of her youthful fancy, could not possibly be an utterly callous murderer. If not Uncle Gavin, then who could it be? A private enemy of Boggie's? Good old Bog can't have an enemy.

But the truth was Boggie had. Looking furtively about—how the hateful habit had grown on her!—she took from her handbag a folded letter which no eyes but hers had seen. Boggie had no knowledge it existed. Several times she had been on the point of burning it, but somehow she had refrained. She flattened the paper out and forced herself to re-read its typed enclosure. The familiar, cramped signature at the end she pored over with unwonted concentration. It seemed a bit wobbly.

She had not believed these vile sentences could still enrage her, but they did, all over again. At the same time, the warning they contained seemed slightly less insane than at her last reading. If it was not insane at all, then here, in this typed page, was her answer. It might mean the saving of Uncle Gavin.

All at once she saw that she would be foolish not to place this letter straight into Tommy Rostetter's hands. She would do it at once, before her resolution weakened.

Up she sprang, crammed the letter back into its hiding place, and made at full speed for the telephone booth at Marble Arch. The telephone rang and rang. Of course Tommy was out lunching. Her decision, so firm a moment before, had collapsed.

"I daren't—O, I daren't!" she muttered. "It might do more harm than good." She turned laggingly back into the park, took a few slow steps, and whispered to herself: "At least, not yet. . . ."

"More or less what I had expected," he said. "You've saved me considerable time and trouble; but I'd like to ask you this: Do you think the lady may be drawing rather freely on her imagination?"

"She strikes me as a very literal minded woman, not at all given to flights of fancy. You yourself remarked on the crudeness of her attempts to fool us; and she was almost trapped into giving that description. I believe she's genuinely terrified of bringing what may be a false accusation, for quite understandable reasons. I doubt if you'll get her to admit there was anything else in the brief-case to interest Gavin. I also doubt if at this date you'll discover that the judge's heart attack was caused by being set upon by his brother, though it's evident some talk of it arose at the time."

The inspector grumbled on the length of time it would take to secure statements from the ship's captain. The sum total of wireless messages received would probably elicit no new information, and while one was waiting for them another murderous attack might be perpetrated. From these observations Tommy concluded that it was the speaker's intention to have Gavin watched and his recent movements investigated.

"I trust you won't have difficulty in finding him. He seems an elusive bird."

Symposium club, you said? That's good enough."

Within the next hour Tommy pitied Inspector Headcorn for his optimism. After a telephone canvass of various Oxford acquaintances, he himself called in at the august portals of the club in question, only to be met with a shocked refusal.

However, on Monday morning a stroke of pure luck enabled Tommy once more to render service. Calling early at Anatol's and finding Rosemary not yet arrived, he dropped into his nephew's flower shop. Rank, still lord of this one domain, was as usual issuing orders. His partner, Bilfilian, quietly disregarded them, going his own loathly way. In a past not remote, the latter had been the instrument of rescuing Tommy from a particularly vile death. In addition, like the younger Rostetter, he was changed, translated—not only daintily garbed but excessively clean.

Her uncle, the peculiar idol of her youthful fancy, could not be an utterly callous murderer.

Tommy inquired the latest news from Victoria Grove. Rank, who had called there the night before, reported an atmosphere of strain.

"Would be, while this uncertainty's about," Rank muttered this, conveying with elaborate winks that his partner was not apprised of events. "O, I got it," he continued sotto voce, "the minute that description was let out. Ro's tried to fool us, but it's plain enough who it was. Well, sickening as it is, it's good they've found out. Have you got hold of him yet?"

"Gavin? No. He seems to have dug a hole and crawled into it."

• • •

OVER the hamper lid a face like a dark tadpole's, all eyes, was regarding them strangely.

"Were you trying to find Gavin Bellamy-Pryce?" squeaked Bilfilian surprisingly. "Because if so I can put you on to him. I daresay I'm one of the few people who can. Lambs' Conduit street, Bloomsbury," said Bilfilian meekly. "I forget the number, but it's a room over a bake shop. Only last week I went there. He was showing me his fragments of Sumerian pottery."

"Cuniform, you know." Bilfilian was uncorked. "He's hoping they'll turn out a pæan to Astaroth, but they may be only part of a laundry list. He's a great man, Gavin. It'll take a full century before he's appreciated. It's a crying shame some one doesn't die and leave him the money to carry on with. All his life he's been hampered by poverty. If he had a location of his own . . ."

"Could I mention your name," interrupted Tommy, to whom an idea had come, "in case I want to get an article out of him on the Indus cities?"

"O, certainly!" Bilfilian eyed him with deep respect. "But you'll have a tough job to catch him. He spends most of his time at the museums."

Tommy thanked him and departed somewhat hastily. He had just seen Rosemary approaching from the farther end of Brackham place.

"You!" she greeted him in relief. "With this awful day in front of me I was afraid I shouldn't see you at all. Every blessed hat to be spot cleaned and furbished up for the sale—the countess has worn most of them, and her powder does stick so—then the cocktail binge to be planned for, and not a thing done."

"Don't worry, it'll soon be over."

"Yes, I know; but what, what do you think's happened?" She came to a standstill before her own entrance and sank her voice tragically. "Some one's told daddy. He'll be in town this morning."

"Your father? Who told him?"

She shrugged despairingly. "God knows. He only knows about the shootings. I had a line by the first post, simply saying he was much disturbed over the news, and was coming straight up; but wait, that's not the worst of it. He says he means to look up Uncle Gavin first thing, and get his advice about it. Could anything be more perverse?"

Tears had sprung to her eyes.

"Boggie's as upset as I am," she whispered. "She's ready to meet every train, only she and I both know he's more than likely to come by motor coach, that being cheaper. I bunged off a wire saying it was all a mistake, and to stay at home; but he probably won't get it in time."

"Couldn't you have telephoned?"

"Daddy's had his telephone taken out. He always hated it, and he wants the money to have his housekeeper's daughter's legs straightened. I'm afraid it's no use. He knows Uncle Gavin's address if we don't, and he'll go straight to it. You don't see how awful that is. I didn't till something Boggie hinted gave me a most terrible jar. She said that she was all right, because she was warned; but that daddy wasn't warned, and that if it was an advantage to have her out of the way, the same thing applied to him. It's true, isn't it? As she sees it."

"Nonsense! I've just found out where your uncle is, and——"

"You've found out? But how?"

He told her, and sketched out his scheme.

"Then you'll go to Lambs' Conduit street now and try to be there when daddy arrives? O, I should feel so much happier? You might say something about the fact that Scotland Yard is making investigations. If Uncle Gav is doing this, it may scare him off altogether."

Her face had brightened noticeably. He asked if she could lunch with him and hear his report.

"I shan't have time to eat properly," she said. "If you'll make it The Snuggery over there, I'll manage to pop across for a moment. O, Mr. Rostetter——"

"Better make it Tommy."

Lambs' Conduit street proved to be a dingy turning off the tram clanging Theobald road. It contained but one baker's establishment, beside which yawned an entrance which gave on to a dark, stale smelling staircase. Tommy went up, and after two flights reached a door bearing a dirty visiting car. He knocked, receiving no answer.

Making straight for a telephone box, he gave the inspector the address, together with the information that Gavin seemed to be away from home. He then rang up Rosemary, told her there was little likelihood of her father and uncle coming into immediate contact, and having lifted a load from her shoulders drove to Somerset house, in the Strand. Here he paid the customary shilling and requested to examine the last will and testament of—but here he was hung up. Which Bellamy-Pryce would it be? Boggie had not said, and he had not thought to inquire.

• • •

THE grizzled attendant who met him came to his rescue. The name mentioned was an uncommon one. Wasn't he wanting the will made by James Luther Bellamy-Pryce, founder of the famous tea importers firm and father of the present head, Sir Osmund?

"Quite correct. May I ask how you guessed?"

Smiling, the attendant answered that it was a natural conclusion, seeing this was the fifth application for the document within a period of two years.

"The fifth!"

"That's so, sir. The last was only about an hour ago."

Headcorn without doubt; but the others? When the will had been produced Tommy detained the old man in conversation and, pretending idle curiosity, put a few inquiries. It appeared that in each instance the applicant for the will had been a man. The first had come in slightly more than two years ago—James, perhaps, for he had been in England about that time, as Boggie had mentioned yesterday; but it was impossible after so long a time to learn any details concerning him, and the same was true of the second, who had arrived much later—in February or March of the present year. He might, Tommy conceived, have been a solicitor representing one of the beneficiaries—or the vicar, though this he doubted. This morning's arrival was, of course, fresh in memory. He had been a large, heavy gentleman, with a big wart on his nose.

"And the last before him?" Tommy asked.

"He came along soon after the second," said the attendant, smiling again, reminiscently. "I'm not likely to forget him, for I said to myself he was the only one of the lot that didn't look as if he could have been one of the family. That is to say," he explained, "I often used to see Sir Osmund when my stepson was working for the firm in Tower Hill. Tall, sandy gray, hatchet faced he was. You might call him distinguished. This chap was hatchet faced, but not sandy and not tall—nor distinguished. Dark as a native—a little, weazened runt. Rather a queer customer, he struck me. I seem to picture him in one of those real old time overcoats, such as you don't often see nowadays. Cape attached to it. Yes, the black gloves. Never took 'em off the whole time he was studying the will. I took particular notice."

Black gloves!

Again they had cropped up, sinister, significant. During the half hour Tommy spent in poring over the mass of legal verbiage and fixing in his mind certain damning facts, Gavin's black gloves hovered like liver spots before his eyes. They followed him out into the dazzling Strand, hung suspended in mid-air all the way to Mrs. Coates' Servants' registry in Sloane street, and superimposed themselves on the powdery face of the very grand lady who answered his next inquiries. Vera Coldbottom, he learned with disappointment, had quitted London for a post in Essex. He took down her new address, left the office, and suddenly remembered that just round the corner in Cadogan gardens lived Lord Downside, the amateur archeologist who, according to the porter of the Symposium, was almost the only club member to whom Gavin ever spoke. It so happened that the aged peer had been a friend of Tommy's father. Thinking a call on him might throw some illumination on Gavin's character, Tommy presented himself.

"I've little more than a confrère's acquaintance with Gavin Bellamy-Pryce," said Lord Downside. "I should doubt if any one knows him really well. He's a very odd fish, indeed—difficult, secretive, and with but one passion in life—but this much can be said for him, however poor he may be, he never borrows, and never sponges."

"And no belief can alter the fact that with both James and Boggie dead, Gavin comes in for considerably more money. If the vicar and Rosemary die . . . but good God, that's fantastic!"

• • •

HE HAD a long wait at The Snuggery before Rosemary appeared. In the meantime Capt. Argus had prowled in, made halting conversation with a weather eye on the hat shop, and finally, in disappointment, roamed away. It was after 2 o'clock when Anatol's door opened and like a cyclone the girl rushed in.

"Daddy's come," she announced, nibbling the remnant of a roll. "And when, or where, do you think he's putting up? The Shaftesbury Palace hotel. He just would." Irrepressible mirth took her. "O, Tommy, can't you see sweet little Daddy all alone in that God-awful place."

Helpless with laughter—due largely to reaction, he imagined—she waved aside the menu.

"Have you found out who told him?"

"He simply won't say." She had sobered, and was frowning a little. "Whoever it was has sworn him to secrecy. He's too honorable to go back on his word, but it is rather queer, isn't it? I haven't seen him yet. He rang Boggie up, and she got on to me. She and I have agreed to suppress Saturday's event entirely; and we're letting him think both those shots were meant for Victoria road. You see why, of course. If he believes there's no danger for us he'll turn round and go home again."

To safety. Tommy understood.

"Perhaps it's just as well," he returned. "It wouldn't help matters to alarm him. Hold on!" He caught her on the wing. "Does this mean I shan't be seeing you before tomorrow?"

"Not, I'm afraid, till the cocktail party."

Hardly had she regained the shop when a taxi halted outside Anatol's entrance, and from it alighted a slim reed of a woman, black clad and of Parisian chic. With her was a male escort. He followed confidently, but at the door was turned back by an imperious hand. "A demain, mon cher," cooed a thrilling voice, recognizable even at this distance. Tommy took another look, and above the escort's bent head—a sulky head, he would have said—discerned immense dark eyes burning from thick rims of what might be kohl, a smile of peculiar seduction, and side locks of hair luridly suggestive of the inferno's flames. Anatalia Rakowsky had arrived.

It was the firm barring of the door which brought back Rank's tale of jealousy. Tommy reflected that Countess Rakovsky might have fired shots which missed. If she fired shots at all they probably would miss; but granting the absurdity of her adopting a male disguise was it possible for her to have downed a woman of Boggie's proportions? Hardly; and besides, what would have been her object? Boggie was not her rival. Definitly, the countess was out.

His thoughts turned back to the fishing cord. Had Gavin possessed such a thing? Had he been absent from London for six whole days, and if so could the fact be established?

Scrum aptly described the gathering into which, at 6:30 the next afternoon Tommy insinuated himself.

The countess emerged from a gluey tangle, much as a queen bee on occasion comes out for a breath of air.

She squeezed his hand fondly and then turned her back on him and fastened like a limpet on to a man whose magnificent head towered well above the mob. The countess' prey was indeed no other than Capt. Argus.

A hand gripped his arm, a plate of caviar capsized against his waistcoat, and over the débris he beheld Boggie's jovial features.

"O, I'm here!" the humorous chuckle greeted him. "Just made it, too. Will you look at that sky outside?"

Even as she spoke there came a snick of pale lightning through the darkening room, an ear splitting crash of thunder, and then the deluge. Wall lights flooded on. Boggie righted her black straw hat, which had got knocked over one eye, and asked where her niece was.

"I only braved this on her account. She'd have been so disappointed. O, there's Jack. Here, Jack, have you seen Ro?"

Argus, the countess still hitched on, shook his head. His companion, vaguely catching the drift, murmured that she believed darling Rosemary had gone out after more gin.

An Open Letter to Joan Crawford

JOAN CRAWFORD

Dear Joan: Many of your greatest lessons as well as many of your greatest joys in life are to be experienced through giving your money, your time, and your inner self to others and to worthy causes, according to your horoscope. You are living this sort of life, giving and getting much. Why do you do it? This is a question you must answer to yourself; and during the coming two and a half years I think you will stop many times to think over this question. You will wonder often if you have not actually given too much. But it is probable that you are being weighed in the big cosmic balance for motive. With best wishes,

WYNN.

Power Behind Two Exhibits Is Mrs. Thorne

By Cousin Eve.

Mrs. James Ward Thorne was the power behind two exhibits of great distinction last week. This noted blonde beauty of Chicago has more than one of the arts and crafts at her slender finger tips, and immense knowledge as well of the decorative arts down the centuries.

Besides being a maker and designer of miniature rooms, which have been honored by a place in Kensington museum, London, with Queen Mary of England for their sponsor, Mrs. Thorne is an outstanding book binder.

Last Friday afternoon there was a reception for the lovely artisan in the library of the Donnelley Press in Cermak road, at which society turned out en masse, until it became the liveliest event of our late season. On exhibition were Mrs. Thorne's books, and also her aqua tints and sketches in design, with which visitors were fascinated.

The Antiquarians of the Art institute have gone along in a dignified groove these many years, until when last November Mrs. Thorne was elected president. In the past three decades one majestic matron has succeeded another in this office, Mrs. John N. Jewett, Mrs. Martin Ryerson, Mrs. Henry Robbins, Mrs. Charles Hutchinson, and finally Mrs. Potter Palmer, at the head of a younger group, and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick. Members paid five dollars a year for the privilege of attending one fashionable tea a year, and the proceeds were invested in antiques, which were then presented to the Art institute; hence the society's name. Years ago there was a great giggle over a matron of forty who was honored by an invitation to join the Antiquarians. She regretted in a tactful note, saying she was not old enough yet for membership.

This year Mrs. Thorne, to shake up things a bit, planned a costume party, and this happened last week, a mid-Victorian tea. The Antiquarian rooms were changed into a suite done with all the highly ornate atrocities of Victoria's reign from various local collections, and the first person seen tearing about was Helen Hayes, the talented impersonator of Victoria Regina in the theater. Mrs. Thorne stood in line in plum colored bustled dress and delightful feathered hat. Mrs. Phillip Miller's black taffeta billowy frock of the '40s and Mrs. Dewey's black velvet of the same epoch made pictures of them, and Elsie McCormick, with black side curls and trappings à la Queen Amalie, was marvelous. Red and gold Bohemian glass epergne and compotiers from her collections held the flowers, strawberries, and sweets at the tea table, where Mrs. Charles Dempster sat in sweep of lavender and pale green taffeta, a ravishingly becoming little tilted purple hat, and lama lace shawl. She of all the group had the most compliments for good looks, and Mrs. Alfred Hamill, who sat also behind a silver urn, wore horizontal stripes, black and gray, typical of the early '60s. Victoria reigned 63 years, so the range was wide.

All of the excitement about Victoria's cycle makes me think of a friend who has lately been a London householder and playing round with the royal set of Edward, now duke of Windsor. Few among us realize how quickly the ex-king and Mrs. Simpson had got busy with Buckingham palace and ripped out its venerated innards.

Nicky de Molas, the talented Russian who gets $5,000 for his Italian primitives of American great houses, had been lured to do the spacious ceilings of the English royal palace by Lady Elsie de Wolfe Mendl. And he was on the high road to independent wealth for the rest of his young life. But the chef d'oeuvre of the new reign was a palace bar, and that is still intact in Buckingham palace, although the ax is sharp for its demolition. Queen Elizabeth and King George will have no bar on the premises.

A charming morning of the week was Friday at the Fortnightly when Louise Wood of Florence, Italy, addressed the Contemporaries on "Italy Today and Tomorrow." Her slides were beautiful, and her description of the little home over the postoffice in mountainous Fiesole, and of all the shadings of everyday Italian life were one of the good hours of the year. Miss Wood is a daughter of two popular and high-minded Chicagoans long dead, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Couch Wood, and I kept thinking how proud they would be of their witty, competent daughter—young but able to care for herself in a far country.

"Do you ever see the Windsors in Paris?" I asked Baron Kurt Von Reininghaus, when he told me he lived in Paris, not in Vienna as I had assumed. The baron is the handsome, black haired young husband of one of the Rothschild girls, and she was sitting across the harthside from us on a pale blue sofa, at a small tea. With long sunburned, chubby legs, a round childlike rosy face and large blue eyes, she looked barely grown up. Yet a friend describing the baroness to me later said she was a woman of 40.

No two people seem to see anything or anybody in the same light. The baron said, however, that they had been married five years. And also that the Windsors were now in circulation in Paris and were seen frequently at parties. In fact he had met them within January at a dance given them by Baroness Reininghaus' uncle at his Auteuil mansion [Baron de Rothschild]. The duke of Windsor looks extremely depressed and sad, and seems to follow closely in his wife's shadow. But Wally has an air of well being, and on this occasion was wearing a notable quantity of interesting jewelry and—— At this interesting juncture the hostess corralled the baron to introduce him to another guest, so we may never know about what else Wally had on.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mitchell arrived from California in the morning and were hosts at a large tea at the Casino in the afternoon. Clarence Buckingham Mitchell is the youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John J. Mitchell and a grandson of William H. Mitchell. Never having heard the yelps of the wolf upon his doorstep, Clarence Mitchell has been able to develop the science of photography into a fine art. Three years ago his show of photographs at the Drake was a sensation. Many of his subjects had all the dignity and beauty of etchings. Mrs. Clarence Mitchell was Marjorie King, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Garfield King, an equal enthusiast about her husband's metier.

The Mitchells' guests found chairs in the center of the Casino ballroom, and a screen. Mrs. Garfield King made a short introduction of Prof. Gregg of the Field museum, and he at once presented C. Martin Wilbur, also of the museum, a young expert on oriental art who has lived most of his life in Peking.

We were to see upon the screen Mr. Mitchell's photographs in natural color of the finest collection of Chinese jades in the world—that recently bequeathed the Field museum by Mrs. Frances Gaylord Smith. Mr. Wilbur lectured in a simple, informative way as the beautiful slides were shown, giving their periods and the meaning of each exquisitely carved design. Probably loveliest of all was a pure white jade ceremonial vessel, but there were green jade carved urns that took one's breath. Curious little animal figures three thousand years old had a wonderful patina of age and beauty, and all in all, seeing these photographs in natural color gave one a thrill. Jade is very little understood in the occident. To the Chinese it is the rarest and loveliest thing on earth; they venerate it as something extraordinary and more to be desired than rubies.

On one of her returns from China, Mrs. Forsythe Sherfesse showed herself in Chicago with a triple jade necklace to the waist which must have cost a pretty penny. Yet most persons probably thought it was agate. At tea following the pictures one met the entire Mitchell family, Mr. and Mrs. John Kellogg, tall, handsome Louise, and the Billy Mitchells, very gay. Mrs. Mitchell was Ginevra King, a Lake Forest beauty. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Mitchell, leaving soon for California, were there. The latter once was Lolita Armour, only child of Mrs. J. Ogden Armour. She looked sweet in robe noire, much fretted in gold. Mrs. P. A. Valentine, Mrs. R. T. Crane, Mrs. Joseph Patterson, Russell Tyson, Col. and Mrs. George Langhorne, Mrs. Morris Johnston, Mrs. Arthur Bissell, Mrs. H. Belin Voorhees, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ryerson, and Mrs. Hugh McBirney were a few at the party.

Of all the sponsors of this charming show several were present. They were Mrs. Armour, Mrs. Stanley Field, Malvina Hoffman, Mrs. John Kellogg, Mrs. Charles G. King, Mrs. John J. Mitchell, Mrs. Donald M. Ryerson, Mrs. P. A. Valentine, and Mrs. J. Paul Welling.

Dr. Heinrich Bruening, former chancellor of Germany and former leader of the German centrists, was the star of a foreign relations luncheon on Saturday that broke the record. Sixteen hundred sat down to a dainty dish of roast ham, while hundreds sat waiting in the corridor for the great man's words on "European Politics Since the War." A number of men had met Dr. Bruening the day before at Silas Strawn's luncheon at the Chicago club, and a dozen guests, women and men, were asked to dine with him Saturday night at the Laird Bells, Mr. Bell being president of the foreign relations council. Dr. Bruening's opening words were that, owing to his former high position, his speech would not be sensational. Whereupon every one's temperature fell. His next calm statement was that the treaty of Versailles was at the bottom of all the present unrest in Europe. Instead of amicable commercial relations between countries, the military point of view was now paramount.

AT HOME AFTER FEB. 15

Mrs. Lester R. Wellman Jr. is the former Barbara Frank, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ira Frank of Chicago. Mr. Wellman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester R. Wellman of Highland Park. After Feb. 15 Mr. and Mrs. Wellman Jr. will be at home in Highland Park.

Short Month Crowded One in Palm Beach

By Helen Van Hoy Smith.

PALM BEACH, FLA.

Closing the door on a month replete with informal gaieties, this flowery island faces a February crowded with events of significance, in all of which the Chicago colony will take a prominent part.

The silver sailfish Derby, which opened on Jan. 23, will continue through Feb. 13. Chicagoans entered include Henry H. Windsor Jr., with his Apache II., and Elmer Rich, with his Idle Hour. Others are fishing from chartered boats. The daily prize on Tuesday was captured by George Mares of Chicago for his eight foot sail weighing sixty-five pounds.

The Everglades club will stage one of its hilarious wheel chair races on Wednesday and on Feb. 11. The Ted Shawn dancers will appear there. Society will attend the annual Romany concert at the Paramount theater Feb. 16, when Richard Crooks will be guest artist. The annual dinner of the Old Guard Golfing society, a strictly stag event, is scheduled for Feb. 21. William F. Bode of Chicago is chairman of the arrangements committee. Other Chicagoans playing in the tournaments, for which prizes will be awarded, include Fred Hartwell and W. B. Langford. Flower show dates are Feb. 25, 26 and 27 at the Four Arts building.

The annual Kiwanis show will be held Feb. 28 at the Paramount theater, while the Everglades club is planning a gala dance to celebrate Washington's birthday.

A fresh impetus to social goings-on here is seen in the arrival on Monday of Mrs. Charles Harrington Chadwick at Villa Today, where her mother, Mrs. William Quinn, had preceded her. On Tuesday Mrs. Chadwick was one of a distinguished group attending a tea given by Bernard Boutet de Monvel. Other art connoisseurs present included Jules Bache, Marques de Cuevas, Mr. and Mrs. Jay J. O'Brien, Sir Henry and Lady Ann Hunloke, and Sir William and Lady Max-Muller of London.

Mrs. Stephen Tilton is arriving by plane this week-end to be the guest of Miss Emily Spear and Mrs. Grant Warren Spear at La Boliche, where Miss Emily Baker of Chicago, Charles H. G. Thompson and William Pickard of New York also are guests.

At a meeting of the Palm Beach planning board this week Mrs. George A. McKinlock retired as head of the organization and was succeeded by Edward T. Stotesbury. Mrs. McKinlock will remain as vice president. The board recommended the removal of the water tower on Main street. Palm Beach has added romance and glamor to its fire stations and filling stations, and several colonists have said that the next need to be fulfilled is a water tower that is artistic as well as useful. The little railroad station of hallowed memory has already been consigned to the limbo of forgotten things. The old Poinciana is gone if not forgotten, and in every way Palm Beach, after forty-three years of existence, is having its face lifted.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Logan, interesting members of the Chicago colony, are at the Brazilian Court for the season. They entertained Mr. and Mrs. Parker Bryant at the backgammon tournament at the Everglades club recently.

Butler entertained with a dinner on Thursday night in honor of Mrs. Fritz Talbot of Boston, the guest of her mother, Mrs. Nathan D. Bill of Springfield, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Dillman entertained the Garden club with a tea at the Four Arts in honor of Mrs. Benjamin S. Warren of Grosse Pointe, Mich. Chicagoans attending the mid-week fashion show at the Everglades club included Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, Mrs. Donald R. McLennan, Mr. and Mrs. Parker Bryant, and Mrs. Donald MacMurray.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Tennes of Chicago have arrived here from California, where Mrs. Tennes and Miss Dorothy Tennes spent the early winter. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Havens Windsor Jr. have taken a house on the Lake trail, where they have an entrancing view of silver waters and the flotilla of yachts at anchor.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy entertained with a dinner for eighteen Tuesday night at their home on Middle road, where Mr. Cudahy's brother, Edward I. Cudahy of Chicago, is a guest.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Sheldon Johnson of Chicago gave a buffet supper at their home, Maison du Bonheur, followed by contract bridge. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Hayes, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Herendeen, Mrs. Mae L. Carle, Dr. Joseph Jerger, Wilbur Jerger, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Mabee, all of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Spencer T. Lainhart, Palm Beach; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Foskett and Mrs. Wilson Vorhees, Logansport, Ind., and Mrs. Nettie Livermore and Mrs. Nell Kendall, New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson also gave a party Wednesday night at the opening of the Colony club, having in their party Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Bode, Mrs. J. J. Cavanaugh, and Mrs. Benjamin Wright of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. George Henry High of Lake Forest are located at their Pendelton avenue house for the season.

Mrs. William F. Bode entertained Wednesday at the mid-week fashion show at the Everglades club. Chicagoans in the party included Mrs. McKay Leroy, Mrs. F. O. Butler and Mrs. Paul Healy. Hugh Dillman entertained about sixty men at this event, having a long table placed near the runway.

Luncheon Pageant to Review Growth of P.-T. Movement

"Ten a Penny" Oxford Grads Cause Concern in Britain

By Ann Whittingham.

LONDON

When a great English industrialist declared in public recently that "Oxford men are ten a penny," he exposed a situation which bewilders the nation.

"An Oxford man." For how many centuries that phrase has been the young Englishman's "open sesame" to a secured position! A privileged social standing, the best plums of the political and diplomatic world, and the civil service, all went to the "Oxford man" or the "Cambridge man."

Now Oxford men are living in hall bedrooms, scanning each morning's paper for "situations offered." Some of them, with a little money left, are selecting those jobs in keeping with a university degree. Others are taking what they can get and suddenly they realize that they could have got the same sort of job without spending four years and a small fortune at the university.

What is true of Oxford is true of Cambridge, but not so true of London university or others which offer broader courses of study.

This new problem is the result of a change in the universities themselves. Oxford has passed from the stage of being a school for the sons of the secure classes to the stage of being a democratic institution. It used to be the place where gentlemen sent their sons for culture, not for education as we think of it today. There was no question of their needing to turn that education into money when they got out. They merely wanted to live fully and intelligently and uphold their responsibility in governing the country as they thought it should be governed. Their living was secure. What they wanted was to learn how to live.

Today, the grandson of the lord of the manor rubs shoulders with the grandson of the lord's valet or gardener, and together they go through four halcyon years. But when those years end, the lord's son has added culture to his assets and the gardener's son must turn his culture into money. And in England, as elsewhere, there is only a small market for culture and it has long since been satisfied.

• • •

At Oxford, a generation ago, there were perhaps a dozen young men among the sons of the rich who were sent there by patrons who recognized genius. Today, one authority states that more than fifty per cent of the men come to Oxford with some sort of financial assistance from schools, organizations or endowments. These men are penniless when they leave college and they have nothing but culture to offer their prospective employers. They are Jacks-of-no-trades and swell the ranks of men teachers who do not even know how to teach.

It is not a sneer at Oxford as much as a statement of fact that a "first class honors" man can be had for twenty dollars a week.

• • •

Cambridge, it is said, has a smaller proportion of "assisted" men and it has succeeded, more conspicuously than Oxford, in excluding women as well.

Women are not members of Cambridge at all. They are there on sufferance, not subject to discipline, not acknowledged in the classrooms, and never given any degree.

Europe's Sun Seekers Leave Capital Cities

By May Birkhead.

PARIS

The extremely cold weather in Europe has made a sharp division between those seeking winter sports and those making for sunshine. England, where the cold has been more severe than in France, saw an enormous number of her leading citizens heading for the Riviera. The real incentive seems to have been an escape from cold, and not a chance to glimpse the duke and duchess of Windsor during the last days of their holiday at Cannes.

Now that they are back in Paris, by the way, there is the usual eager, not to say wild, speculation as to their next move. Almost everything is being suggested, but it is doubtful if any one really knows, and that goes for the Windsors themselves. The London newspapers one day confirm and the next day deny the possibility of their going to America, while the representatives of the press here have been assured that they will be informed when a decision is made.

A persistent rumor is that the Windsors are seriously considering renting a country place in the Fontainebleau and Barbizon region. It is said they looked at an estate known as La Corne Biche. But it is unlikely they would think of it for a home, for it does not in any particular answer the description that the duches has given the real estate agents for their requirements. It is a plot of ground in the forest of Fontainebleau, near Barbizon, which was developed by a company some years ago as a sort of playground to attract Parisians for the week-ends, and consists of small cottages built around a central open air gymnasium, with swimming pool, restaurant, tea house, etc.

As prince of Wales the duke often visited famous restaurants in and near Barbizon. One of his favorites was a hostelry in the village itself, which has had printed on its menu cards since 1924, "Honored by H. R. H. the prince of Wales." It is the famous old hotel where Robert Louis Stevenson lived and did much of his writing for four or five years.

• • •

The bitter weather in northern Europe is, perhaps, the chief factor in sending so many to Egypt. Some, of course, have not been averse to seeing the excitement surrounding the marriage of King Farouk. But the chief reason for the large influx of travelers to that historic land is the attraction of the sun. It also should be said that Egypt, in recent years, has been increasing her facilities for sports, from the standpoint of both the participant and the spectator. Not only around Cairo and Alexandria, but as far north as Assouan, golf links, grass or sand tempt the follower of the wily pill.

In winter there are horse races twice a week at Cairo. The improved motor roads draw many who like to drive their own cars amid scenes of picturesque and historic interest.

British Titles Flood Miami's Guest Roster

By Clarissa Greene.

MIAMI, FLA.

English atmosphere is enveloping Miami like the veritable London fog, with the arrival here of title after title. Rumor continues to encourage Miamians to hope that the arrival of the duke and duchess of Windsor will climax the procession of royal visitors. Latest encouragement is afforded by the statement that the Windsors are considering spending at least a portion of their winter season at Jamaica.

A cousin of the duke of Windsor, and incidentally of his brother, the king, Lord Mountbatten, is expected to arrive with Lady Mountbatten this week-end to spend a few days here before taking off for Jamaica, where they will attend the international polo matches. They and the English polo players in their party will join Lord and Lady Weymouth, Lord Beaverbrook and Lord Forbes at the Tower hotel on the ocean front at Miami Beach.

Recent guests of Alfred J. Barton at the Surf club have included Lady Langdon, down from Palm Beach, and Col. and Mrs. Wyndham Torr, stopping over here briefly en route to Havana and South America. Col. Torr is the military attaché at the British legation at Washington.

Guest lists glitter with titles from the courts of European capitals. Apparently enjoying the freedom and democratic atmosphere of an American resort, noblemen have made strong friendships among the American royalty who are extending a royal welcome.

Further evidence of that entente cordiale between British and American folk, the darling project of the English Speaking union, is assured as preparations are completed for the fifth annual Miami-Nassau race of sailing yachts, an event of Tuesday, Feb. 8. This annual classic is under the joint auspices of the Miami and the Nassau Yacht clubs. One of the five members of the race committee of the former club is Vivyan Hall, whose office in the Field building is named as one of the two headquarters for information for northern yachtsmen, interested in this event.

The trek to Jamaica is typical of the constant passage between Miami and nearby foreign shores for sports and social events. A number of local enthusiasts will attend the international matches at Jamaica next month with many Chicagoans taking advantage of luxurious boat facilities or of the two hour flight to spend a few days in the old world atmosphere of this island, Nassau, Havana and other Caribbean resorts. Among the week's Nassau-bound voyagers were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sturgis of Elgin.

Of particular interest on the calendar for the coming week is the marriage of Miss Mary Loretta Snite, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick B. Snite of River Forest, and Miami Beach, to Terrence Dillon, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dillon of Hudson, Mich. Simplicity marks plans for this wedding, an event of Feb. 8. Following their exchange of vows at St. Patrick's cathedral, Miami Beach, the couple will return to the Snite house on Pine Tree drive, where their wedding breakfast will be attended by members of the families and intimate friends.

While she was down from Boca Raton, where she is spending the season, to spend several days with her parents, the George A. Hughes of Coral Gables, Mrs. Grant Call attended the initial concert of the University of Miami symphony and was a guest at the Sunday afternoon garden party at the Gables estate of the Frank O. Headleys.

Mrs. S. D. Koger, a Miami social leader known for her poems appearing over the signature, Ethel Koger, is being much missed here since her departure to visit her brother and sister-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Overton Brooks, in Chicago.

Considered as the signal event for the opening of the season was the Surf club's Silver ball last night, the first of a series of nine Saturday night dinner-dances at this ocean front retreat. This Saturday's informal is to be a "down on the farm" affair.

Chicagoans will be numbered among hosts at both affairs.

Friends of George Crandall have received word that he will be back at the beach early in February. He writes that his daughter, Betty, may elect to spend the remainder of the season in Italy. Much of his time will be spent on the beach and in his cabana at the Surf club, he assures his friends there.

Guests at a luncheon at the Coconut Grove estate of the W. Alton Jones, El Jardin, last week-end, were Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Lloyd and Mrs. Charles S. McCain and Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin E. Sunny.

When the Everglades chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution met this week at Old Fort Dallas, their guests included Mrs. Forest E. Culver.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Zaring and their two children, Stanley Dixon and Sandra, have arrived for the season at the Zarings' Coconut Grove ménage, where Mr. and Mrs. Latham Castle of Sycamore, Ill., are guests for a fortnight. The Castles' arrival last week-end was the occasion for a cocktail party given in their honor by the Zarings.

Seen lunching in the Hialeah clubhouse with Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Young the other day were their recently arrived house guests, the Herbert Eales. In another party were Mayor and Mrs. Edward J. Kelly and Mr. and Mrs. Warren Wright, guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Knight. Mrs. E. M. Meder was the luncheon guest of the Harry L. Vaughns, while in still another party were glimpsed Mrs. Elliott Van Cleef and Mrs. Martha Leslie. With the William T. Gillmans was George Ade.

WED AT ST. MATTHEW'S

Mrs. Richard H. Edmunds is the former Miss Eleanor Probst, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Probst of 6240 South Kedzie avenue. The wedding took place at St. Matthew's Episcopal church in Evanston, with a reception following at the Ridgeview hotel in Evanston.

Legion Auxiliary to Open Two Day Session Thursday

Mrs. James Morris of Bismarck, N. D., will be among the principal speakers at the first rehabilitation conference to be held by Area D of the American Legion auxiliary Thursday and Friday at the Hotel Sherman. Mrs. Morris, who is national rehabilitation chairman for the auxiliary, will speak at a dinner climaxing the first day's program.

Mrs. James Morris.

An "exchange of ideas" exhibit, showing plans and projects for rehabilitation as they are being worked out in the thirteen states in Area D, will be a feature of the conference.

A visit to Edward Hines Jr. Memorial hospital and a school of instruction are scheduled for the second day of the conference. There will be a tea afterward in the veterans' craft shop recently opened by the auxiliary at 203 North Wabash avenue. Mrs. A. A. Pantelis, Illinois department president, will be hostess.

Mrs. T. K. Boyd Elected Scholarship League Head

Club Forum to Scrutinize Parole Setup

By Betty Browning.

The parole system will be subjected to critical scrutiny at the hands of experts when the Chicago Woman's club holds a public forum at 2 o'clock Thursday at the clubhouse, 72 East 11th street.

E. W. Puttkammer of the law school of the University of Chicago will lead the discussion, in which Benjamin S. Adamowski, majority leader of the house of representatives; Ernest W. Burgess of the University of Chicago; Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, director of the Chicago crime commission; Miss Pearl M. Hart, attorney; John Landesco, member of the parole board; Joseph E. Ragen, superintendent of Illinois prisons; Dr. Paul Schroeder, state criminologist, and T. P. Sullivan, acting supervisor of paroles, will take part.

Organizations which have led in the campaign for parole reform, including the Woman's City club, the League of Women Voters, the Chicago Woman's aid, the court and detention home committee, the Council of Social Agencies, the citizens' parole committee, and the women's state legislative committee are being invited to send representatives to the meeting. The commissioner of police, the state's attorney, Chicago legislators, judges of the criminal and municipal courts, professors of law schools, and parole officers also are being invited.

The civics committee, headed by Mrs. William E. Lewis, is sponsoring the meeting. Parole reform is among the interests of this group, which has functioned since 1901.

When the citizens' parole committee was formed last year the Chicago Woman's club had a leading part in the proceedings. Mrs. Ralph Webster, then president of the club, together with Howard Van S. Tracy, president of the Citizens' Association of Chicago, and Mr. Puttkammer, president of the Chicago Academy of Criminology, issued an appeal to the important civic bodies of the state to organize the committee. Its purpose is to inform the public on the merits and demerits of the parole system as it now exists.

Mr. Puttkammer was selected president of this committee, and Mrs. Lewis, present chairman of the civics committee, was made secretary. Mrs. Lewis is a member of the women's committee of the American Prison association and of several other national committees interested in prison problems, and is on the board of advisers of Dwight reformatory.

Of civic interest also will be a talk by Judge John P. Barnes of the United States District court on "Deportation of the Undesirable Alien" at 1:15 o'clock Thursday in room 421-A of the Stevens hotel. Mrs. William F. Conlon heads the committee on national defense through patriotic education, which is arranging the meeting on behalf of the Chicago chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Mrs. Andrew Raithel, chairman of lectures for this committee, will present Judge Barnes. This is the third of a series of public meetings arranged by the committee. Mrs. James H. Jackson is regent of the Chicago chapter.

Pasadena Ball Takes Theme from Racing

By Ruth Billheimer.

PASADENA, CAL.

There has been hardly a good day for the "mudders" at Santa Anita since the season began on Christmas day. But society hasn't minded, for these bright, warm days are the perfect incentive for a lot of gay, new clothes. And the colors are lovely, dotting the Turf club terraces.

The races are very much here to stay, it seems, and so is that festive social institution, the Post and Paddock ball, given each season since Santa Anita was inaugurated, at the Huntington hotel.

It brought out an imposing list of guests Wednesday night when it started with dinner in the dining room and continued until a late hour in the ballroom where Russian gypsy entertainment was followed by dancing.

The orange, yellow, and white color scheme of Santa Anita's infield was brought indoors to brighten the dinner tables. Delicate Iceland poppies were used for centerpieces. And a horse's head sculptured in ice and garlanded with flowers was spotlighted at the entrance to the dining room.

Among the Chicagoans entertaining were Mr. and Mrs. George Marcy, whose guests included Mr. and Mrs. Harry Evans and Mrs. Ellison of Kansas City; Mrs. J. F. Curtis, Miss Sarah B. Hogan, Mrs. Harry Thompson, and Mrs. D. M. Johnson, all now or formerly of Chicago.

Mrs. Lillian Burrows and her daughter, Miss Louise Burrows, who are back at the hotel till April, had at their table, Miss Katherine Lefens and her house guest, Mrs. Henry Bartholomay.

Others spotted in the dining room were Mrs. Iris Rogers and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Becker. The Beckers are here till mid-April.

Miss Lefens who is spending her fifth winter in Holladay road, is enjoying an extended visit from Mrs. Bartholomay and plans to entertain for her later in the season. Her guest arrived a week ago today.

News this week in several cities was the announcement that a wedding date has been set for the Dulce Parker-George Wingfield Jr. rites. Dulce will marry the son of Mrs. Paul Delano Hamlin of Chicago, and George Wingfield of Reno, Nev. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Foster Parker of South Orange Grove avenue, and has forsaken the most glamorous part of a girl's college career—the end of her senior year—at Stanford university to prepare for a May wedding.

Also of interest in Chicago is the wedding date announced by a native of that city, Miss Marjorie Gabriel, who is grandniece of the William Riachs of Evanston. She is a daughter of Mrs. Marjorie Cecilia Gabriel of South Pasadena and O. Nicholas Gabriel of San Francisco, and will become the bride of Eugene Graham Mattison Jr., March 31, also at All Saints'. Her sister, Miss Dede Gabriel, will be maid of honor.

Mrs. Arthur Farwell [Portia Bartlett], who has been visiting her parents, the F. H. Bartletts, expects to leave for Chicago this week. She was entertained, together with Mr. Farwell, at a cocktail party last week. The hostess was Mrs. John Griffith. Mrs. Karl von Platen gave a small luncheon for Mrs. Farwell at the Town club.

• • •

A. Stevens Halsted III. is the name given to their new son by the A. Stevens Halsteds Jr. [Anne Croftan]. The infant was born Jan. 18, at Huntington Memorial hospital. He is their second child, having a sister, little Miss Croftan Halsted, and is the grandson of Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Crofton of Chicago and Pasadena and of Mme. Halsted.

Old friends celebrated together recently the birthday of Mrs. William Jones, former Chicagoan, when she was fêted by her son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. James A. Harvey of 282 Markham place. The party attended the showing of "Old Chicago" in Los Angeles and the guests included several ex-Chicagoans, Mrs. William Fenton and her daughter, Mrs. Alice Fenton Burrage; Mrs. Frank Beetson of Flintridge, and her father, A. C. Buttolph; Mrs. Theodore White Smith, and two winter residents, Mrs. Lillian Burrows and Miss Louise Burrows.

The Marvin Pools of Lake Forest spent a week or so in southern California as the house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur James Harris of Beverly Hills. The Pools plan soon to go to Florida for a sojourn.

Every one is delighted to learn that popular Mrs. George Blossom is convalescing satisfactorily from a severe illness.

• • •

After a month at the Huntington hotel, Mrs. Nathaniel Allison of Chicago has gone to spend the remainder of the winter at Casa de Manana, La Jolla.

Mrs. Iris Rogers will be heading for Washington, D. C., within a fortnight to visit again with Commander and Mrs. Walter McLaran, whom she visited last spring and later traveled with to Honolulu.

The David Russells and son, David Jr., stopped briefly in Pasadena and are now located in the Arcady in the Wilshire district of Los Angeles.

Comings and goings include the arrival at the Huntington of Mrs. Charles Jernagan of Evanston, who plans to remain two weeks. James McVittie spent a few days here this week. Friends bade regretful adieus to Mrs. E. A. Engel a few days ago when she returned to Chicago.

ROGERS PARK GIRL A BRIDE

Mrs. Herbert S. Johnson is the former Frances Hendrickson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Berent Hendrickson of 2453 Morse avenue. Her marriage to the son of Sevander Johnson took place yesterday at the Bethesda Lutheran church, with a reception and dinner following at the Belden Stratford hotel.

Seek National Club Post for Mrs. Seymour

A pageant dedicated to Mrs. Seymour will be a highlight of the allday party. "The Federation Marches On with a Purpose" is the title of the production. Mrs. Seymour herself will be escorted to the platform as the climax of the presentation.

• • •

For years one of Chicago's best loved club leaders, Mrs. Seymour now is second vice president of the General federation. She is a former American home chairman of the General federation, a former president of the Illinois federation, and also was president of the Second district. She is a member of the Chicago Woman's club, the Woman's University club, the Bryn Mawr Woman's club and the Woodlawn Mothers' club, and is vice president of the Municipal Art league.

A committee headed by Mrs. Edward J. Lehman, president of the Illinois federation, has been appointed to direct Mrs. Seymour's campaign. • • •

A flower style show and a card party will be other features of the fund festival, which will begin at 11 o'clock Thursday and will continue through the afternoon. # Two Exhibits Brighten Days of Galleryites

By Eleanor Jewett.

January has really treated us most generously. It brought an exhibit of paintings and sculpture by John Storrs to the Roullier gallery, Fine Arts building, and one of paintings by Salcia Bahnc to the Quest galleries, 810 North Michigan avenue, which, although they close tomorrow, have injected a fresh impetus and a new inspiration into the routine of gallery going.

It is refreshing to be startled sometimes, and both these exhibits have startling qualities. Salcia Bahnc shows an extraordinary number of intriguing houris, all without benefit of clothing, but beautifully drawn and making in their various groupings a definite circle of patterns. Her approach is on the impressionistic side. There is a luminous quality to her paint that is fascinating and when she turns her brush to that often static subject—still life—the result is magnificent. Such texture, such surfaces, such depth, such color, such sheer beauty—it leaves one ravished.

John Storrs plays similar tricks upon one's sympathy. His marble bust of Miss Pauline Palmer is exquisite. Then we turn to his paintings and at once, like a well trained war horse, our nostrils quiver and our every nerve is alert to danger.

What is Mr. Storrs doing? Having a perfectly beautiful time in an individual fashion. His paintings are abstractions with a definite theatrical flavor. He brings robots to life at a turn of his wrist. The quaintest offspring from a commonplace hardware shop are met with in Mr. Storrs' canvases. Keys, telephones, and golf clubs in purified form hobnob like old friends. A mouse and a bit of cheese are on marvelous terms. Animals from wonderland hold court, and whatever fantasy is being erected, each drama is turned out neatly and precisely with gorgeous color, a sense of weight and conscious power.

Do not, however, mistake the painter's parody of a nude with Baby Elephant running off with a bit of lead pipe; it leads to a quick change of the subject.

The Swedish-American artists seem to be in for a busy spring. There is current in the clubwoman's bureau, Mandel Brothers, an exhibit of oils, water colors, and sculpture by members of the Swedish-American Art association. The exhibit will continue through Feb. 12. One work will be chosen from the exhibition to be placed in the National Swedish museum at Vexio, Sweden. The jury of selection consists of Rudolph Ingerle, Allen E. Philbrick, Leonard Crunelle, and Edgar S. Cameron.

The nineteenth Swedish-American art exhibition will take place at the Swedish Club of Chicago, 1258 North La Salle street, from March 26 to April 3. Several prizes will be awarded in this exhibit. The jury will consist of Elmer A. Forsberg, Oskar Gross, Edward T. Grigware, Frank V. Dudley, and John David Brcin.

The fourteenth annual Hoosier salon opened last night with a formal reception in the Marshall Field galleries and will continue through Feb. 12. There are two special features in the current show; first, a room devoted to water colors and, secondly, the exhibition of four portraits executed by Wayman Adams for Culver Military academy. The portraits are of Admiral Hugh Rodman, Gen. L. R. Gignilliat, E. R. Culver, and B. B. Culver. They form the nucleus of an Indiana art collection to be established at the academy.

The exhibition of water colors by Millard Sheets is a stunning event on which to close or open a month. It hangs in the Anderson galleries, 530 South Michigan avenue, and has been a mecca since its opening on Jan. 20 for the many lovers of this vigorous, spirited, dramatic type of picture. In spite of his comparative youth, Millard Sheets has a national reputation and ranks as one of America's foremost water color painters.

The Art institute opened a very important and exceptional exhibition recently in the print galleries. The exhibit is of early Italian prints, fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, some of them of the utmost rarity and some of extremely fine quality. With the possible exception of the Metropolitan and Boston museums, where, by the way, they are never hung in such numbers, it would be impossible to duplicate such a collection as this unless one went to Europe.

The Art institute is opening on Feb. 4 another extremely interesting exhibit when the remarkable loan exhibition of paintings, drawings, and prints by Giambattista and Domenico Tiepolo, Venetian masters of the eighteenth century, will be ready for the visitor. This is a gorgeous and unique show. It will continue into March.

An exhibit of portraits by Nan Rice has been the attraction in the Tudor gallery, Chicago Woman's club, the last two weeks. It will remain on view over tomorrow.

Recent paintings by Frank C. Peyraud and Jevne and Almini lithographs of early Chicago are on view in the O'Brien galleries, 820 North Michigan avenue. Peyraud is well known for his striking landscapes.

Morris Henry Hobbs, Chicago etcher, has left for an extensive etching and sketching trip. He is driving south through Tennessee and on down to New Orleans, working along the way.

A portrait of Dr. H. Winnett Orr of Lincoln, Neb., by Zanna Anderson, is being shown at the American College of Surgeons, 40 East Erie street, Chicago.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Chicago, April 12, 1889.

Dear Julia: A beautiful spring day. I have taken a long drive out to Wabash avenue, near 29th street, where I called on the young daughter of a client of Will's, at school in St. Xavier's academy. I had often driven past this beautiful building and wished I might see the interior, so I welcomed the opportunity.

Will's client, a wealthy lumberman of Wisconsin, has placed his motherless child here and asked me to show her any kindness possible.

As I stepped across the threshold of the school, I felt a peace and satisfaction that was pleasant. Is there anything cleaner than a Catholic institution? Of course, in a community life, there are many willing hands to do even menial work, so everything is shining . . . floors, furniture, ornaments. In the reception room I found a beautiful portrait of Bishop Duggan, which was painted by our great artist, Healy.

• • •

Mother Mary Genevieve, the superior of the Sisters of Mercy here, came forward to meet me . . . a remarkable woman. Born in Canada of French-Arcadian parents, she reminded me of Longfellow's description of Evangeline: "When she had passed, it seemed like the ceasing of exquisite music."

But though she has the face of a saint, she is very practical, and they say her business ability is of the highest order. She has managed to bring the school through financial difficulties in quite a remarkable way. She told me today how, in early days, she was put to it to pay the bills for her large family. One day a creditor called, saying he must have his money, as he had a family to support. "How many children have you, sir?" she asked him. "Two," he replied gruffly. "But I have seventy-five," she answered, whereupon he took his hat and left.

The work of the Sisters of Mercy falls in many lines. When they came to Chicago in 1846 . . . a little band of five . . . one could hardly have expected that their numbers would grow as they have grown.

A convent, known as St. Xavier's academy, was built in 1847 on Wabash avenue, near Madison street, next to Old St. Mary's church. The sisters living here took charge of three Sunday schools . . . St. Mary's, St. Patrick's [on the west side] and the Holy Name [north side]. They walked three miles on Sunday to the west and north sides, as there were no street cars then and they were too poor to hire a conveyance.

Caring for cholera patients, in the days when that dreadful disease took heavy toll, they won the respect of those not of their own faith, and Dr. Edmund Andrews, one of our good physicians, helped them establish Mercy hospital, now a very large institution.

But, to go back to St. Xavier's academy. I found the young girl on whom I called very well and happy, with pleasant companions about her. Two of them—Louise and Elizabeth Blish—I had met before; nice, refined girls. Others she brought up to introduce to me were: Gertrude Brooke, a charming person, with dark, expressive eyes; and girls with the names of Cudahy, Kinzie, Hudson, Synon, Barry, and Grace . . . all well known Catholic families.

Just before I left, stately Sister Isabel came in to greet me, and I remembered that she is a sister of our art dealer, Mr. O'Brien. A woman of great magnetism, she teaches the graduating class, and is admired and revered.

I am glad to feel so satisfied about the happiness and well-being of the little girl we are interested in there. Many people feel a convent school banishes happiness from a child's world by its strictness, but from now on I shall never agree to that. Indeed, I think I should like a child of mine to have such excellent training in morals and manners as the beautiful Sisters of Mercy are giving at St. Xavier's. With love,

FOOTNOTES.

St. Xavier college, the oldest private school in Chicago, stands today in Xavier park at 49th street. Among the girls who were pupils in that school in 1889, Louise Blish, well known for her beautiful voice, is now Mrs. George MacBean; Elizabeth Blish is a retired principal of Chicago schools, and Gertrude Brooke has become Sister Mary Angele of the St. Xavier community. Sister Isabel, an aunt of William V. O'Brien, died only a few weeks ago, at an advanced age.

Mrs. Luther N. Rossiter, Lake Forest, sends us a fascinating bundle of old letters, on thin, yellowed paper, written from Russia in the years from 1868 to 1881, by the Baroness von Gruenewald. The baroness, whose maiden name was Julia Rossiter, was a sister of Mrs. Norman B. Judd of Chicago, and married in 1866 the Baron Otto von Gruenewald, chamberlain to Czar Alexander II. She died in Reval, Russia, in 1897.

PURE DYE HAND-SCREENED Printed Silks

$1 yard

So beautiful . . . so inexpensive, that this chance to buy them gives a big boost to your wardrobe plans. There are thousands of yards, enormously varied. Allover designs . . . small florals . . . the new types of geometrics . . . many striped novelties . . . multi-colors on light or dark grounds. And you'll dote on the monotones. They're in the new 1938 colors, muted and mezzo and expensive-looking. An extremely low price for such beautiful prints. 39 inches wide. $1 yard.

NEW, MYSTERIOUS SHADES IN Hopsacking

Hopsacking, in rayon-and-wool, is one of the most exciting new fabrics for Spring. It comes in misty monotones—off-shades that make unusual and lovely combinations. You'll find faded plum tones, faint greens, violets, dusky pinks—shades that are utterly different from those of the past seasons.

This loose, supple weave tailors beautifully and makes sewing a very simple matter. You'll have fun choosing color combinations from these flattering shades—and the satisfaction of knowing that your Spring dresses will be not only becoming—but very inexpensive. 39 inches wide. $1.25 yard.

STEAMERS—PLANES

Travel Men See Tourist Trade Soar

By Frederic Babcock.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—[Special.]—In spite of the fact that Europe this year will not have any outstanding spectacles such as last year's coronation in London and exposition in Paris to attract the American tourist, trans-Atlantic travel in 1938 shows signs of soaring above 1937's totals.

This was the forecast given to a Tribune representative today by a number of leaders of the travel industry—men who make a business of watching all the trends and basing their predictions on them. Here are some of the opinions:

Fred H. Dietz, publisher of the Travel Agent and Travelore: "Last year the coronation and Paris exposition brought about a tremendous surge eastward early in the season, but in the autumn there was quite a letdown. This year promises to be just the opposite. There will be few special spring attractions to provide an early start, but the trafic will reach its peak early in the summer and continue until well into the fall.

"Moreover, the bulk of both regular and cruise travel is coming more and more from the middle west. When I first started in the business any territory more than 50 to 100 miles west of New York was considered hopeless as far as getting ocean passengers was concerned. Later the line was set at 200 miles. Now it has gone clear to the Mississippi."

• • •

Elmer P. Thompson, editor of the Travel Agent: "Americans are discovering that the so-called off seasons—May, June, September, and October — are the best times to see Europe. In most of the countries over there nature puts on its best show in those months, and the countries as well as the ships going over are less crowded. I look for a heavy volume of travel throughout much of the year."

Edwin Robert Petre, director of the Institute of Foreign Travel: "Such attractions as the empire exhibition in Glasgow, the Oslo exposition, the Augustan celebration in Rome, and the Eucharistic congress in Budapest will draw Americans by the thousands. No matter what the stock market may or may not do, the people will still go on vacations, and a large percentage of them will be Europe bound."

Douglas Malcolm, general advertising manager of the American Express company: "The last two years have been travel habit-forming years, and travel habits are more easily formed than broken. World affairs remaining as they are, travel trends in 1938 will follow the course of 1937 and continue the upward trend."

• • •

H. P. Borer, general passenger manager of the Cunard-White Star, Ltd.: "Our view is that travel is going to show a marked improvement over 1937. In anticipation of a heightened volume of travel, both trans-Atlantic and cruises, Cunard-White Star has listed the most elaborate schedule of sailings in our history, and our booking organization has been geared to a higher and more efficient operating level to meet the expected improved conditions."

J. F. Brennan, passenger trafic manager of the United States lines: "We believe that, despite any temporary hesitation, the broad upward trend in business conditions here will be maintained and there is no reason whatever to doubt that Americans will continue to have, and to spend liberally, money for travel."

John J. Dwyer, passenger trafic manager of the Red Star Line: "The number of inquiries we are receiving for the Eucharistic congress in Budapest is astonishing. Also, nearly every agent who conducted tours with us last year has asked for additional space this year, indicating that our steamers again will carry capacity loads of passengers."

• • •

G. Hilmer Lundbeck, managing director of the Swedish-American Line: "It is my opinion that with improved business conditions we may anticipate even better results this year than those attained last year. The travel trend to the Scandinavian countries is steadily gaining in momentum and promises to continue unabated for years to come."

Paul Occhipinti, passenger trafic manager of the Italian Line: "If business improves, as many of us believe it will, the travel movement in 1938 will equal, if not surpass, that of 1937."

George C. Gaede, passenger trafic manager of the American Export Lines: "Last year was the biggest in our company's history. Our advance bookings are now about 35 per cent ahead of last year's. This speaks for itself."

Roman Kutylowski, resident director of the Gdynia-America Line: "We look forward to a substantial increase in trafic on our line this year."

GOING SOMEWHERE?

The Normandie, soon to leave New York on a cruise to Rio, will be the largest ship ever to cross the Caribbean and to sail as far south as Trinidad. On that island Port of Spain will celebrate its coming with an entertainment for the passengers on the evening of arrival. An oriental bazar will be held on the grounds of the country club.

A unique conducted summer tour will be that led by Dr. Herbert Spencer Dickey under the auspices of Thomas Cook. The group will be limited to ten persons and will leave New York June 17 for Ecuador, Peru, and Brazil, returning Sept. 13. Dr. Dickey was the first white man to descend the River Caqueta from its source in Colombia to the Amazon, and he made the first exploration of the River Tomo in Colombia. In 1931 he located the source of the Orinoco and made four "over the Andes and down the Amazon" trips. In the 1938 adventure he will guide the members of his party over the route traveled by De Orellana, discoverer of the Amazon. They will travel 1,500 miles through Ecuador. At Iquitos, Peru, a steamer will take them down the Amazon 2,056 miles to Para, Brazil.

Camera News Review

Does Romance Thrive on the Campus?

The Tribune's color cameraman was sent to the University of Illinois campus to photograph a coed whose beauty and charm were outstanding. He selected Miss Frances Douthitt of Chicago, whose picture appears at the left.

Foreword What part does romance play in college life today? And what is its subsequent effect on marriage? A Chicago mother, writing to the Tribune, protested that coeducational universities were "just mantraps." Consequently, she said, she was sending her daughter to a girls' school. In an effort to test the truth of this assertion, a cross-section of American college campuses was visited. The survey included a university in a small city (University of Illinois), one in a large city (Northwestern university), a girls' school (Smith college), and a men's school (Yale university). The following article, the first of a series of four, discusses the social side of student life at the University of Illinois.

By MARCIA WINN

THE COED at the University of Illinois disdains ankle sox and flat heeled shoes. Neither does she wear culottes or shorts. She wears little, in fact, which might detract from her sex or a possible date with that smooth young undergraduate whose fraternity pin she may be wearing, or regarding with covetous eyes.

● The coed does not realize it, but the clothes she wears probably make little or no difference in her popularity. The explanation is a simple matter of statistics: There are three boys to every girl on the Champaign-Urbana campus. This is a ratio that transcends any slight handicap which might be a major calamity to the ordinary girl.

● Any coed, if she knows her left foot from her right on the dance floor or is sufficiently personable that her dancing may be ignored, can have the rush of her life. And does.

● Furthermore, if she cannot dance, she can learn quickly, for the university, benign fairy godmother to campus romance, sponsors dancing lessons.

● She can date morning, noon, and night. Her companionship will be as diligently sought as that of the duchess of Windsor in her unattached days. Campus princes will come to her four weeks in advance of a dance to plead for a date. And she usually sports at least one fraternity pin during her four years at college.

"The university, benign fairy godmother of campus romance." Lorado Taft's alma mater group and (inset) "Campus Romance," a camera study by Pontiac studios.

One out of every three Illinois men marries an Illinois coed. One out of every six marries a classmate.

Looking at Hollywood with Ed Sullivan

Ed Sullivan, right, crowns Clark Gable and Myrna Loy as king and queen of the movies for 1937. Their royal highnesses, says Sullivan, were shaky before the microphone.

Movie Routine Is Disrupted by Demand for Stars

By ED SULLIVAN

SIGNS and portents in the entertainment skies indicate the continued trend of radio to Hollywood. The three national radio chains are enlarging their buildings here, and the bigger advertising agencies are adding to the man power already shipped west of the Rockies. The demand for movie names in broadcasting and the threat of television explain the westward trek of the radio industry. It must be on the ground here, and while it is to be doubted seriously that New York or Chicago ever will lose importance, the fact remains that this movie colony has become an important radio empire.

The movies tried to fight it out with radio, but the battle was one-sided. Today you have M-G-M sponsoring its own show, Warners providing another, and every studio represented on the air by individual ether wave favorites. In addition each movie studio is disrupted by the demands of those stars who are on the air. Production schedules on the movie lots are shot to pieces every day because of stars who must rush to radio rehersals. The answer to the eagerness of movie stars to fulfill radio contracts is (1) the exploitation value, (2) the pay of $5,000 for a three-minute performance.

However, it is surprising that not more good stories come out of the Hollywood radio studios. The Mae West excitement was the only real yarn to emerge and explode on page one. To be sure, there are daily temperamental flareups, but nothing spectacular.

Columbia studio attachés tell me of all the movie celebs who pass through their broadcasting portals none rate so highly as Joan Crawford with the engineers and technicians. It traces back to an appearance she made on the Monday Theater of the Air program in New York. Harris Kirk was the program director, and he confesses that he didn't know exactly what to expect from the famous glamor girl of the screen. He expected her to be a trifle supercilious, but, to his delighted amazement, she came in differently. "I don't know much about this," she said, "and I wish you fellows would help me out." From then on everybody in the studio was in her corner.

She said that she didn't feel comfortable in her high-heeled shoes, so Kirk assured her it was perfectly all right for her to work in her stockinged feet. He got a rug for her to stand on in front of the mike, but after the rug had been placed in position they found that it skidded on the polished floor, so Kirk got a second rug and crudely stitched them together with horse blanket pins. It worked. The one rug, anchored to the other, provided perfect footing.

Miss Crawford had turned in a magnificent job of broadcasting as the program neared an end. At this point the script called for her to back away from the mike, to give the illusion of a voice fading in the distance. As she stepped back there was a raspy metallic sound and Kirk, to his horror, saw that one of the huge safety pins in the rugs had come loose and that the sharp point was directly in Joan's backward path. Unable to call out a warning, and too far away to get to her, Kirk saw her silk-stockinged foot lift and then impale itself on the pin.

"She quivered all over," Kirk recalled, "but she didn't let out a single peep. They talk a lot about troupers who forget everything in their insistence that 'the show must go on,' but Joan gave us a concrete example of it. It was the most thrilling illustration of courage and self-control I've ever seen."

Radio men predict Loretta Young will be the standout television star, because her features are ideally suited to its unusual requirements.

Autograph fans have been blamed for everything. Clark

Radio Continues Its Trek Toward Hollywood

The night I presented them with their Chicago Tribune-New York News crowns on the "Good News" program both of them were shaky. There is something about that tiny metal instrument that throws fear into the most intrepid. John Barrymore summed it all up in a typically Barrymoresque speech at N. B. C. "Gentlemen," he said to the studio attachés, "I am not a cowardly man, and I have looked into the eyes of cold and sullen audiences in theaters, but there is something so completely impersonal and so sneeringly eloquent about that little gadget which you call a microphone that I feel an immediate urge for a drink." The drink was produced immediately, for radio officials have so often seen stout-hearted performers quail that they are prepared with artificial and liquid tonics.

Of course, movie stars now have become fairly accustomed to broadcasting. So many guest star hours are on the air that it is a poor movie celeb indeed who doesn't make at least six radio appearances in a twelvemonth.

However, there is no denying that there is a tension and hush to a radio studio that gets under the skin. Mary Livingstone, who is on the air every Sunday, is still unnerved by it. She betrays it by coughing repeatedly just before reading a line. Jack Benny, like most of the big performers, has a record made of each broadcast off the air, so that the cast can hear it and learn their faults, the better to avoid them in future broadcasts. For weeks Benny was irritated by the record, because this raspy noise was plainly evident.

The studio called in sound engineers to deaden the acoustics of the broadcasting theater, thinking that the strange noise came from the vibration of some foreign body in the walls. Nothing worked. They finally learned that the curious noise on the records was Mary Livingstone's nervous cough.

Movie celebs who appear on the Edgar Bergen program tell me that the strangest sensation is provided by Charlie McCarthy. The little dummy is so completely human that the movie stars find themselves talking to him just as though he were a flesh-and-blood character. After the Gable broadcast Gable stayed to say good-by to Bergen. They shook hands, and as Clark moved away he heard McCarthy call out, "You might say good-by to me, too, Mr. Gable." Clark turned hastily and apologetically and was about to offer his hand to the little dummy when he realized his mistake and withdrew it in confusion.

John Barrymore (at right): "There is something so completely impersonal and so sneeringly eloquent about that little gadget"—the microphone.

Joan Crawford goes in stockinged feet at one of her broadcasts. She is popular with studio technicians.

when he is permitted to ad lib. Confined to a script, Raft is uneasy and halting in delivery; ad libbing, he is a fine radio performer. Roland Young is well regarded by radio men because in the broadcast with Donald Dickson, a youngster, Young took the kid aside and for twenty minutes coached him on how to read his lines. Wallace Beery startled the radio attachés because he is very quiet and reserved. George M. Cohan is a trial because it is almost impossible to confine him to the rigid limits of time. His "Song and Dance Man" broadcast ran one minute and thirty seconds over the allotted time, while control room engineers tore out their hair in anguish.

Loretta Young is very nervous before a broadcast. Polly Ann, her kid sister, saved the day for her on one occasion. Just before Loretta went on the air she received a sisterly wire: "Keep it clean, Toots. Youth of America listening in." The telegram relaxed Loretta and she did a swell job. Television experts say that Loretta will be the No. 1 star of radio when television arrives; that she has the perfect facial features for it.

Most of the big programs broadcasting from Hollywood are called upon to do two broadcasts, because of the difference between coast time and the various clocks of the country. In addition to these two broadcasts some of them even do what they call a "preview" broadcast, which is really a dress rehersal of the actual program. In this preview, which does not go out on the air, they test out jokes and bits of material for audience reaction, and either delete or embellish as a result of the audience applause or lack of it.

To make easier the task of luring laughs from a studio audience, before the broadcast the comedian warms up the audience for five or ten minutes with jokes and banter. Jack Benny, Phil Baker, Jack Haley, Eddie Cantor, Edgar Bergen, Bob Hope, and all of them resort to this device, finding that an audience relaxes because of it. On the "Good News" show of M-G-M Georgie Jessel serves as the audience warmer-upper.

Then the announcer takes charge and instructs the audience that he will signal them when to applaud and that they will please applaud until he gives the signal to stop. "The idea," he explains, "is for all of us here to let the listening audience know that we are having a perfectly good time here in the studio."

The liberty-loving Americans in the studio audience, however, do not mind this regimentation of applause. After all, they're all in on free tickets for a free show that more often than not can win all the applause necessary on the merits of the program.

Voice of the Movie Fan

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: May I say that I think Tyrone Power is a splendid actor and is on his way to the very tip top? He has done wonderfully well in "Thin Ice," "Café Metropole," and "Love Is News," and he can still go farther. His radio performances, too, are wonderful. Three cheers for Tyrone Power! May he always be as great.

Will you please print his picture if you have any extra space, and tell me a little about him? Thank you very much,

LOUISE NAPO.

TYRONE POWER
Fan says he's on way to the top.

Editor's note: Mr. Power's popularity seems steadily on the upbuild. . . . He was born in Cincinnati, O., May 5, 1914. He's 6 feet tall, weighs 155 pounds and has dark brown hair and brown eyes. His hobby is amateur photography with a 16 mm. camera. He swims, plays tennis, and rides horseback when not engaged at the studio. He is not married.

Dear Miss Tinée: Being an interested reader of your column I would like to add my bit [if I may] to its continued success.

Why in the world, will somebody tell me, don't they give Ramon Novarro a decent part? His comeback picture "The Sheik Steps Out" was a disappointment to me, as I believe Mr. Novarro is capable of much finer work. He certainly has an excellent voice and should be given a chance to use it. What about Nelson Eddy and Allan Jones? I should like very much to see Ramon Novarro get a break in a picture of the type that these gentlemen do so well. I say "shed the sheets" for something more becoming than the worn out story of the "Sheik." That was all right for a while, but, too much is too much.

MISS RITA REILLEY.

P. S.: A short history of Mr. Novarro would be appreciated by Yours Truly.

Editor's note: Every little bit added to what we have, helps us a little bit more. Sorry you were disappointed.

Ramon Novarro's real name is Ramon Samaniegoes. He was born in Durango, Mexico, Feb. 6, 1905. He's 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighs 155 pounds and has black hair and brown eyes. Educated in Mexico.

Dear Editor: I have just read an interesting page from your paper in which you tell the world—through Rosalind Shaffer—about Gene Autry.

The honest and friendly article warrants this letter. I enjoy reading about Hollywood and its people when the facts of their lives are as well told as here.

In no place in the article was it mentioned that Gene was a world champion rider or did marvelous feats of daring. He isn't and he doesn't, but he has a double who has been working right along with him and helping plenty to go up the ladder who is a world champion rider and who does feats that stand out as REAL. If a man's services are worth $500,000 to his company, naturally he is not allowed to risk such service by doing the things Western Pictures require of the hero. Gene's double—Kenneth Cooper—is as outstanding a character in his way as is Gene himself. I have known him for years and believe your capable reporter could get a story from his stunts and life that would be of real interest to your readers.

Falling off his horse and being dragged by the foot caught in the stirrup at a price per yard. Jumping his horse off a sixty-foot cliff into a lake and jumping off his horse in midair—allowing a four-horse team to drive a stagecoach over him and catching onto the back axle and then pulling himself up over the back of the coach—and other stunts that we sit in the comfortable seat and thrill over.

Just an idea. I know that Hollywood doesn't want to belittle the box office stars by admitting that doubles do their dangerous work, but the reason for the double is so intelligent, and the deed is done by a live person who is trying to make an honest living in an honest occupation and one that is as romantic to read about as any you can name.

Thanks for your time.

CHARLES LEE HYDE.

Editor's note: We're with you! Three cheers for those courageous doubles. Thanks for your letter and your interest.

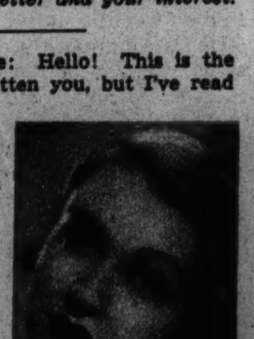
Dear Miss Tinée: Hello! This is the first time I've written you, but I've read your columns for several years. Would it be possible for you to print the cast of that Ritz Brothers' farce, "Life Begins in College"? In addition, may I add a word of praise for my favorite, Joan Crawford? I think she's swell! I'd also like beautiful Constance Bennett to know that her work in "Topper" was swell, and I think she has a grand future. Hats off also to Cary Grant, whom I never liked until I saw that same "Topper."



CONSTANCE BENNETT
Her work in "Topper" called "swell."

And to you, Miss Tinée, a most happy and prosperous New Year! May your every wish come true. And thank you!

Dear Miss Tinée: After reading your column for some time I think I should say something. Why is it that Jackie Cooper, my favorite child screen star, doesn't make more pictures? I think he is a very good actor and should make more pictures. The last time I saw him was in "The Devil Is a Sissy," which was very good.

I would like to know if he is making a picture now; if so, the name of it.

Yours truly, JAMES NORMAN.

Editor's note: Jackie will soon appear in "Boy of the Street," for Monogram studio. Maureen O'Connor, 14-year-old screen and radio singer, will play opposite him. So watch the papers and one of these days you'll probably see the picture listed at one of your favorite movie theaters.

Speed Is the Word for the Amazing Odlums

They Set the Pace in Flying and Financial Worlds

By CHARLES COLLINS

THE GREAT menagerie of contemporary American celebrities contains two shy creatures bearing the curious name of Odlum, man and wife, who are causing the populace to stand at gaze. Both are famous for the speed of their operations in widely different branches of life. Mr. Odlum is apparently the fastest money maker in financial history. Mrs. Odlum, better known as Jacqueline Cochran, is the present champion aviatrix, holding the world's record of 293.05 miles an hour for six flights over a three-kilometer course. Breath-taking, therefore, appears to be the right word for describing the Odlums. They move toward their respective goals with unparalleled celerity.

Floyd B. Odlum, who might also be called the Atlas corporation, rolled a snowball of $39,000 into a mountain of $140,000,000 in ten years. The first seven years of this achievement were relatively slow; he had only $10,000,000 in 1929. Then came the depression, when other fortunes shrank, while Odlum's grew as if by enchantment. During the first three years of that period of panic he bought twenty-two distressed investment corporations, and his Atlas organization became an economic giant, controling banks, industries, transportation companies, movie studios, public utility systems, fruit plantations, and other far-flung enterprises. In 1934 he added Atlas up to $140,000,000 in unquestionable values.

Wall street calls him "the Farmer" because of his casual western manner. Another description, which had a vogue when Atlas was engulfing the stocks of distressed investment corporations, is "the octopus of the depression." Perhaps a better figure of speech is the phrase of one his recent biographers: "A glorified tinker, mending battered corporate vessels." He challenges the label-inventing mind. He might even be called, without abusive intent, "the old clothes man of the panic," for he haggled shrewdly at corporation back doors, buying frayed securities for much less than they were worth.

Odlum foresaw and outguessed the depression in the summer of 1929, when the stock market boom was at its peak. He sold securities under his control at the fantastically high prices which then prevailed and had $10,000,000 in cash when the debacle came. Then he waited calmly until stocks sank to their equally fantastic lows and went shopping for bargains. This is the story of his operations in its simplest terms. In technical details, of course, his procedure was highly complex.

The field of investment trusts, in which Odlum specialized, should be explained at this point for the instruction of the lay reader. Such corporations buy securities representing a wide range of industries and hold them for sale at a profit, deriving income in the meantime from dividends and interest. They issue their own stocks, purchasers of which thus become part owners of the "portfolios" which form their assets. These trust shares offer an opportunity for the small and uninformed investor to diversify and to avoid "putting all eggs in one basket," under theoretically expert and conservative management.

Investment trusts have been established in England for many years, but they did not become a marked feature of the American financial structure until the speculative period of the 1920s. With the stock market boom, the eagerness of small investors to ride the rising wave of fortune, and the apparent safety that such trusts offered to amateur speculators, they began to spring up like mushrooms. In 1929 there were 640 investment trusts in this country.

After the crash the market prices of investment trust shares shrank with accelerating speed. They suffered acutely from the psychology of fear that swept the nation; in many cases their market quotations on any given day were far below the coincidental market values of their "portfolios." Odlum, a keen analyst of such conditions by instinct and training, saw this condition and quietly entered the market as a buyer with his $10,000,000 in cash on hand. Moreover, he bought for control of trusts and the "long pull."

Between February, 1930, and June, 1933, Odlum's Atlas corporation, itself an investment trust stocks of which were owned by a small group of his associates, acquired control of the following twenty-two portfolios:

Widlow, Inc.; All American General corporation; Exide Securities corporation; Power and Light Securities trust; Selected Stocks, Inc.; Ungerleider Financial corporation; Iroquois Share corporation; General Empire corporation; Jackson & Curtis Investment Associates; Sterling Securities corporation; Chatham Phenix Allied corporation; Southwestern Investors; Chain Stores Stocks, Inc.; National Securities Investment company; Aviation Securities corporation; American, British and Continental corporation; Atlantic Securities corporation; Federated Capital corporation; Goldman-Sachs Trading corporation; Shenandoah corporation; Blue Ridge corporation, and American Investors, Inc.

Since then the history of Odlum of Atlas has been concerned primarily with management in many fields. The investment trusts that he absorbed controled various partly disabled businesses, which he has reorganized. He became a jack-of-all-firms, and has yet to find an industry to baffle his amazing executive skill. His influence, authority, and financial skill have extended into public utilities, banks, bus lines, river barges, hotel equipment, fruit farms, motion pictures, women's wear shops on 5th avenue, hotel management, banana plantations, and steamships. The Greyhound line, Paramount films, Madison Square Garden, United Fruit company, Bonwit Teller's, the Albert Pick company—all these and various other businesses have been provinces of the Atlas empire.

• • •

This new arrival among the American financial giants is the son of a Methodist minister, whose boyhood was unprivileged. He worked his way through college at the University of Colorado, taking the A. B. and LL. B. degrees, and his first job after graduation was at a salary of $50 a month. His background is that of the average middle class American citizen, and his rise from comparative poverty to enormous wealth is a striking refutation of current political propaganda in which "economic royalists" are represented as a feudal class into which the unprivileged may not enter.

Odlum is now 46 years old; a thin, wiry, and restless man with a narrow face, sandy hair, a high forehead and bald spot, and bright blue eyes behind spectacles. He dresses with less than the usual millionaire's attention to styles in haberdashery and tailoring; some of his critics say that he affects an air of pseudo-rusticity. He gives the impression of a cold, nerveless mental life; but, although he kept his head when almost the entire nation was frightened out of its wits, the tension at which he has lived during the last ten years has left its mark upon him in the form of a jittery stomach. He is compelled to follow a strict regimen of diet which excludes alcohol, red meat, and raw fruit.

His boyhood was spent in small towns in Michigan, where his father held pastorates. When he was 15 years old he spent a summer riding ostriches in races at an amusement park in Grand Rapids. His father's income averaged about $800 a year. His high school years were spent at Hillsdale, Mich., and then, because his mother had become tubercular, the family moved to Boulder, Colo., on medical advice. There Floyd Odlum entered the University of Colorado, where his classmates included Gene Fowler, the novelist and film scenario writer. Fowler's exploits in journalism inspired Odlum to rivalry, and he worked part time on the Boulder Camera, a daily newspaper, and the Denver Post. His campus activities were numerous. He managed the dramatic club, the annual, and the comic opera production; he was a member of the debating team for four years; he pole-vaulted one year; he served on the junior prom committee; he won a prize for oratory. His wage earning jobs included an assistant librarianship and management of fraternity houses as tourists' lodgings during the summer. In brief, he was the typical American college student with his way to make, plugging away in all directions.

In the "Coloradan" of 1915, the year he took his law degree, one may find a picture of a lean-jawed youth in cap and gown with this description:

After his graduation he hung out his lawyer's shingle in the small town of Rock Springs, Wyo., but after a few months he moved to Salt Lake City, where he found employment as a clerk in the legal department of the Utah Power and Light company, a subsidiary of the Electric Bond and Share holding company, at a salary of $50 a month. His pay was soon increased to $75, whereupon he married Hortense McQuarrie, a Salt Lake girl. This marriage ended with a divorce on Oct. 7, 1935. Two children were born of it, sons named Stanley Arnold and Bruce Wendell Odlum.

Recognition of his skill in corporation law came swiftly. Within two years he was called to New York by the firm of Simpson, Thacher & Bartlett, attorneys for Electric Bond and Share, who paid him $100 a

Does Cupid Haunt the Campus?

These are typical of the coeds of Illinois, where there are three boys to every girl on the campus.

Dancing and Dating at Illinois

All of this may be one reason why Illinois coeds come from as far east as New Jersey, as far south as the Mississippi gulf coast, and as far west as Oregon. What girl would not think twice before turning down a silver platter on which three supplicant men are extended?

University officials encourage dances known as "mixers." Here the timid, retiring girl who is a member of no sorority and the equally shy boy, also an "independent" (as the non-Greek letter wearers are known) can meet.

"There are plenty of boys, plenty of girls, but no way to get them together. Now, these mixers are held at least once a month, sometimes twice. They should help matters."

As a consequence, romance stalks high of head, lavish of hand, across the wide campus at Champaign and Urbana. In Georgian dormitory with walls of coral brick and slate blue roof, in pretentious sorority house, high-pillared as an old colonial mansion or peaked and parapeted as a French château, or in the simply furnished coöperative houses, romance—or the wishful thinking of it—is never absent.

• • •

Ninety-nine per cent of the sorority girls date. More than 60 per cent of the independent girls do also, although not on so glamorous a scale. More jeweled fraternity pins gleam from coeds' sweaters than in any other midwestern university I have seen. "Why," explained one fraternity man, "you have to pin a girl to date her."

And, like a snowball getting larger at every tiny turn in its rolling, marriage often results. Perhaps it may be secret, performed in Covington, Ind., near dawn the morning following the annual Senior ball, when the gayer couples traditionally drive over to Danville, Ill., for breakfast. If secret, it rarely is announced during the school year, as the coed then automatically is barred from living in sorority house or dormitory. More often there is a rash of marriages following June graduation.

This leads up to more statistics. One out of every three Illinois men marries an Illinois coed. One out of every six marries a classmate. One out of every 150 men, one out of every 50 coeds, marries during college years, the man usually remaining in school.

Illinois coeds come from as far east as New Jersey, as far south as the Mississippi gulf coast, and as far west as Oregon. From eight different states came the young women of this group, who formed a football court of honor for a pageant that preceded one of the big gridiron games of last fall.

It all hinges on the belief, so proudly repeated by the coeds, that Illinois, with its 13,000 students, is the most collegiate university in the Big Ten. Its students, having none of the distractions of a large city, turn to horseplay and each other.

In brief, they date, and they dance.

On tingling fall days, when frost-touched maples and elms have turned the campus into a haze of scarlet and yellow-gold, more than 30 dances are underway each week-end that the football team isn't playing in its home stadium.

Dancing is the coed's major sport, her major activity, her after dinner soda mint and before breakfast elixir. Not only is the average coed a good dancer, but the average man is also. He has to be—to get a date.

There are good reasons for this, for at Illinois dances there are no stag lines, no cutting, no program dances. When a coed goes to a dance, her escort is her partner for the evening. Occasionally couples trade partners, but usually it is a one man affair.

Most of the sorority girls jump up from the dinner table nightly to practice new steps. If no men are around they dance with each other.

With well trained dancing feet and plenty of aspirants for her hand, the coed who does not average four dates a week is not using her head. This does not include the popular "coke dates," in which a man and a coed huddle in a delicatessen booth of an afternoon or evening, sipping soft drinks and munching ice while a slightly asthmatic young guitarist with more energy than ability whangs and sings and sings and whangs.

College Life as the Coed Lives It

No, by dates that count the coed refers to something more elaborate. It may be a Friday or Saturday night dance at Bradley's, a public dance hall patronized almost exclusively by students; it may be drinks (with noise and song) at Katzima's, a Champaign tavern with superior décor and some liquor. It may be a fraternity or sorority dance, or a big prom. Or it might be an evening of heavy smooching or pitching woo (the current campus slang for necking), usually engaged in without blush or qualm in a sorority parlor.

Fully half of the 1,127 sorority girls date every night in the week. Library dates are popular, strange as it may seem, with the couple sitting side by side in the university library, seemingly immersed in studious research. A popular coed also has at least two coke dates a day. A 5 cent bus ride also will take her away from the other thousands. Or she and he might even stroll, hand in hand, along the elm-arched Broadwalk which bisects the campus.

But these are only incidental dates.

Wednesday, Friday, Saturday, or Sunday afternoon are the important times. Those are the hours when to be alone is evidence that the coed either has not read Dale Carnegie, Marjorie Hillis, or Havelock Ellis . . . or that she's just not the romantic type.

There are few radiantly beautiful girls on the Illinois campus. Nor do they seem, upon casual survey, to be overly sophisticated, although the majority smoke (possibly 85 per cent of the sorority girls; 50 per cent of the independents), drink, do a lot of fancy talking, usually in slang, and high stepping, and wear an overdose of makeup.

Some of the smart houses of the 26 sororities boast of the number of their advanced thinkers. Others take equal pride in the fact that possibly half of their sisters are sophisticates. Others, smaller houses made up of what the men call crocks (bad dates), are considered sedate.

• • •

And the men? "They must be smooth," one coed explained. "You know, have lots of poise, and be good dancers."

The men students make a fetish of sweaters and slacks, collars open at the neck and no ties. They like their liquor hard (and can buy it 100 yards away from the campus) and their girls talented. They, even more so than the coeds, restrict their language to slang. Fully one-third of the men work their way through school. Although the university rules that a student may not have a car, many of them do have cars, and with permission, on such slight grounds as needing them for transportation to and from work!

The fraternity man (there are 2,744 men in 59 fraternities) spends an average of $96 a month; the independent man, $43. The fraternity man says all you have to do to get a good date is "dance well." The independent man says you have to have money.

"It costs $2.50 to date," one said reflectively. "There's $1.50 for the dance, 50 cents for the taxi. Cokes and so on after the dance take another 50 cents, at least. . . . Then there's the extra laundry and cleaning."

Freshmen pledges to fraternity or sorority are limited as to the number of dates they can have a month, but many indulge in sneak dates when they go to some little frequented spot in Champaign or Urbana. For the first two years a coed generally dates a variety of men. Her final two years she concentrates on one, usually the man whose fraternity pin she is wearing.

At many universities, pinhanging (the act of giving a coed a fraternity pin) signifies betrothal. At Illinois, the coeds and men alike say it means only going steady. Occasionally the couple are engaged, but not necessarily.

But what is the correlation between marriages and coeducation—at Illinois?

There are innumerable surveys. The Stewart Howe Alumni service, which is to the Greek letter alumni what a card file is to a secretary, in questioning

Men Greatly Outnumber the Girls

1905-31 graduates of three typical fraternities and sororities, found 89 per cent of the women married and 83.5 per cent of the men. Of the women, four out of ten married fraternity men from Illinois, while four out of one hundred married independent men. Of the men, 16.5 per cent married Illinois sorority girls and 4 per cent nonsorority girls.

A more comprehensive study, made of 6,686 depression graduates showed that 37.7 per cent of the men and 29.3 per cent of the women are married less than two years after graduation. Five years afterward, 63.9 per cent of the men are married and 46 per cent of the women. Eight years out, 80.4 per cent of the men are married, 56.8 per cent of the women.

Out of the 3,323 marriages, there were 44 divorces and 14 separations, or 1.74 per cent.

• • •

But as for the correlation, if there is any, this was answered by the house mother of the Gamma Phi Beta sorority, Mrs. Gaines Greene, majestic and white haired, who for 11 years has watched the coeds come and go.

"It is 50 per cent," she said emphatically. "Fully 50 per cent of the girls either fall in love, become engaged or get married while here."

In certain groups, it is far higher. In another sorority, for example, all but two of last June's graduates were married before August.

In the independent groups it is lower. In this, where the girl does little dating because she (1) does not meet enough men, (2) is unable to afford the necessary clothes, (3) is working her way through school, (4) or is unattractive, the correlation is slight.

Although the university officials pooh-pooh the idea of secret marriages being a factor in college life, the undergraduates prattle of many. One coed recalled the secret marriage last fall of two football stars to two sophomores. The coeds, their plans revealed, left school. Others recalled four or five. The Alumni magazine rarely misses an issue without a paragraph such as this: "Announced, on July 19, the marriage of Joe College and Susie Coed, on Feb. 1, in Covington, Ind."

"Well, why not?" one undergraduate asked belligerently. "That's why you come to a university, to have some fun!"

That New Coiffure

By ELEANOR NANGLE

YOU could have knocked us down with a hair net when a London hair stylist who frequently comes to the middle west said that "leave your hair alone" would be pretty good advice for a lot of women these days. Here was one hairdresser who shared our view that one must walk softly when one goes in for the fancy hair-do.

There's a place for the elaborate coiffure, just as there is a place in every woman's life for the completely impractical, utterly divine gown. The fancy hairdress is for your frivolous moments, just as the misty moonlight-and-roses gown is. The occasion must be right. The fussy dress and the fussy coiffure are tawdry looking — and not sensible—outside their proper party setting.

Think of the elaborate hairdress, like the thrilling gown, as a luxury. Indulge in both by all means if you can, but restrict their wear to the festive moments. It's your day-in, day-out hairdress that is of greatest concern to the average woman. It must have two sterling virtues—it must be becoming and it must be practical.

There can be no hard and fast rules about becomingness. "How should I wear my hair?" is a beauty query the honest beauty adviser simply can't answer sight unseen. And it's one all too freqently found in her mail bag. How any woman should wear her hair depends entirely on her individual contour and on her type. The dissatisfied woman can do one of two things—experiment for herself until she finds the right style or consult a sane hair stylist and abide by his advice.

It's rather important not to be chronically dissatisfied, as some women are. Once you find a smooth and simple hairdress, stick to it for everyday wear. The wise hair stylist knows that for the woman whose hair is straight the correct permanent is the foundation of the practical hairdress. If the permanent is a good one and the hair properly shaped it is entirely possible to brush the hair frequently and to comb it easily without having the whole structure collapse to floor-mop mussiness.

Remember, too, that consistent care of the hair is all important. No artist can create a good coiffure with hair the texture of hay. No amount of cutting and finger waving will turn the trick. Pay a good price for your permanent. Beware of the cut-rate shop. There are few things as expensive as the cheap permanent!

When you want to be gala, have a gala hairdress. Bring the hair up off the ears and off the neck. Have the artist do it in curls, puffs, or anything you both fancy. For good measure, stick in a whimsical ornament, one that is the right accent to your costume, either amusing or purely picturesque.

All hairdresses these days are divided into two classes, simple and silly. Be simple by day and silly by evening — but let there be no overlapping!

White hair must be perfectly groomed. The casual coiffure is risky for the mature woman—it looks straggly unless every hair is in place. The neckline must be clean, the hair suavely waved.

Do You Like Desserts Elaborate or Simple? Here Are Both

By MARY MEADE

THE elaborate and the simple in desserts are pictured today. The pineapple daffodil cake is a special-occasion treat for birthday and party appearance. The apple rolls are an everyday dessert, but a very good one.

APPLE ROLLS

2 cups prepared biscuit mix.
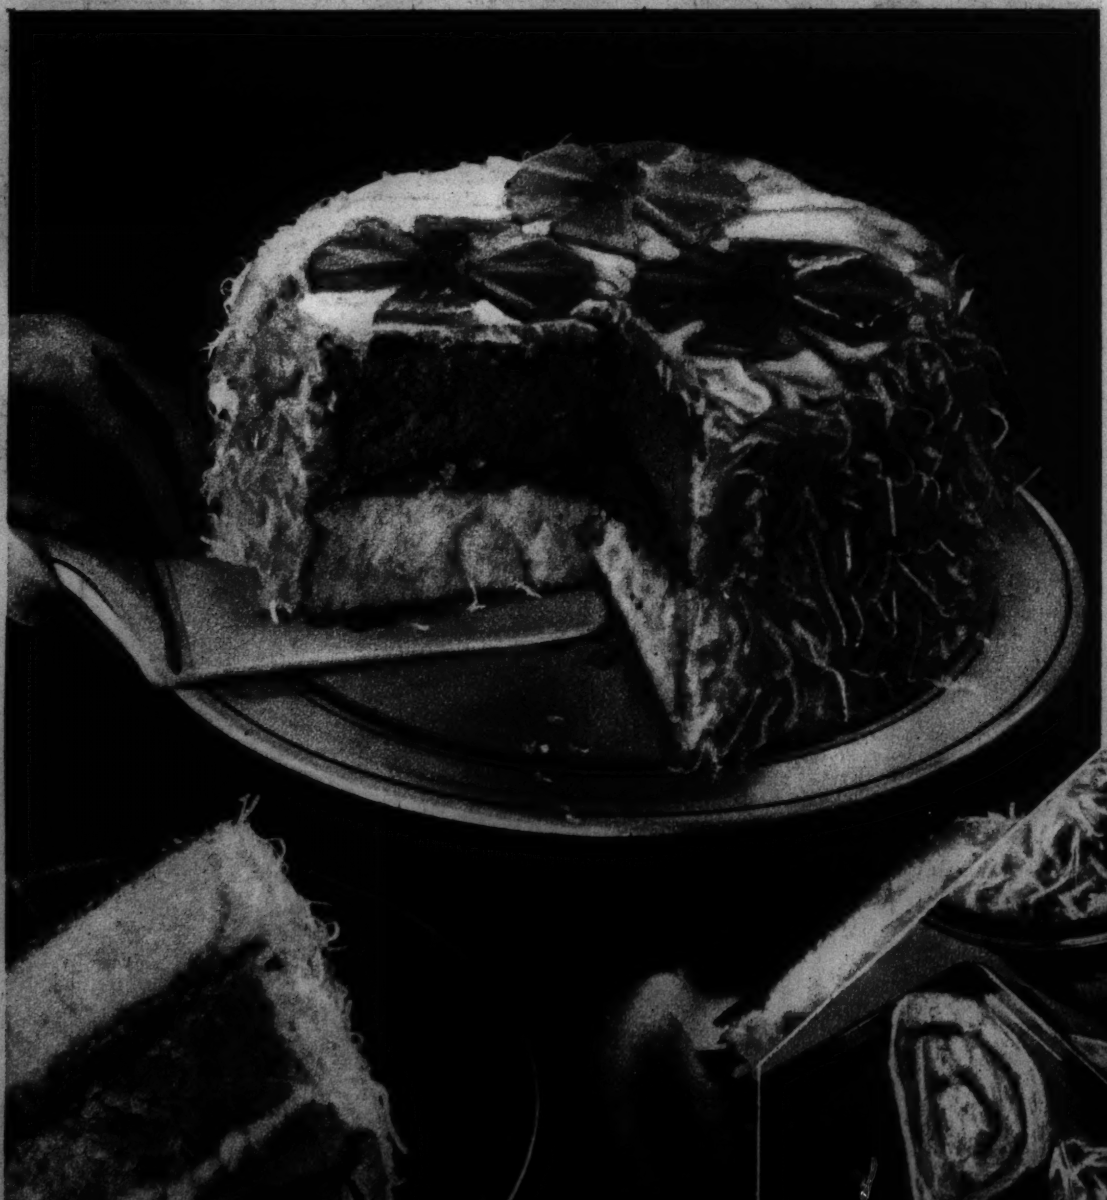
1 cup chopped apples.
½ cup brown sugar.
½ teaspoon nutmeg.
1 teaspoon cinnamon.
⅛ teaspoon salt.
Grated American cheese.

Blend the prepared biscuit mix and the milk, making a soft dough. Roll the dough lightly on a floured board to a fourth inch in thickness. Spread with chopped apples and sprinkle with sugar, spices, and salt, which have been mixed. Roll as for jelly roll and place on a greased cookie sheet. Bake for 30 minutes at 425 degrees. Slice and serve hot with grated American cheese sprinkled over each portion. The cheese may be sprinkled over the apples and rolled with the dough if preferred. Or the cheese-topped individual servings may be returned to the oven for a moment to speed melting the cheese.

The pineapple daffodil cake recipe is pretty long to be printed, as it includes instructions for making the two layers, the filling, and the frosting for this party dessert. However, the complete recipe is available in mimeographed form for those wishing copies. Please send a stamped, self-addressed envelope when writing for the recipe. Address Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

NEXT WEEK: The breakfast toast.



Pineapple daffodil cake is made with an angel food layer and a sponge cake layer, joined with pineapple filling and frosted with an uncooked icing. The cake may be given a party appearance by decorating the sides with coconut and the top with pineapple flowers.

At right: Apple rolls are a simple, easily prepared dessert. These were made with a prepared biscuit mix, chopped apples, brown sugar, cinnamon, nutmeg, and grated cheese. The cheese may be rolled into the filling along with the apples, or sprinkled on each serving.

Heat Wave "Eyes" for Fog-Bound Air Pilots

Infra-Red Ray Device Warns of Obstacles

By WAYNE THOMIS

SWIRLING FOG, impenetrable darkness, dense snow clouds, or heavy rain squalls long have been sources of danger for airplanes in flight and for ships at sea, because they make it impossible for pilots of these craft to see obstacles which might lie ahead. This inability to see rocky shores or granite peaks has been directly responsible for tragedy after tragedy.

These dangers, however, may be materially reduced in the near future if a device which still is under development by engineers and physicists in the United States and England is proved practical for everyday use. At the moment the instrument is on the military secret lists of both countries, but considerable information concerning it has leaked out in recent months through unofficial sources.

The instrument, described in its simplest possible terms, is an infra-red eye which "sees" through fog, darkness, snow, dust, or cloud and indicates on electrometer dials the direction of objects thus "seen." This eye, unlike the human eye, does not see light waves. Instead it is sensitive only to heat waves, sometimes called infra-red waves, which every object in nature emits in varying strengths.

Undoubtedly this brief description seems to indicate the eye is an outlandish instrument—a dream device which might be perfected some time in the twenty-first century. But the truth is that the infra-red eye already is receiving serious consideration from hard-headed army engineers and from airline and steamship executives, who first of all are practical men.

• • •

The army has seized upon the instrument as a wonderful defensive weapon against air raiders. The army men see in it a weapon which can be used to penetrate cloud screens behind which raiding bombers now can hide in safety. Coupling it with an anti-aircraft battery, they say, will enable them to fire with great accuracy at airplanes which might be flying above a cloud layer.

This conception of the infra-red eye considers it as an invisible, self-focusing searchlight. The angle at which the eye received the heat rays from the enemy aircraft squadron could easily be determined. This in itself would lay a line for anti-aircraft sighting.

If a number of these eyes were based around a city it would be easy to determine the exact altitude of raiders and thus make it possible for the gunners to time their fuses perfectly. It is a simple problem in solid geometry to determine the distance above the earth of a squadron of planes "sighted" by a number of the eyes placed at known distances from each other.

With the altitude, the line of flight, and the relative speed of the raiders known, it is no trick for modern anti-aircraft batteries to place shells so that they will intercept the airplanes. Anti-aircraft difficulties come when planes are constantly varying height, course, and speed. Raiders above clouds would not do this, because they would consider themselves safe from ground observation.

The uses of the eye are no less important in fields of commerce. Fitted to an airplane and focused to "look" straight ahead, the eye would give flyers plenty of warning if they were approaching a mountain into which they might otherwise smash. With a range of five miles the eye would give a pilot a two-and-a-half-minute warning of danger if he was proceeding through fog at a speed of 120 miles an hour.

The device would be equally effective as a warning against the approach of other airplanes, although the interval for a change in course would not be so great.

At sea the eye would be even more effective. Operating at about the same range, it would warn helmsmen of the presence of icebergs, other ships, or rocky shores which might lie in the course of a vessel equipped with the infra-red indicator.

• • •

How, you ask, can such an instrument operate? It has been explained by Dr. Thomas M. Beck, The Tribune's science editor, as follows:

"Physicists have found that heat rays are wavelike electromagnetic disturbances in space, just as light is. They travel at the same speed and obey the same optical laws as does light. In short, they are light, but of a wave length too long to affect the eye.

"When passed with light through a prism these heat rays fall in the region outside the red end of the spectrum; hence they are also called infra-red rays.

"All forms of matter at temperatures above absolute zero, which takes in everything on earth as well as all heavenly bodies, give off heat rays. Naturally, hot bodies give off more than do cold; the total heat radiated is roughly proportional to the fourth power of the absolute temperature.

"The emitted rays cover a wide range of wave lengths—approximately .0003 to .0006 inch—but the average wave length becomes shorter with increasing temperature.

"Strictly speaking, these heat rays are not heat, but a form of light. However, like light, they are converted to heat when absorbed by matter. Different kinds of matter differ in absorbing power for heat rays, just as they differ for light.

"The rays are detected by absorbing them and . . . measuring the resulting increase in temperature. A thermometer with a blackened tip would be a workable though crude detector.

"A still more sensitive instrument uses two fine blackened platinum wires, one exposed and one shielded, as one pair of parallel resistances of a Wheatstone bridge. After the other resistances are adjusted so that no current flows through the bridge, any change in heat radiation falling on the exposed wire changes its temperature and therefore its resistance. The change in resistance in turn causes a current to flow through the bridge. By proper amplification of this current extremely small temperature changes can be detected.

"Heat rays are bent less than is visible light in passing through a prism. They are consequently less bent in passing through the water droplets that comprise clouds and fog, whose opacity is not due to the absorption of light, but to the scattering of it by repeated refraction.

"Heat ray patterns can therefore penetrate fog or haze much farther without distortion than can light images. A photograph made on film sensitized to heat rays can show distant objects invisible to the eye. Moreover, since most objects at ordinary temperatures give off these rays, such a film can photograph nonluminous objects in the dark."

• • •

The new infra-red eye is an unusually sensitive heat ray detector. The latest work on it was done by F. D. Aldridge of England in conjunction with English army engineers, and by the U. S. army engineer corps in conjunction with Bell laboratories here.

Last December at Fort Monmouth, N. J., a demonstration of the American version of the eye was given before a group of army, navy, and air corps officers. It proved that the detector in its present form is so sensitive that the fastest pursuit airplanes are instantly detected up to ranges of twenty miles.

Using a triangulation system with several of the eyes operating at once, the exact location, course, and altitude of the plane can be determined within two seconds. Cloud layers are not impediments for this new eye, and it makes no difference whether the airplane engine is operating or whether its navigation lights are on or off, it is understood.

The army's ground forces hail the eye as the last needed improvement to put them virtually on even terms with air raiders. Anti-aircraft officers believe that the new eye will enable them to concentrate a deadly fire around enemy air squadrons and will make it possible for the defenders of any air target to begin shooting long before the bombers are in position to attack.

Whether the eye would work as well aboard civil aircraft is another matter. Accumulations of ice over the detector tubes might interfere with their operation, just as does static with radio. Also the range of the detector in dense fog or heavy snow might not be enough to give sufficient warning to pilots of modern high-speed planes. The eye will be given full tests in planes, however.

Experiments on ocean vessels already have proved the worth of the infra-red eye. It has been found that the detector can record the actual flashes of an occulting lighthouse rendered invisible to human eyes by bad weather, even at distances up to twenty-three miles. By correctly measuring the time between the flashes it has enabled those aboard the boat carrying the detector to identify the lighthouse and its position.

Naval officers are interested in the eye as a means of keeping a large fleet apart in a fog, and also as a means of picking up light signals between ships at times when radio communication might be cut off because enemy ships might have "jammed" a large number of frequencies with their own meaningless signals.

The real test of the detector will come, of course, in service experiments to which it now is being subjected both here and in Great Britain.

How the infra-red eyes are used as anti-aircraft range and direction finders against hostile air raiders. Altitude of the raiders is calculated by triangulating the angles obtained from bearings taken from several of the eyes on the same target.

Installed on aircraft, the heat detectors should give warning of obstructions ahead, as shown in drawing. With a range of five miles and a ground speed of 120 miles an hour, the pilot should have 2½ minutes to turn away.

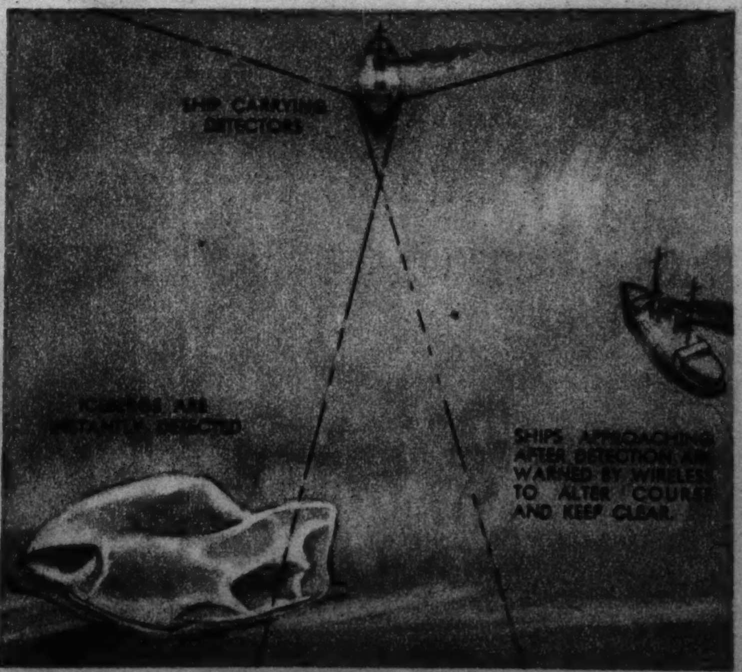
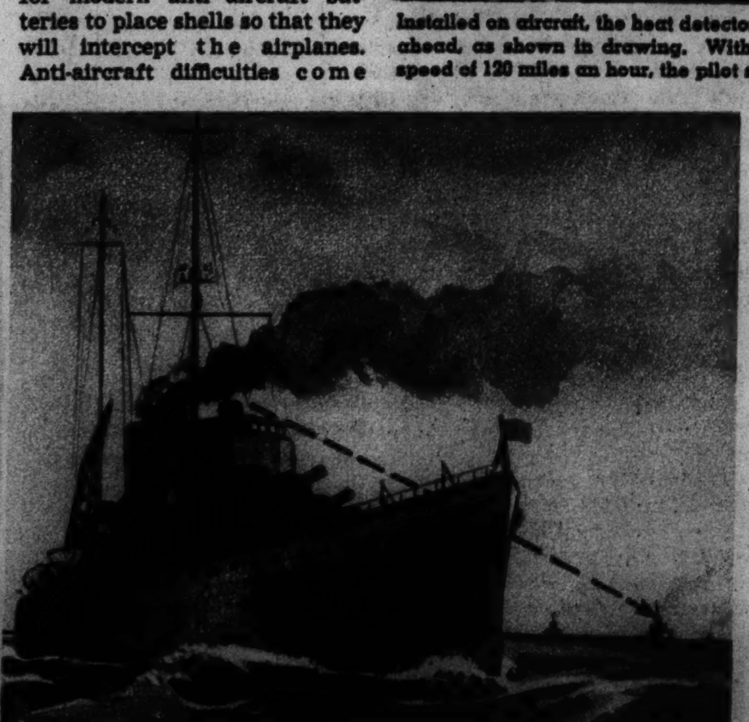
Light spectrum. Portion in lighter shades is that part visible to the human eye. Following the arrow, next comes an area of infra-red. The heat detector works deep in the infra-red portion, increasing enormously the fog penetration of the unit.



Prevention of collisions between ships at sea and avoidance of icebergs in fogs or storms is possible with the infra-red eye. Diagram shows how the location of ships with the instrument is accomplished.



In naval warfare the detector can be used for communicating between squadrons or individual craft as well as anti-aircraft aid. The detector picks up light signals which are very faint, and such signals cannot be "jammed," as radio might be by the enemy.

Theorists Ignore High Cost of "Free" Power

Overlook Limitations of Hydro-Electric Plant

By JOSEPH ATOR

ELECTRICITY has very aptly been called the industrial giant of the twentieth century. Its use, developed as we know it today largely within the last four decades, has given industry new and flexible muscles, usurped the predominant position held by steam in the last century, and advanced immensely that substitution of mechanical energy for human energy which is perhaps the best index of the progress of industrial civilization.

But without alternating current electricity would be a chained giant. It is only in this form, so named because the current reverses its direction many times a second, that it can be transmitted more than a few miles from the source of generation.

The steadily flowing direct current which Faraday "discovered" and which Edison and others developed in the last quarter of the nineteenth century has numerous advantages, once it gets to the spot where it is to be used, but it cannot be transmitted cheaply over any considerable distance. Alternating current can. It possesses this advantage because its voltage can be increased or reduced readily, as the result of its alternations, or reversals of direction.

This property has made its use essential to the development of hydro-electric plants. Steam plants can be built close to the centers of use, although even steam plants would be greatly restricted in their usefulness if they were confined to direct current for generating and transmitting purposes. (As an example of direct current limitations, one reason why utility companies are seeking to change over direct-current districts in the congested centers of great cities to alternating current is that there is no longer room in utility conduits beneath the streets for sufficient cables to transmit direct current.)

But hydro-electric sites are almost invariably some distance from the consuming centers for electricity. Without the seven-league boots provided by alternating current almost all of them would be impossible of development.

• • •

The volts and amperes by which electric current is measured are often compared to the properties of a current of water in a pipe. Volts are likened to the rate at which the water flows, and amperes to the volume of the pipe, measured by its cross-section.

A pipe of certain size, in which water flows at a certain rate, will deliver so many gallons a minute. A wire, carrying so many amperes at a pressure of so many volts, will deliver a certain number of watts, the quantity measure of electricity. Watts are equal to volts multiplied by amperes. (A kilowatt is 1,000 watts.)

If an attempt is made to force too many amperes over the wire, electrical friction, or resistance, heats the wire until it burns up. But if the pressure, or voltage, is increased, the number of watts, or quantity of electricity, which can be crowded over a wire of the same size increases proportionately.

Direct current can be generated at high voltages, but high voltage current is too dangerous to be used to operate lights and motors. For that purpose current of relatively low voltage and higher amperage is necessary. And, until very recent developments which are still more or less in the experimental stage, there was no way of changing direct current voltages.

Through the electric transformer, however, alternating current may be changed at will. It is sent over transmission lines at tremendous voltages, thereby reducing the weight of the copper wire necessary to transmit it, and at its destination stepped down with transformers to 220 or 110 volts for the use of customers.

As stated last week in the Graphic Section, many factors, both economic and physical, govern the value of potential hydro-electric power sites. Some of these factors are the available market for power, the type and cost of the plant which must be built to utilize the misnamed "free" water power, regularity of water supply, and freedom.

It was stated that the ideal site from the physical standpoint alone would be one which could take water from a river with a steady year-around flow and at a minimum of construction shoot it down a penstock, or pipe, to turn water wheels driving generators at the foot of the falls. But since all of the elements of this ideal site are never found together at any major power site, engineers have to remedy the defects in the natural situation, frequently at great cost.

Very often there is no waterfall at a power site. Then the engineers must create their own head of water by backing water up behind a dam, construction of which often adds tremendously to the total cost of the power plant.

Natural conditions make for other combinations in getting a head of water. Sometimes a dam furnishes a small head, and a canal or flume then carries the water along level ground bordering a gorge in which the river drops further, finally dropping it down a penstock to the power station at the bottom of the gorge. In other instances uneven ground makes it necessary to substitute a tunnel or pressure pipe to carry water to the generating plant.

Boulder dam, the power development in Black canyon of the Colorado river, illustrates a number of pitfalls into which politically inspired hydro-electric projects are likely to fall. As an object lesson it is more valuable even than the various projects of the Tennessee Valley authority, for the reason that the true costs of the latter have been concealed, TVA critics assert, by charging off disproportionate amounts of construction cost to flood control and navigation, rather than to the generation of electric power.

The Colorado is not navigable, except for bass fishermen's rowboats on the lake behind the dam and, since water used for irrigation is taken from the river below the dam, the politicians who used federal tax funds to build it have made little progress with their argument that part of the $126,500,000 cost should be charged off to irrigation works.

Boulder dam has been designed to generate 1,317,500 kilowatts, which will give an eventual investment in the dam and power plant of $96.10 for each kilowatt of capacity. This is on the assumption that it will eventually be developed to make full use of the water supply available. At present, however, generators at the dam have a capacity of only 540,000 kilowatts. Since the dam itself had to be built at a cost of $70,600,000 whether more than a million or only a few thousand kilowatts were to be generated, and other costs are not reduced proportionally to the reduction in capacity, the present cost of generating capacity at the dam is estimated at about $193 a kilowatt.

Furthermore, Boulder dam is hundreds of miles from the market for its power. To justify transmission of power to the Los Angeles area on any basis at all, it has been necessary to step it up to 287,000 volts, the highest pressure at which transmission has ever been attempted in America. The cost of the only transmission line built to date is $95 a kilowatt.

Thus, at its present capacity the plant investment necessary to deliver power from the dam to Los Angeles is $288 a kilowatt. If the dam is developed to full capacity the investment cost would drop to about $191 a kilowatt.

• • •

Whether there will ever be a market for all the power which could be generated at the dam is, however, open to question. In 1936 the Los Angeles municipal power system and the Southern California Edison company, two of the three principal customers for Boulder dam power, already had 1,311,000 kilowatts capacity in their power plants, of which 564,000 was in steam plants and 747,000 in other hydro-electric installations.

During 1936 their peak power loads combined were only 996,400 kilowatts, leaving unused 414,600 kilowatts. Part of this capacity was necessary as steam plant standbys during low water periods at the hydro-electric plants, but the remainder is available for future expansion in the power market.

This excess capacity will be used before there is any real need for power from Boulder dam, since the present installations, both steam and hydro-electric, can deliver power to Los Angeles as cheaply, or more cheaply, than it can be delivered from the dam, in the opinion of most engineers.

In terms of kilowatt hours the actual quantity of power used in 1936 by customers of the Los Angeles municipal system and the Southern California Edison company was 4,921 millions. The municipal district has contracted to take a maximum 1,485 million kilowatt hours a year from the dam, and the Edison company 1,031 million kilowatt hours, the municipal system to take its maximum by June 1, 1941, and the Edison company a year earlier.

The third large customer for the dam is the Los Angeles metropolitan water district, which has contracted to take a maximum of 1,526 million kilowatt hours a year by June 1, 1942, to be used in pumping water from Parker dam, 100 miles below Boulder dam, for irrigation and for Los Angeles' domestic water supply.

Already the water district and the municipal power system, fearful that they will have no use for the power they have agreed to buy, are importuning their congressmen and senators to get them a 15 year extension on their contract with the government.

But if the prospects of Boulder dam's customers, the power distributors, are dubious, those of the federal taxpayers whose money built the dam are dreary. Even the most optimistic estimates of revenue from the dam indicate that in addition to losing the principal already invested in the dam they will have to pay, in future interest on the money borrowed to construct it, indirect annual subsidies to the local governments and private power companies of southern California.

At the present rates at which power is to be sold, rates which the customers are already exerting political pressure to have reduced, the dam will produce only $7,050,000 a year, plus amortization payments on the generating machinery. The latter is a relatively small item in the total cost.

These maximum payments will not be received for at least four and a half years, and perhaps not for twenty years if the contract postponements now being sought are granted. It is impossible to determine what the capital investment in the project will be at the time of maximum payments, since millions of dollars of interest will have to be added to capital during the period when the dam is running at part capacity.

But, taking into account the amortization payments on machinery, it probably will be at least the present cost, $126,500,000. The maximum payments for power will yield only 5.57 per cent on this capital sum.

The money to build the dam was borrowed at 4 per cent. This would leave only 1.57 per cent for all other fixed charges. Private utility companies estimate such charges, exclusive of the return on capital, as high as 6½ per cent, including taxes, depreciation, insurance, and general overhead. While the dam will be technically tax exempt, it will have to pay Nevada and Arizona for water rights in lieu of taxes. Thus, to operate without further governmental subsidies, Boulder dam will have to get along on about one-quarter of the same sum which an efficiently operated private concern would require.

(Associated Press photos.)

In addition to its remoteness from a market for power, Boulder dam is typical of another weakness of hydro-electric plants from which steam plants do not suffer. It is usually cheaper to develop a water power site to its full capacity at once, regardless of the market for power. This is particularly true where a large part of the construction cost is for a dam.

Then, until the market for the full capacity is built up, that power which is sold must bear the interest and depreciation costs on the unused capacity. Steam plants, on the other hand, can be enlarged as additional capacity is needed with no increase in unit costs.

This decrease in unit costs as a hydro plant reaches full capacity is illustrated by the experience of the privately owned Safe Harbor project on the Susquehanna river, in Pennsylvania. The plant was placed in operation in 1932, with a generating capacity of 114,000 kilowatts. Its cost, including a transmission line to Baltimore, was $220 a kilowatt. In 1936, when its capacity had been increased to 171,000 kilowatts, the investment dropped to $163 a kilowatt.

Boulder Dam Is Example of Expensive Production

Engineers list another factor to be kept in mind in comparing long term costs of hydro-electric and steam plants. This is the fact that the steam plants have time and science fighting on their side in the matter of lowered costs.

No one would think today of transmitting energy by compressed air, as was proposed at Niagara Falls 40-odd years ago. Advances in electrical science have rendered such a proposal fantastic. Potential advances in steam engineering may, some time in the future, render all but the most favorably located hydro-electric plants too expensive to compete with steam.

Hydro-electric generators now turn 90 and even 95 per cent of the full energy of a column of falling water into electricity. There is virtually no room left for further improvement. Steam plants, in spite of past progress, still convert only about 25 per cent of the heat units in coal into kilowatts. Moreover, engineers are increasing this efficiency every year. In the offing there is the possibility of relatively large increases in efficiency if mercury can be substituted for water in boilers, and meantime there is a steady advance of technical refinements.

Even though it is improbable that steam plants will ever reach the percentage of efficiency of hydro-electric plants, theirs is the field of improvement. The hydro plant which today can deliver current more cheaply than a steam plant may be rendered more expensive within a decade or so.

It is obvious that water power in many instances is cheaper than steam power, else private capital would not have invested billions of dollars in the plants which generate it. But it should be just as obvious that in many other instances it is more expensive than steam power, or private capital would not have neglected potential water power sites to build steam plants. This latter consideration is one, however, which the political advocates of water power prefer to forget.

• • •

The first development of hydro-electric generation invested certain real estate with the character of bonanzas. It was not realized for a time that some of these bonanzas were as falsely alluring as those in the mining field. But with the industrial development of the country, and increasing demands for power, it became apparent that there were not enough of these bonanzas, false and true, to go around. The Marxian idea that they should belong to all the people gained converts, particularly among politicians.

To these political manipulators a difference between hydro-electric and steam generating power immediately arose which was not discernible to engineers or accountants. The supply of machinery and fuel to build and operate steam plants is, practically speaking, inexhaustible. To justify the government embarking on a large scale in steam power generation it would be necessary to convert the country to a general policy of socialism.

But in water power they have been able to reinforce their pleading with the assertion that in dealing with a limited natural resource the government should develop it itself. To advance this argument they have fostered the "free power" theory, which is shown to be a fantasy by study of the costs of building hydro-electric plants, and have sought to create the erroneous impression that steam generation, in which they cannot engage the government, is always more expensive than hydro generation. The results have been Boulder dam, the TVA, Grand Coulee, Bonneville, the Platte river projects, and a host of other politically inspired and tax financed developments of the most dubious economic merit.

He traveled extensively in Europe and South and Central America between 1926 and 1929, making investments for his firm in foreign electric and water power companies, and thus found opportunity to study the methods of English investment trusts.

In 1923 Odlum and his friend George W. Howard, then a member of the law firm of Simpson, Thacher & Bartlett, now president of the United corporation (a public utilities chain controled by the Morgans), formed a small investment company, with their wives as partners. They pooled $39,000 for speculation in the stock market and called this family affair the United States company. Their first year brought a 65 per cent dividend. By the end of 1925 the value of their common stock (10,250 shares) was $69.47 a share. Some of their friends begged for an opportunity to ride on this bandwagon; the pool expanded; and the stock market continued to boom.

In 1928 the company's name was changed to the Atlas Utilities and Investors Company, Ltd.; Montreal was made its legal home. In 1929 it became the Atlas corporation, under the laws of Delaware.

In the early summer of 1929 Atlas was worth $6,000,000; Odlum quietly sold half of its holdings and tucked the cash away. Later in the summer Atlas issued new stock which, privately sold to about 450 investors, brought $9,000,000 into its coffers. Odlum, whose financial instinct had detected warnings of impending disaster, ordered that this money should be kept in cash and short-term notes. Therefore, when the whirlwinds of panic were released in October of that year, Atlas rode the storm with $10,000,000 in cash and $5,000,000 in quick assets, and presently profited immensely, as has already been told, from the misfortunes of other investment trusts.

The Odlum divorce was of such a friendly character that Mrs. Odlum remained in the family business. She became the president of Bonwit Teller's, which came under Atlas control with the Goldman-Sachs Trading company acquisition, at a salary of $15,000 a year. She directs this store, a landmark of the 5th avenue luxury goods zone, with striking ability.

Odlum's philanthropic hobby is the Neurological Institute of New York, a part of the Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center; he is president of its board of trustees. His sports hobby is aviation, in which he became interested as one of his many business side lines. Among the captures of the Atlas octopus was the Transcontinental and Western, often called "the Lindbergh line." He also became a director of the Curtiss-Wright Airplane company.

And so an air-minded young woman named Jacqueline Cochran came into his life. In 1932 she had accepted a challenge from Odlum about learning to fly. He said that it couldn't be done in three weeks; she said it could. Whether this was an actual wager instead of a "dare" has not been revealed, but anyway she won and Odlum became the backer of her enterprises in competitive flying. They were married early in 1936, soon after his divorce, so quietly that the news did not get into print for several months.

Jacqueline Cochran, now in her late twenties, made a reputation as a business woman before she met Odlum. She was the owner and operator of a cosmetic business, with a chain of shops on the Pacific coast and in the middle west and a manufacturing laboratory in New Jersey. Like Odlum, she has executive talent; like him, also, she began her career under a handicap.

She was orphaned in infancy, and her earliest memories are of a humble family in Pensacola, Fla., not related to her, which had undertaken to give her board and lodging for a few years. She went to work when she was 11 for $1.50 a week, with room and board. When she was 14 she was earning $35 a week as a beauty parlor attendant; when she was 20 she had a shop of her own in Miami. Her thrift and aggressiveness soon extended this little business into a lucrative chain of places that catered to the feminine vanities.

Two years after she learned to fly she entered a plane in the London-to-Melbourne race of 12,000 miles, engaging Wesley L. Smith, veteran air mail pilot, as her companion. Others in the race were C. W. A. Scott of England (the winner), J. D. Parmentier of the Netherlands, Jimmy Mollison, Amy Johnson, Roscoe Turner, and Clyde Pangborn. Miss Cochran and Smith dropped out of the race at Bucharest, Rumania; faulty wing flap controls compelled a landing.

In 1935 she entered the Bendix race from Los Angeles to Cleveland, but grounded at Kingman, Ariz., because of radio trouble. A few months later, while on a trial flight in one of the planes which Howard Hughes had used to set several intercity records, she made an emergency landing at the Indianapolis airport with her motor ablaze.

• • •

In July, August, and September, 1937, she achieved three brilliant victories against time. First she set new American women's records for 100 and 1,000 kilometers — 202 miles an hour for the former, 203.89 for the latter. Then she established a new women's record in the Bendix transcontinental race, averaging 194.74 miles an hour between Los Angeles and Cleveland. Then at the Detroit air show (really the day after the show closed, because of a postponement) she broke the world's speed record for women held by the late Helene Boucher of France (276.5 miles an hour). Her official speed average for six dashes over the three-kilometer course was 293.05 miles an hour. In the fastest of her dashes she was timed at 304.62 miles an hour.

Like her husband, she does not seek publicity; she avoids it if possible. And, like a beauty parlor queen, she discards aviation jumper and helmet in favor of feminine fashions as soon as she hops out of the cockpit of her machine.

Fast workers, these Odlums.

A Mechanical "Centipede" That Tests Road Surfaces

THE odd machine in the accompanying picture is a British invention designed to assist highway engineers in determining where road surfaces have become irregular, either through faulty construction or because of heavy trafic.

All of the nineteen tires are inflated to exactly the same degree of pressure. When the machine is rolled along a road the freely slung wheels operate a stylus which records their movements on a revolving drum in the body of the machine. The resulting graph tells engineers the full story of the road's surface irregularities.

"Dry" Baths Solve Odor Problems

WHEN dogs are kept in the house a great deal the problem of eliminating the animal's natural odor without frequent bathing is often a puzzling one. Sometimes a very young puppy offers the same problem. One springer spaniel owner said to us the other day that he didn't want to bathe his dog often because the pup slept in a pretty cool place and he understood it ought to retain the oil on its hair rather than have it removed by too much bathing.

It is the oil on a dog's hair and skin that produces the odor which dogs have, and it's also this oil that gives such a beautiful sheen to a dog's coat and makes for a healthful condition of skin and hair. Dogs that are not in good shape invariably have unthrifty coats, with hair that may be dry and lacking in sheen.

The slight odor that dogs have is not offensive to most owners. Some breeds offend very little in this respect. Others need considerable care. We realize that one doesn't want dogs around the house making the rooms smell like a kennel. Therefore the inclination is to do something to remove the odor from the coat and skin. And here is where the owners come to the parting of the ways as to proper methods.

Bright, active, and affectionate, the schipperke long has been used as a guard and an efficient ratter on canal barges in Europe. They are hardy, active little dogs with much intelligence. The dog pictured is Champion Miquette of Kelso, twenty-two times best of breed in American shows.

On the one hand we have thousands of owners who give their pets frequent baths even in very cold weather. The idea is to clean the dog and at the same time kill the natural odor. We know of many owners who give their pets a bath every week right through the winter.

There isn't any doubt but what frequent baths keep a dog clean, but it is rather hard on the dog, to say nothing of his coat. A pup that is put in the tub every week hardly has a chance to keep any natural oil on his skin and coat. Without this oil he can't have a good coat. In fact, your veterinarian will tell you that too frequent bathing may irritate the skin, keep it too dry, and thus help the pup develop a minor skin trouble.

When we tell friends who ask us about our system that our dogs get few tubbings from the end of the hunting season until spring, they register amazement. In fact, they may think that we are negligent. They doubtless wonder how we can have dogs in the house that never are given a scrubbing. The explanation is simple.

The object of bathing a dog is to remove odors, to take dirt from the hair, and to keep the skin clean. We believe that you can do all of these things in very cold weather by following this system: 1. Comb and brush the dog every day, and don't be afraid to use a stiff brush on a long-coated pup so you can get down to his skin. A good combing and brushing removes all dead hair, takes out dirt, and reaches to the skin, so that the latter is stimulated. 2. If possible have your dog sleep on cedar shavings, which impart a delightful fragrance. The shavings can be sacked or put on the floor of the dog's sleeping quarters. We keep our dogs in a cedar atmosphere all through the year. Incidentally, the use of shavings discourages fleas in the summer. During the winter we use shavings solely for their fragrance.

As a further means of eliminating the natural odor we put two or three drops of pine oil on a brush once or twice a week and brush it into the coat. This lasts for a long time. Some owners may not like this scent, but most people find it is pleasant. There is also another way to kill offensive dog odor. You can clean your dog with a dry cleaning powder. Such a powder has a deodorant in it, eliminating dog odor as it cleans.

By following this system of much brushing, plus cedar shavings and pine oil, plus some dry cleaning, we can keep dogs all winter with luxuriant, glossy coats, clean skins, and no odor. Only an occasional bath is needed. We have been following this routine for many winters, and it has worked out satisfactorily.

Of course, there are times when it is necessary to give a dog a bath because it has picked up some objectionable odor or gotten something into its coat that requires warm water and a good soaping.

It's no secret (and your veterinarian will confirm this) that most of us who own dogs overfeed and overbathe them—especially during the winter. Both excesses can contribute to ailments, and both can be avoided.

Old Ironsides Inspiration to Nation

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

THE FRIGATE Constitution is the most famous vessel of war ever to fly the American flag.

Under the command of Capt. Isaac Hull on Aug. 19, 1812, she destroyed the British frigate Guerriere, Capt. James Richard Dacres, in a thrilling engagement in the Atlantic about 700 miles east of Boston.

On Dec. 29 of that same year, while under the command of Capt. William Bainbridge, she met and defeated the British frigate Java, Capt. Henry Lambert, in a hard-fought contest thirty miles southeast of San Salvador.

About 175 miles east by northeast of Madeira, on Feb. 20, 1815, the Constitution, under the command of Capt. Charles Stewart, defeated and captured in a three-cornered fight the British frigate-built ship-corvette Cyane, Capt. Gordon Thomas Falcon, and the British ship-sloop Levant, Capt. George Douglas.

Almost as thrilling as these were some of the other exploits of this celebrated fighting craft. The Constitution, affectionately known as Old Ironsides, is afloat today, restored, reconditioned, and appearing much as she did when she was defeating the British during the War of 1812. An inspiration for patriotism to the generations that have lived since that conflict is this veteran frigate.

And truly she was a frigate, despite the contention of the British that, because she was somewhat larger and carried more pieces of ordnance than the majority of their frigates, she should, along with two other similar American vessels, the United States and the President, be rated as a line-of-battle ship. The line-of-battle ship was the battleship of that day, while the frigate was the cruiser. But, as Theodore Roosevelt pointed out in his "The Naval War of 1812," the smallest line-of-battle ship of that period was the vessel rated as a 74 (meaning 74 guns), but which actually carried 83 pieces of ordnance. The Constitution is best described as a heavy frigate. According to naval classification in vogue at the time she was built, she was rated as a 44.

In her fight with the Guerriere she actually carried 54 pieces—30 long 24-pounders on her main deck and 2 long 24-pounders and 22 short 32-pounders on her spar deck. Half of her 24-pounders and half of her 32-pounders constituted her broadside, which figures out at 736 pounds of metal. But American cannonballs at that time were of short weight. Her real broadside, considering the short-weight metal, was 684 pounds. Against this the Guerriere, with 30 long 18-pounders, 2 long 12-pounders, 16 short 32-pounders, and 1 short 18-pounder, fired a broadside of 556 pounds of metal.

When the Constitution fought the Java she carried only 52 pieces, two of her short 32-pounders having been removed previously. The actual weight of metal of her broadside then was 654 pounds. The Java, with her 28 long 18-pounders, 2 long 12-pounders, 18 short 32-pounders, and 1 short 24-pounder, threw a broadside of 576 pounds.

The Cyane and the Levant together hurled broadsides totaling 763 pounds, as compared with the Constitution's nominal broadside of 704 pounds, not allowing for short weight of metal. The Cyane carried 22 32-pound carronades, 2 long 12-pounders, and 10 18-pound carronades, and the Levant carried 18 32-pound carronades, 2 long 9-pounders, and 1 12-pounder.

The Constitution was constructed in the shipyard of Cloghorne & Hartly of Boston after plans prepared by Joshua Humphreys of Philadelphia and was launched Oct. 21, 1797. She cost the government $302,718. Three of our modern superdreadnaughts, the Maryland, Colorado, and West Virginia, each cost in excess of 27 million dollars.

The Constitution, the United States, and the President were the three largest vessels of the American navy during the War of 1812, each rated at 1,576 tons. The British frigate Guerriere was of 1,338 tons and the British frigate Java of 1,340 tons. Even the smallest British line-of-battle ships, the 74s, were of considerably greater tonnage than the largest American vessels. The great British three-decker 90s and 100s were vastly larger.

A little more than 174 feet in length, 43 feet 6 inches in the beam, and with masts that towered more than 200 feet above the waterline, the Constitution was larger than the British frigates of the 38-gun class, which actually carried 49 pieces of ordnance as their armaments. Her spread of canvas was enormous and she was a faster sailer than the British frigates. Like the other American heavy frigates previously mentioned, she was more stanchly built than approximately equal craft of the British royal navy.

Capt. W. D. Puleston of the office of naval intelligence in Washington writes of recent date on the subject of the Constitution and similar American frigates as follows:

"Joshua Humphreys (their designer) made them a little longer and strengthened the planking between wind and water, where the modern armor belt would be. To compensate for this extra weight he sacrificed weight of certain deck fixtures. On this slightly larger hull more guns were placed, and this accounted for the long dispute between the British and American navies about their frigate actions. The guns also increased the weight of the ships.

"To get the same or greater speed (comparing them with lighter frigates) it was necessary to increase the height of the masts and the width of the yards. In order to keep the weight of the yards and masts down they were made smaller in diameter, which made them weaker. As these ships were driven at a high rate of speed, it was necessary to tend the yards and the masts very carefully. This could be done at that time, because the sailors in our merchant ships, who manned our men of war in time of war, were prime seamen. The extra sail area provided the increased horsepower necessary to drive these ships at least as fast as their contemporaries, and usually a little faster."

• • •

Captain Puleston makes a point when he explains that America's first efforts in naval construction were to put more guns upon a ship, that its next step was to armor the ship, and that its final step (speaking of the navy of sailing ships) was to give the ship as much speed as a fair risk to the masts and sails would permit. This principle, he adds, has come down to us and is partly embodied in the famous phrase of Admiral Farragut:

"The best armor is our own guns."

John Brainard MacHarg in "The Story of Old Ironsides," which appeared in United States Naval Institute Proceedings of October, 1931, says that the Constitution was surprisingly like a cup-winning yacht of today. That is, as he infers, she was a graceful craft with lines and rigging that indicated her fleetness under sail.

More than once was the Constitution able to show her heels to pursuing British craft that could have "ganged" on her and sent her to the bottom of the sea. For example, in July, 1812, she outsailed the strong British squadron under Commodore Broke. During a portion of this thrilling race a dead calm fell upon the sea and the sails of the ships hung loose and slack. The British put a number of ships' boats into the water and seamen at the boats' oars towed their vessels, but Captain Hull, who then was in command of the Constitution, resorted to a process called kedging. A sea anchor attached to a towing cable was placed in each of two boats, which were rowed ahead of the ship. While the sailors aboard the Constitution were pulling her up to one anchor which had been planted, the other was advanced to be in readiness for use. In this manner Captain Hull kept far enough away from his leading pursuers to be out of danger. And then when a breeze came up his sails filled out and he pulled away from the British.

Among the features of the Constitution and other American frigates that were superior to those of the British were the facilities provided for aiming their guns. The Constitution carried pieces equipped with sights, while the Guerriere, for example, had no sights upon her guns.

30 Minutes After Eating-Drinking ALKALIZE

Thus escape the penalties of acid indigestion then and later

With "acid indigestion" it stands to reason that the longer it goes, the worse it gets — and the harder it is to alkalize. Therefore, act at the first sign of distress.

If you would relieve and "head off" nausea, "upset stomach," heartburn, gas, the thing to do is alkalize immediately.

Try this quick-acting way: take two Phillips' Milk of Magnesia tablets — or two teaspoons of the liquid which have the same alkalizing effect.

Almost at once you feel "acid indigestion" curbed. "Acid headaches," acid breath, pains from acid indigestion — all are given amazingly fast relief. You feel like a different person.

When you're going out carry your alkalizer with you — always — in tablets. They taste like peppermint. They cost 25¢ for 30. When you buy insist on Genuine Phillips'.

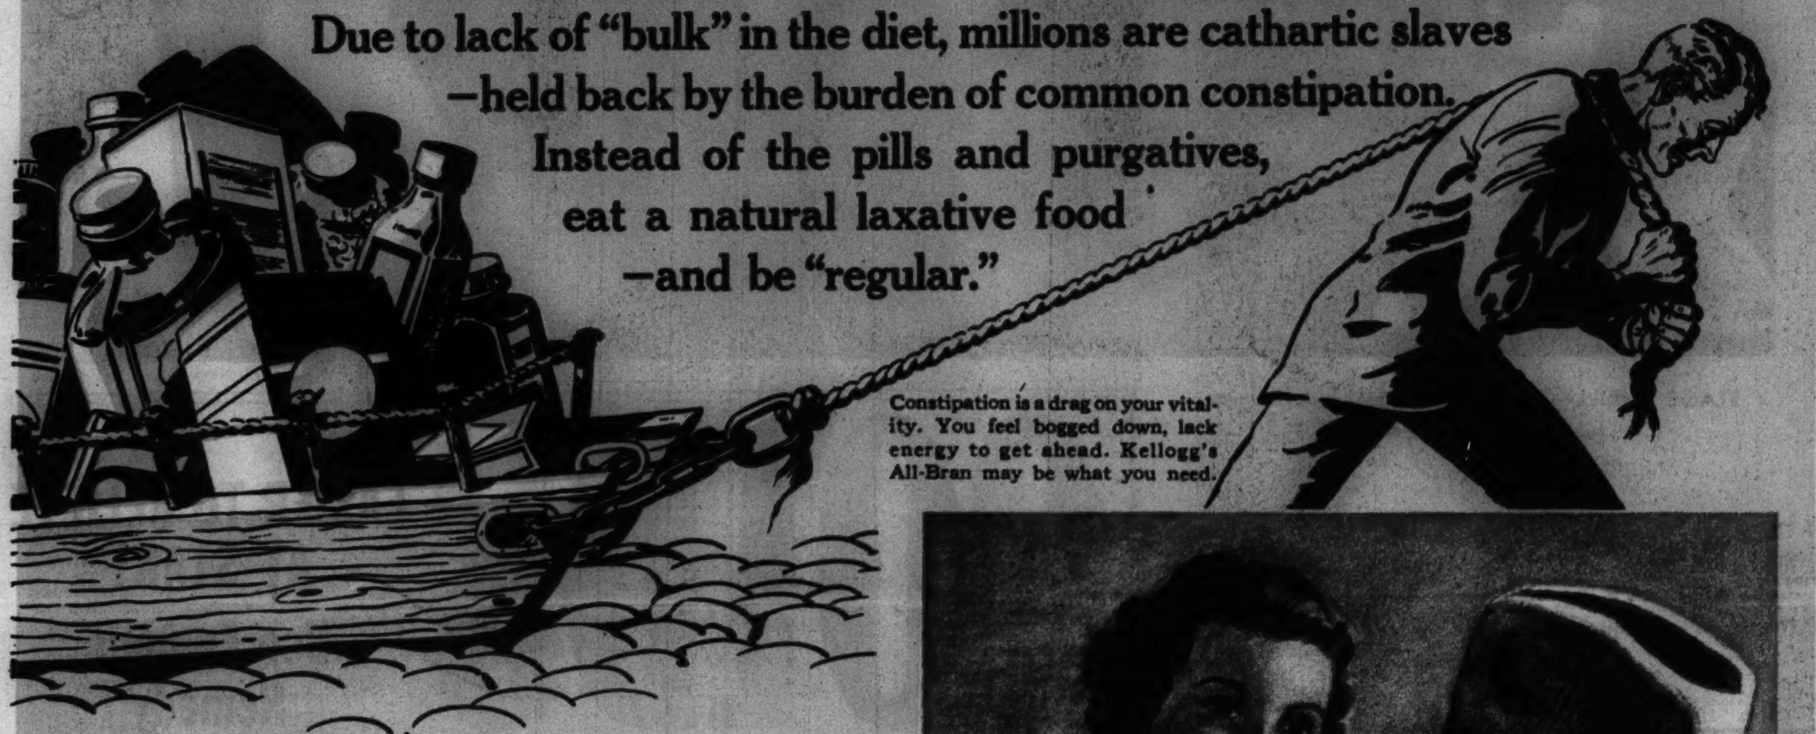
NAPOLEON I., EMPEROR OF FRANCE.

Don't Let the BURDEN OF MILLIONS Hold You Back!

Due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, millions are cathartic slaves —held back by the burden of common constipation. Instead of the pills and purgatives, eat a natural laxative food —and be "regular."



Constipation is a drag on your vitality. You feel bogged down, lack energy to get ahead. Kellogg's All-Bran may be what you need.

It's not what you do eat but what you DON'T eat that's likely to cause common constipation. The reason is that modern meals pass up Nature's age-old regulators, the laxative parts of wheat.

Loss of these "regulators" from modern diets has greatly increased common constipation. If your trouble is the LACK of these essentials, harsh cathartics are not the way out. They may relieve temporary distress but they do not work on the CAUSE. And their continued use tends to leave your intestines strained and weakened.

Stop Abusing Your Intestines

Get back the zest that comes with being "regular." Instead of over-stimulating your intestines with strong purgatives eat a NATURAL laxative food—Kellogg's All-Bran.

All-Bran will keep you "regular" as the clock's tick, but it works so differently from harsh cathartics. This laxative food gives your intestines two things they need—vitamin $B_1$ and "bulk."

Vitamin $B_1$—the Intestinal Tonic

Kellogg's All-Bran is a natural source of vitamin $B_1$, the amazing vitamin that tones your intestinal tract and helps promote regular movements. And All-Bran supplies "bulk"—it absorbs water and softens like a sponge. This water-softened mass aids elimination. Vitamin $B_1$ and "bulk" are just as good for you as they are effective. They work WITH Nature not AGAINST her.

Kellogg's All-Bran is a crunchy toasted cereal. You can eat it just as it comes from the package with milk or cream and fruit. Or bake it into delicious muffins or cookies. All-Bran gives them a tempting nut-sweet flavor.

To Keep "Regular" You Must BE Regular

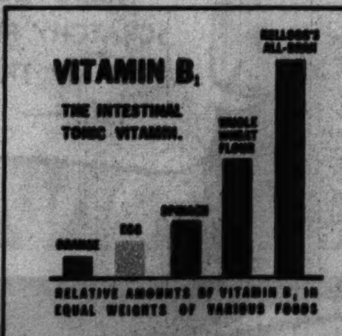
But however you eat All-Bran, use it regularly. Follow this daily routine:

1. Eat Kellogg's All-Bran every day.
2. And drink plenty of water.

Every grocer sells All-Bran. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.



BETTER HEALTH—BETTER PAY!
Freed from the double burden of common constipation and cathartics, you feel better, work better, get ahead faster.

THIS YEAR IT'S WISE TO BOOK Early . . . . AND GO BY FRENCH LINE of Course!

Paris IN SPRINGTIME!

Springtime comes early to Paris, city of eternal youth, city of change, city of tree-lined boulevards and historic beauty, where you'll surely want to spend part of this spring. And what better way than by French Line, whose every ship is a miniature Paris . . . gay, charming, refreshing . . . manned by hardy Breton and Norman sailors who have behind them a thousand years of seafaring tradition.

Ask your friends what line you should cross by this year. "French Line" will probably be their answer, particularly if they are well-versed in the fine art of travel. And they will add: "It's wise to make your reservations early."

FOR they recognize that the travel trend is toward the French Line. They know, for instance, that last year the eastbound bookings for all North Atlantic lines increased 6.6% over 1936, while those for the French Line increased 32.5% . . . striking evidence of the popularity of these brilliant steamers.

By letting your Travel Agent make your reservations now, you can be assured of the precise accommodations that you want . . . at the time you want them . . . and the price you want to pay. Because of the diversity of the French Line fleet, you can readily select a ship and cabin ideally suited to your individual requirements.

The Ile de France is without counterpart . . . a distinguished and wholly individual luxury liner which possesses almost human attributes. Crossing after crossing, you will find her passenger lists filled with the names of noted persons who prefer her to all other ships.

If you wish the swiftest possible crossing, there is the Normandie, world's largest vessel and holder of all-time records for both eastbound and westbound crossings. Her dependable speed permits you to make definite engagements for the fifth day . . . luncheon in London or dinner in Paris.

For a more leisurely journey you may choose the Champlain, modern of design and supremely comfortable, whose broad and unobstructed sports deck will appeal particularly to those who enjoy the radiant, exhilarating days on shipboard.

The Paris is as gay and refreshing as that vivacious city whose name she bears. Her poise, her alert speed, her smart appointments and her spirit of passenger camaraderie make her the particular choice of sophisticated travelers.

The Lafayette, trim and lovely, is one of the most popular vessels in the long history of the Atlantic. The newly reconditioned De Grasse offers direct service to Ireland. Always a favorite, this beautiful ship now has an outdoor swimming pool for Cabin Class passengers, and a splendid indoor pool for Tourist Class.

The flair for fine living for which the French are noted extends throughout all classes of accommodations on French Line ships. In Cabin Class, there is an unstinted lavishness of every detail which can contribute to a pleasant and most comfortable crossing.

In Tourist Class, the cabins and decks have a spaciousness that is altogether surprising, while the dining-salons and other public rooms are models of good taste and comfort. And in Third Class, the ability of the French to "live well on little" is particularly apparent.

Light AIRY, SPACIOUS

Many are the things you will find to praise about your cabin. Its ample size, for instance, with liberal out-of-the-way space for luggage. Its excellent décor. Its light and airy cheeriness. Truly you will discover here new evidence of that rare ability of the French to give, in countless detail, those unobtrusive little touches which add so much to the enjoyment and comfort of ocean travel.

Service THAT IS TELEPATHIC

Stewards and page boys on France-Afloat not only understand English, but they even anticipate your unspoken wishes. Their urbane skill is part of the scrupulous efficiency which lies at the root of all French Line service. It reflects long years of training and the genuine desire to serve you well. Everything is arranged precisely as you would have it. A voyage by French Line is a study in pleasant living. Yet it costs no more.

Take YOUR CAR ALONG!

Explore the magnificent highways of France in your own car. Or rent a car abroad. The round-trip minimum fare for an automobile by French Line is only $165. The cost of a 2100-mile three-week tour for three persons . . . including shipping the car; insurance; necessary papers; gas, oil and garage; living expenses at good hotels; meals; sightseeing and museum fees; laundry, etc. . . . can easily be held within $185 per person.

Food THAT ENCHANTS

There is a proper reverence for the pleasures of the table aboard every French Line ship. For here the food is prepared as only the great artist-chefs of France can prepare it, under the watchful eyes of their fellow-countrymen . . . cuisine which is acknowledged, by gourmets, to be a delectable triumph of pure French talent. And throughout the ship, at every meal, sound wines are served . . . wines created from the fruit of French vineyards, aged and treated in French wine cellars under French care and supervision . . . with especial attention to the peculiar role each must play in contributing to the perfection of French cuisine . . . served, of course, without additional charge.
